Aldermen Recommend That City Departments Be Run On Business-Like Basis

Want Records Kept of Truck Hire, Loaning of Equipment, More Economy in Maintenance of Traffic Lights

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night, following a secret session by the Board as a committee of the whole, recommendations were adopted suggesting that Mayor Childs institute certain reforms in the conduct of the Street Department, the WPA projects insofar as the city is involved, and any other departments affected. The recommendations were adopted following a report made by a special committee consisting of two members of the Finance Committee, and two members of the Public Works Committee. The members of the special committee, which was appointed at the meeting of the Board on October 17, are Aldermen Colby, Gaddis, Rawson and Schipper.

At the October 3rd meeting of the Board of Aldermen an appropriation of $2000 was made of a WPA project on the cleaning and repairing of catch basins. At the October 17th meeting the Board was informed that $1700 of the $2000 appropriation had been used in paying deficit bills in connection with this WPA project. At that meeting Alderman Gaddis criticized this practice. He said there is no reason for any department incurring expenses in excess of appropriations which have been authorized, and thus causing deficit bills. Another matter which drew the criticism of the committee was the discovery that equipment owned by the city had been given out to contractors without proper records being kept. The attention of the Aldermen was drawn to this by a deficit bill for two snow plows which had been purchased in 1937, and which, after a search were found stored at the yard of the company owning the trucks on which these plows had been used last winter. The Aldermen contend that receipts should be obtained when equipment is loaned to contractors or others. The committee commented in its report that most of the city departments have not been keeping proper records to keep tabs on expenditures and the balance remaining available from their budget recommendations.

Criticism was made of large increases the past year in repair bills on Street Department equipment, allegedly caused in part because some of this equipment should be replaced. It is recommended that a survey be made of the equipment and rolling stock of the Street Department. The committee of the Aldermen also contend that the cost of maintaining traffic lights is too high, and that the care of and repairs on these lights should be performed by the Wire Department, which is part of the Fire Department, if this can be legally done. The committee also recommended that there be closer co-ordination between the Street Department and WPA project officials representing the city.

The recommendations of the special committee are as follows:

1. To provide a more systematic record of truck hire in the Street Department we recommend: That when trucks are engaged a triplicate serially numbered memorandum form be used, these forms being given to the driver when engaged and handed by him to the WPA supervisor or Street Department foreman when reporting for work. At the end of the day the memorandums to be completed by the foreman or supervisor, the original slip given to the driver to be returned later to the Street Department with his bill, the No. 2 slip to be returned to the Street

Hoffman Chosen Ward 6 Alderman

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night, Carrol J. Hoffman of 35 Vineyard rd., Newton Centre, was elected by the Board to succeed Paul M. Goddard as Alderman-at-Large from Ward 6. Goddard recently resigned after having been nominated as a Republican candidate for Representative to the Legislature from the 5th Middlesex District, which includes Wards 4, 5 and 6 of Newton. The nomination is equivalent to an election. Goddard's term would not expire until Jan. 1, 1940.

Mr. Hoffman was nominated by Alderman Jamieson of Ward 6, and his nomination was seconded by Alderman Inches, also of Ward 6. His election was unanimous. He was born in Dansville, Mich., graduated from Jackson, Michigan high school in 1913 and then enlisted in the United States Army and served in France. He graduated from Harvard College in 1926 and from Harvard Business School in 1928. He is a partner in the investment firm of Draper, Williams & Co. of Boston. Mr. Hoffman is married and has two children who attend Newton public schools. He has been active in Newton Community Chest work, is Cub Commissioner of Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts, and has been a member of the Republican City Committee since 1934. He has resided in Newton for 16 years.

Low Bidder Gets Water Main Job

Joseph McCabe of South Boston last Friday was awarded the contract to lay the 30 inch water main which will carry Newton's water supply from the wells at the reservation in Needham to the pumping station at Upper Falls. McCabe's bid of $78,993 was the lowest of ten received from various contractors. As the work will be done as a PWA project, the approval of PWA officials had to be received before the contract was awarded.

Final Plans For Chest Campaign

Final plans for the Newton Community Chest Campaign, Nov. 9-22, for $196,797.15, are rapidly being completed as Campaign leaders enlisted hundreds of citizens in the soliciting divisions. To receive their final instructions and inspiration for the drive 1600 volunteer solicitors will attend the "Anchors Aweigh" dinner at the Newton High School Gymnasium at 6:45 on Nov. 9. Next Sunday has been designated as "Community Chest Sabbath" by the Church Cooperation Committee of the Chest.

Representing all faiths, the Church Cooperation Committee consists of Bishop Francis J. Spellman, Rev. Edward Taylor Sullivan, D.D., Rev. Herbert Hitchen, Rabbi Samuel N. Sherman and Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Chairman. The committee has asked clergymen to speak of the Chest in their sermons next Sunday and has prepared a special message for distribution in all churches. Referring to the Chest the message says: "But along comes Newton's Good Samaritan—The Chest!—lifts the wounded man; takes him to a Chest Agency; and leaves money there for his care! Somebody DID NOT take the cost of the hurricane out of the People's Angel of Mercy—the Newton Chest!" With the goal this year higher than last year and the loss of many gifts by death or removal from the city by former contributors, Campaign leaders state that there is a need for many new contributors and many increases in pledges. At several pre-campaign meetings of workers this week, Chairman A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., has suggested that contributors be urged to budget their contributions. "The Campaign," he said, "is to finance the annual operating expenses of 14 Health and Social agencies. Pledges can be paid at regular intervals through the year."

Arrangements for the "Anchors Aweigh" dinner on Nov. 9 are in charge of a committee headed by John M. Bierer. The nautical theme will be carried throughout the evening, launching the good ship "Campaign" for a successful cruise to the "Home-Port" meeting at the close of the Campaign on Nov. 22. The Highland Glee Club will sing and Louis Haffermehl's orchestra will play throughout the evening. All addresses will be brief and the meeting will close at an early hour.

Village headquarters will be opened next week in the following banks: For Newton and Nonantum, Newton National Bank; for Newtonville, Newton Trust Company; for West Newton and Lower Falls, West Newton Savings Bank; for Auburndale, Newton Trust Company; for Waban, Newton Trust Company; for Newton Highlands and Newton Upper Falls, Newton Trust Company; for Newton Centre, Oak Hill, Chestnut Hill and Waban Hill, Newton Centre Savings Bank.

During the past week a series of Chest "Feather Parties" have been held in the interests of the Campaign at the homes of well-known Newton women. Those attending these affairs assisted in preparing solicitors' kits as they listened to a speaker upon the work of Chest Agencies. Mrs. William A. Gallup is chairman and Mrs. Irvin Usen and Mrs. William T. O'Halloran, co-chairmen of the committee in charge.

Senator Lodge At Forum Next Sunday

On Sunday, November 6, 1938, at 3 p. m. in the Newton High School Auditorium, Newtonville, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., will speak before the Newton Community Forum on the present position of the United States in relation to our foreign policy.

The junior senator from Massachusetts is well qualified to analyze this timely problem. After graduation from Harvard, he was assigned, as a journalist on the staff of the New York Herald Tribune, to Nicaragua, Mexico, Europe, and the far eastern tropics. More recently, he has personally observed the formation and expression of foreign policy in the National Congress.

Senator Lodge is the grandson of the late Henry Cabot Lodge, former chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and well known to the passing generation as the "Scholar in Politics."

Lodge's political success is founded on his realism. He rests lightly on the power and influence of an eminent family name. He appeals to the interests of his colleagues and realizes that his own interests are identical with the interests of his constituents. He avoids the humdrum chicanery of the old-fashioned school of political demagoguery. He gets things done. He is system personified.

Although in politics for only six years, Senator Lodge, Jr., is already the "right hand man" of his party's leader, Senator Charles McNary of Oregon. With McNary, on Lodge's board of strategy, is Tom White of Newton, Mass. White, McNary, Lodge—there is a trio that has developed powerful political dynamite to undermine the opposition. With their able guidance, Lodge, in spite of his youth, has made more trouble for the other party than any other man.

Shrewd political commentators predict that Lodge is a man to watch during the next decade. He is hailed as a hope of his party, and his party, in turn, is rejuvenated by the virility and boldness of this young senator from a state that produces good senators.

Big Saltonstall Parade Through the Newtons Next Monday Night, November 7

Over 500 Automobiles Will Travel Over 20 Miles Through All The Villages—Enthusiasm High

Next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock a huge automobile parade will start at Newton City Hall to evidence the fact that the home city of Leverett Saltonstall, Republican candidate for Governor, is enthusiastically supporting him. The parade will be headed by a detachment of motorcycle police and the band of Newton Post, American Legion. In the first car will be Mayor Childs, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Leverett Saltonstall, Jr., and Thomas Covey of Waban, who organized the parade. In the second car will be the candidate's mother, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, and the rest of the candidate's children. In the third car will be Richard Saltonstall, brother of Leverett; Mrs. Muriel Lewis, his sister, and other members of the family. It is expected that 500 automobiles will follow. Hundreds of red flares have been purchased, and these will be ignited as the parade passes. Francis Mullen of Newton Highlands has arranged for the routing of the parade, and the lighting of the flares.

From City Hall the parade will proceed over the following route—Commonwealth ave., Ward st., Waverley ave., Washington st. to Newton Corner; Pearl st. to Nonantum, Watertown st., Adams and Washington sts., to Newtonville; Walnut and Watertown sts. to West Newton; Cherry, River and Lexington sts. to Auburndale; Commonwealth ave., Auburn and Grove sts. to Lower Falls; Washington and Beacon sts. to Waban; Woodward and Chestnut sts. to Upper Falls; Oak and Elliot sts. to the turnpike; Walnut and Dedham sts. to Oak Hill; Arnold rd., Greenwood st. and Dudley rd. to Thompsonville; Jackson st. and Langley rd. to Beacon st., College rd., Commonwealth ave., Grant ave., Beacon st. to Newton Centre square, where the parade will disband.

At Newton Centre square a rally will be held in front of the Mason School. Mayor Childs will preside and among the speakers will be ex-Mayor Sinclair Weeks, Thomas W. White, who has been managing Saltonstall's campaign, and Judge Robert J. Curran of Chestnut Hill. All the candidates on the Republican State ticket have been invited to attend, and it is expected that many of them will do so.

Newton Democrats Greet Curley

Last Thursday night at Newtonville the hall of the F. A. Day School was crowded at a rally conducted by the Newton Democratic Ward and City Committee. The meeting was opened by Joseph P. Dargone, chairman of the committee, who introduced Edward O. Proctor of Newton Centre as the chairman of the rally. Among those who spoke were candidates for the following offices: Attorney General, Paul Dever; District Attorney, Joseph Carroll; Congress, Thomas H. Eliot; Secretary of State, Katherine Foley; Lieut. Governor, James H. Brennan; County Commissioner, Thomas Brennan. Others who addressed the rally were Ex-Senator Thomas Gaffney, Hon. Edward Noonan, Hon. James Brennan and J. H. Redgate. Ex-Governor Curley arrived late at the rally and was given an enthusiastic reception by the crowd. He referred to the alleged enmity toward labor of Leverett Saltonstall and Sinclair Weeks, ridiculed the characterization of Mr. Saltonstall as having a "South Boston face," and in commenting on the support of Mayor Childs of Newton for Saltonstall, referred to the Mayor as "a dear, sweet, little man."

Gen. Needham To Speak on Safety

General Daniel Needham, Boston attorney and member of the Governor's Council on Highway Safety, is to speak over radio station WCOP, Boston, on the station's Highway Safety Campaign, staged in cooperation with the Massachusetts Safety Council, of which General Needham is a director and vice-president, on Tuesday, Nov. 8, at 10:30 a. m.

General Needham will offer his solution to the highway accident problem. He is well qualified to speak on safety, having been Public Safety Commissioner of Massachusetts.

Auburndale, N'ville Houses Entered

Edmund Wilson of 41 Aspen ave., Auburndale, reported to the police that his house had been entered on Wednesday afternoon and looted. The thief gained entrance by breaking a window. Another house reported burglarized on Wednesday was that of George Duffer at 276 Mill st., Newtonville.

CLIFF ESTATES

WELLESLEY HILLS

A "bit of old England" high in the Wellesley Hills, best describes "Pondbrook," a truly fine home, dignified and spacious without being pretentious, and with the air of a medieval manor surrounded by ancestral acres.

Living in such a home would be a source of unending joy, whether the simple life of a country squire or entertaining extensively is the aim of its ultimate owner.

A replica of a baronial castle in Surrey, England, the house of mellow brick with heavy timbering and weathered shutters has its beauty mirrored in the pond below the terrace. A pause on the bridge which spans the brook reveals a waterfall spilling over a dam into the pond below. Skirting the pond and climbing the slopes, a pathway has been smoothed to make a ramble over the estate inviting, and to blaze a trail to the baroque "snack-shack" for a weenie roast, or charcoal-broiled steaks, when the crowd drops in on the cook's day out.

In fact, there are infinite opportunities here for dispensing gracious hospitality . . . tea on the terrace; a cozy tete-a-tete with a friend or with books in the secluded library, while the ladies enjoy the delightful formality of the Tudor drawing room with the glow from the firelight picking out the highlights and caressing the fine patina of the hand-carved oak which panels the living room to the ceiling.

The morning room would tempt the breakfast-in-bed person to make an early morning appearance; while dining "en famille" or with guests would be a pleasure in the spacious dining room.

The kitchen? A woman's Paradise . . . whether mistress or maid . . . for besides cupboards galore for utilities, there are numerous glass-enclosed cabinets for fine Wedgwood and Spode and crystal.

Upstairs there is a master suite, with dressing room and private bath and four other family bedrooms (every one of twin bed size) and with adjoining or connecting glass-tilled baths, besides the maid's suite with bath.

"The Wheat Sheaf Inn" with thatched roof makes a novel recreation room in the basement. This entire home shows more eloquently than words can describe, the careful, thoughtful planning of a woman with original ideas and good taste . . . one who anticipates the desires of those very discriminating people who like to be relieved of the irksome details of building the house they will call HOME.

Monel metal in the kitchen; a General Electric Oil Furnace with an estimated heating cost of $253 a year (which includes domestic hot water); rock wool insulation, a garage for 3 cars, electric fixtures by Chase Brass and Lightoller and an incinerator, add the ultimate touch to this fine home.

May we welcome you to "Pondbrook" . . . TODAY?

BE SURE TO VOTE

Be sure to vote next Tuesday. The issue is clear and your conscience is the only guide you need. On election day Massachusetts faces a crisis. It is your duty, as well as your privilege, to have a voice in government. Government is as good or as bad as you make it. By voting for one candidate and helping to elect him to public office you assure yourself of promoting the well-being of the state and the community. And never forget that the state and the community is the individual who lives therein—namely you. By voting for other candidates you perpetuate in government that insidious vice of selfishness and greed which characterize those who hold public office for their own good. Possibly, if you are on the inside, you might get a few crumbs, but what is given you is taken from others to the detriment of the state and community as a whole. When you get into the secrecy of the ballot booth next Tuesday think twice and vote right.

DO YOU RECALL?—

Do you recall that four years ago James M. Curley was elected Governor?
Do you recall that it was generally conceded that Curley had the opportunity to make one of the best Governors the state ever had?
Do you recall that his administration was marked by political and public acts which caused the indignation of thousands?
Do you recall the $30 wastebaskets?
Do you recall the S-1 accident on the turnpike?
Do you recall the efforts made to oust venerable judges, among them our own distinguished William F. Bacon?
Do you recall the expensive taxicab rides?
Do you recall the "ambassador" to Washington who was paid from the public payroll and accomplished nothing?
Do you recall the successful efforts made by Governor Curley to change the personnel and attitude of the Boston Finance Commission?
Do you recall the appointment of members of the Governor's Council to important positions, allegedly in return for Council votes?
Do you recall the many miles of curbstones and sidewalks along state highways in many little-traveled places?
Do you recall the huge Curley bond issues passed by means of political manipulation and promises to legislators?
Do you recall many other acts which marked the Curley administration on Beacon Hill?
If you recall these things, then vote for Saltonstall!

VOTE THE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN TICKET

Next Tuesday it is essential that the entire Republican state ticket be elected. It is not enough that Leverett Saltonstall should be elected Governor. If the foregoing recollections are not sufficient to influence votes for Mr. Saltonstall it should be clear that the issue is plainly one of character. As ex-Governor Fuller so aptly stated: "after all the tumult and shouting of the present campaign dies away the whole issue narrows down to a single word—Character." Leverett Saltonstall is beyond reproach—can the same be said of his opponent?

After Saltonstall? Horace T. Cahill for lieutenant governor was Saltonstall's right hand man during several years of legislative turmoil. He knows what Saltonstall wants, he knows what good government is, and he knows how to fight honestly and earnestly for what is right.

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook needs no support on our part. He has done an efficient job and has defeated all previous opponents. There is no reason why he should be replaced by the woman candidate of the Democratic party.

Treasurer William E. Hurley has been an efficient treasurer during the past two years and there can be no doubt of the best choice between him and his Democratic opponent.

During several terms as State Auditor Thomas E. Buckley, the Democratic nominee for re-election has repeatedly issued statements which conceivably are planned to have a political effect. Many of these statements have caused his fellow Democrats considerable embarrassment. Russell Wood, the Republican nominee, will be a capable auditor and will work co-operatively with the other state officers for the best interests of all and not for personal distinction.

And now we come to the office of Attorney General. The present Attorney General, Paul A. Dever, we have known for six years. He was outstanding among his fellow Democrats as a member of the House of Representatives. Four years ago he was elected Attorney General and since that time we have frequently felt that he has continually kept one eye upon his political future. While it may be said that, under Democratic administrations, he has not been the worst Attorney General that the state could have had, it is well to consider what the future holds in store. With Saltonstall as the Chief Executive of this state it is clear that a Republican Attorney General will work more efficiently than Mr. Dever. The latter, without doubt, has an eye on the governorship at some future date. When Saltonstall is elected Mr. Dever must choose one of four courses. First he might retire from public life, but being thirty-six years old, in all probability will not. Second, he might be a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator David I. Walsh, it being more frequently rumored that the latter may retire at the expiration of his present term. Third, he might decide to oppose Saltonstall in 1940, in which case during the next two years it would be an easy thing to throw every conceivable political obstacle in Saltonstall's path. From next January on there certainly would not be many overtures of harmony emanating from the Attorney General's office. And fourth, he might decide to bide his time and perhaps postpone any gubernatorial ambitions until 1942, in which case he might well be an opponent of Horace T. Cahill or some other leading Republican. In other words, Mr. Dever's hold upon the Attorney General's office is not an asset to the Republican party. The Republican nominee, Clarence E. Barnes, will fill the office creditably and with far greater efficiency than can the political-minded Dever. Cast your vote for Barnes. Thus as far as the state ticket—or so-called "Big Six"—is concerned, it should be a Republican vote all the way.

THE MINOR OFFICES

And it should be a Republican vote all the way down the ticket—for the minor offices as well as for the major ones. Governor's Councillor Frank A. Brooks should be returned, not only to become one of the Saltonstall council, but because of his espousal of good government during the Curley and Hurley terms of the past four years. During the political turmoil that has marked the terms of both of these administrators Brooks has been the one Republican who most frequently has taken the initiative in striving for the right and one of the Republicans who could be counted upon not to betray his trust.

Congressman Robert Luce, as we stated last week, is facing a New Deal candidate in Thomas Eliot, a co-author of the Social Security Act and a personal friend of the President. In a Republican district this issue seems clear. We do not feel it necessary to enlarge upon or reiterate our support of Luce other than to state that we trust those voters who have been disinclined to support Mr. Luce this year will think twice before they mark their ballot next Tuesday.

Sheriff Joseph McElroy should be returned to office for another term. Since taking over the position formerly held by the late John Fairbairn he has conducted his duties efficiently. There is no reason for making a change.

Four years ago Thomas B. Brennan of Medford was elected a Commissioner of Middlesex County in the Democratic landslide which swept over the state. The Republican candidate, Charles C. Warren, of Arlington, we have known for six years. We believe that the voters will support him and bring to Middlesex County a harmonious Board of Commissioners who will not be called upon to display political attitudes in solving problems brought before them.

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY

The voters of the northern district will be called upon next Tuesday to elect a new District Attorney. The Republican nominee, Robert F. Bradford, defeated the present District Attorney in the primary on a platform of "house-cleaning." The house-cleaning that is necessary will not take place unless Bradford is elected. The retiring district attorney, Warren L. Bishop, openly supported the Democratic nominee, Joseph V. Carroll of Belmont since the primary. Mr. Bishop may well have some voice in the conduct of the office if the Democratic candidate is elected. Mr. Bradford is known as a capable lawyer and one who will conduct the public office which we believe he will be elected to fill with honor and distinction.

Politicalight

By THE EDITOR

The final week-end of the state political campaign brings with it the last-minute drive of both major parties to capture that portion of the vote which has not yet made a decision. This percentage of the vote is relatively small as throughout the past weeks the voters have had imprinted upon them the real issues of the battle. As in almost every state political contest the race for the governorship overshadows the remainder of the State tickets and yet a major factor in the size of the vote that is cast many times depends upon the interest shown in local contests for the minor offices.

Leverett Saltonstall has conducted a campaign of which he may well be proud, win or lose. He has shown constant improvement as a radio speaker during recent weeks and the soundness of his remarks, the sincerity of the pledges he has made, and the integrity of his personal character should bring their reward next Tuesday. Saltonstall, this week, made a clear reference to the main issue—whether or not the voters want a governor "who will take everything out of the office" or one "who will put everything into it." He also has cited the fact that Curley, when Mayor of Boston, opposed a general old age pension system and he contrasted his career in office during which he has kept every promise he ever made against that of Curley who has repeatedly broken such pledges. Referring to the Curley promise that he would raise the WPA scale of wages the Republican candidate said that no Governor could interfere in this respect as that is a Federal question. Saltonstall also added that he believed that Senators Walsh and Lodge would work more co-operatively with him than with Curley as they could trust him but "could the same thing be said for my opponent?"

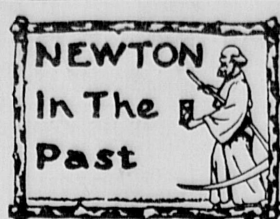

Mr. Curley, searching around for issues upon which to base his campaign, apparently has been unable to find much of moment. He has continued to attempt to wean labor support and has been aided somewhat by Kenneth Taylor, legislative agent of the Mass. Federation of Labor. Curley has even resorted to former political tactics he has used in corraling votes. This week in referring to the Republican-coined comment that Saltonstall not only has a "South Boston face but a South Boston heart" Curley stated that if Saltonstall went to South Boston he would not go 100 yards before he really had a South Boston face, inferring that the Republican candidate would be mauled and beaten. The Saltonstall comeback is regarded as a masterpiece and is believed to have caused Curley's statement to boom. Saltonstall replied that his opponent's remarks were an insult to the people of that section.

Chief among the highlights of the late campaign, however, were ex-Governor Fuller's radio address and also that of ex-Governor Ely. Fuller began with the statement that "the biography of James M. Curley could be written in a single line—the leopard cannot change his spots." He told of how Curley has repeatedly been charged with corruption and how Curley, each time, promised that if elected, his administration would be a good one—and each time he has been the same old James M. Curley. He characterized Curley as public failure No. 1. In closing, Fuller praised the private and public life of Leverett Saltonstall showing that this kind-hearted man has raised and administered funds for hospitals, orphanages, homes, schools, clinics, camps and other agencies that have helped the sick, the poor, and the unfortunate. There never has been a stain on his public life.

Ex-Governor Ely studiously refrained from any reference to the gubernatorial conflict and all other state offices except that of the Attorney General and the State Auditor. He made a plea for the re-election of Attorney General Paul Dever as "one of

The free evening school at the Lincoln School on Pearl st. opens next Monday evening. Instruction will be given in reading, writing, arithmetic and bookkeeping.

The citizens of Newton make much complaint regarding the service given by the Boston & Albany railroad, yet the many millionaires of that city have not the spunk to build a railroad of their own. (Waltham Record.)

Michael Waters and another young man had a friendly wrestling match at their boarding house on Washington st. last Monday, in consequence of which Patrolman Baker took Waters to the Mass. General Hospital in Boston to recover from a compound fracture of the right leg.

A woman's exchange has been organized among the Grace Church people for the purpose of aiding in the building of the proposed parish house. Orders are solicited for bread, cake, jellies and all kinds of needle and fancy work.

Arthur Glines will open a roller skating rink today at Nonantum Hall, Newton. The rink will be open on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 2 to 5 and 7 to 10 p. m. The fascinating sport of roller skating has gained a strong hold in other places and ought to become popular in Newton.

The repairs at the Newton depot are finished except for a little more work with the paint brush. The waiting rooms are much more bright and cheerful, new and comfortable seats have replaced the settees, smoking will be allowed only in the old baggage room, and the waiting-room doors are now marked "Men" and "Women," instead of "Ladies" and "Gentlemen."

A course of free lectures on the doctrines of Swedenborg will be given at Cole's Hall, Newton, on Sunday evenings in November, beginning at 7:30.

The directors of the Boston & Albany railroad have refused to grant the requests of their Newton patrons for free transportation of parcels.

The railroad crossing at Centre st., near Paul st., Newton Centre, is now guarded by gates which were put into operation several days ago, but the gearing was injured by the storm on Monday so they could not be operated. The great length of the bars, 50 feet, requires extra heavy works.

Sophia Newell of West Newton met with a painful accident at her home on Monday evening. Coming down the stairs in the twilight, she found a cat and in trying to avoid stepping on the creature, she missed her footing and fell, dislocating a part of her breast bone.

The refusal of Boston & Albany railroad officials to carry parcels free conveys the idea that Newton residents are asking for free service. All that Newton people desire is the continuance of what had by 40 years' usage become a right. The company's refusal to restore this right will make an appeal to the Legislature the next step.

At least five deaths have occurred lately in the Thompsonville section at Newton Centre, caused by typhoid or malarial fevers.

There are now 22 patients at the Newton Hospital, thus filling every bed, even the baby's crib. As the contemplated new ward at the hospital will call for additional supplies, it has been suggested that sewing circles throughout the city devote the month of November to sewing for the hospital.

The State railroad engineers inspected the grade crossings along the line of the Boston & Albany railroad in this city on Tuesday, and were met at the Newton station by Mayor Kimball and members of the city government. The city council is opposed to separation of the grades, provided any portion of the expense devolves upon the city. A hearing will be held at City Hall on Thursday. Mayor Kimball and the members of the City Council should have the support of all the citizens in their efforts to oppose any plan of changing a portion of the cost of removing the grade crossings to the city. The B. & A. should be made bear all the expense. As Alderman Petee says—the greatest danger at grade crossings is caused by the fast, through trains of the railroad, and these trains are of no benefit to Newton.

Powers' Paragraphs

We shall vote "Yes" on the referendum which will appear on the ballot Nov. 8 on the question of accepting Section III of Chapter 41 of the General Laws providing vacations for laborers and mechanics who work for the City of Newton. Employees in other departments of this city have for years been accorded vacations with pay. We believe that the employees of the Street, Water and other departments are entitled to two weeks' vacations.

We shall vote "Yes" on the questions of granting liquor licenses in Newton. While we respect the sincerity of those who abhor alcoholic beverages of all kinds, the fact remains that the human race has drunk such beverages since history was first recorded and the "noble experiment" of prohibition in this country proved a dismal failure. We believe it is better for Newton to have liquor sold here legally than illegally, and it is preferable for residents of this city to have the opportunity to obtain a couple of glasses of ale here when they want it, rather than to travel to Boston, Brighton, Waltham or other places to drink more than they should. If Newton votes "No" on the license question, it will result in a renewal of bootlegging in this city, and the consumption of cheap, "high voltage" alcohol instead of ale, by many residents of the Newtons.

In this column last week we condemned the action of the trustees of the Newton Free Library for authorizing the printing of thousands of cards (in book mark form) for the purpose of having these cards inserted in books distributed by the library and its branches, or placed conspicuously on counters at the various libraries. The cards contain an appeal to the patrons of the library to vote against the referendum which will appear on the ballot at the election next Tuesday relative to the employment of married women in public service. We stated explicitly that we would not take issue, either for or against the referendum, but that our criticism was based on the action of the trustees in permitting the Free Library, and its branches, a public building, to be used for the dissemination of propaganda in connection with an election, and to have the librarian and his assistants engaged in this political activity while on duty and being paid by the taxpayers of Newton as public employees. We contended that if the School Committee imitated the action of the Library Trustees, teachers in our public schools would be engaged in similar political activity, and we asked—"Where would this new political practice end?"

We spoke with Mayor Childs regarding the political activity on the part of the Library Trustees, the librarian and his assistants on time paid for by the city. The Mayor said he would take the matter up with the trustees.

and he did confer with one, who strongly disapproved of the activity. But, the Mayor did not protest to the Chairman of the Trustees, nor did he order the activity stopped, as the writer and others think he should have done. Mayor Childs says that while he disapproves of the method used by the trustees, believes it is setting a dangerous precedent, and is more apt to hurt than help the cause for which it is intended, he does not desire to interfere with the appointed boards or commissions of the city.

In this week's GRAPHIC are letters from two of the Library Trustees. One is from Mrs. Virginia M. Hutchinson, who is president of the Board of Trustees. With the exception of the last paragraph of Mrs. Hutchinson's letter, she does not deal with the issue on which we based our criticism. We did not argue on the question of barring married women from public service. In the last paragraph of her letter, Mrs. Hutchinson says—"If a measure affecting the library came before the Legislature, no one would question the propriety of our asking our Representative to vote in our favor. If it came before the City Government we would appear before the Aldermen." Certainly no one would question the propriety of the Library Trustees, or the library employees to do either of these things. Mrs. Hutchinson ends her letter with the question—"With a referendum where the decision rests with the public, what recourse is there but to appeal to the public?" Of course the recourse is to appeal to the public. But not by using a public building, publicly-owned library books, and time paid for by taxpayers for the performance of public duties. If the library trustees and the library employees wanted to appeal to the public, they should have done what the city laborers of Newton did the past few weeks. The laborers are interested in another referendum which will also appear on the ballot next Tuesday—the question of granting them an annual vacation of two weeks. But the laborers did not resort to the use of city property and time paid by the taxpayers to appeal to the public. The laborers of the City of Newton paid themselves for the printing of circulars and placards advocating a "Yes" vote on the vacation referendum, and had this literature distributed at their own expense and time.

The other letter from a Library Trustee on this matter is that from James P. Gallagher. It is concise and to the point. Mr. Gallagher was not present at the meeting of the trustees when it was voted to engage in the political activity which we condemn. He strongly disapproves of the action of his fellow trustees. Another of the trustees who was not present was Judge Thomas Weston, but he subsequently approved of the action. The other members of the Board of Library Trustees are Mrs. Hutchinson, Vincent P. Roberts and Guy Winslow.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

By L. D. G. BENTLEY

Keeps Out of Trouble

It is getting to the stage that we can talk of little else than next Tuesday's election. To many the outcome seems a question; at least they prefer to introduce the topic that way. "How do you think it's going?" they ask. Such an opening may lead to an extended debate or even a quarrel unless you adopt some way to avoid possible complications. One man I know invariably answers, "Nothing to it." He tells me the questioner is always satisfied, believing that it is in his favor when actually the reply is intended to evade giving an opinion.

May Decide for Themselves

There are so many important matters to be decided next Tuesday when we go into the polling booth that I'm not as excited as some people over the question of whether the Representative from this district shall be instructed to vote for legislation barring married women from public jobs. I do not doubt the vital character of the proposal but I do know that a vote to "instruct" a legislator doesn't bind him in the least unless he chooses. I have observed on more than one occasion a Representative refuse to vote as he had been "instructed" under the "public opinion" law and as it turned out there was nothing to be done about it except to see that he was opposed for re-election. I am not urging anybody to ignore the wishes of their constituents but I recall events of the past so clearly that the present agitation doesn't impress me very deeply.

Fireside Spats

Somehow family visits, neighborhood calls and similar pleasant gatherings, where men and women sit around and talk and do nothing else, have a way of developing problems as to dates of this or that event. By merely observing that "Aunt Hattie sold her house—went to live with her son" in such-and-such a year it is possible to start a controversy that may last all the evening. Immediately there will be a disagreement as to the time it happened and some pretty mean things are apt to be said without settling anything.

As soon as one of the party starts reminiscing, there is a general shaking of the date-tree. "Let's see, what year was that?" From each side of the room will come in reply a different year and with that the fun begins. The query is seldom an important one and usually instead of an historical date that is easy to look up the event under discussion is obscure and not possible of determination without considerable effort. I have never been able to comprehend why meetings such as these should turn into research expeditions, but I have about concluded it's the weakness of the human race.

All Up for New England!

It was my pleasure to experience that thrill of local pride that comes when New Englanders introduce a visitor to one of the many good things to eat for which our region is justly famous. A man from California was my guest and trustingly placed his gastronomic future in my hands. Cheerfully he agreed to try steamed clams, pledging his word that if they did not appeal he would promptly inform me. The restaurant was patronized has a widespread and enviable reputation for the excellence of its food if not for the elegance of its service.

The first sight of steamed clams in his life was such as to impress my friend and I observed how closely he studied them. The dish of melted butter and cup of hot clam water, one on each side, added to his perplexity. I was about to deliver a brief lecture on the science of devouring steamed clams when the waitress, a veteran employee, asked, "Don't they look good?" Then she was told that here was a Californian who was making his debut as a clam-eater. "Here's the way you eat 'em," said she, and with that she proceeded with a course of comprehensive instruction which he followed. In order there may be no further suspense let me say that he found steamed clams delightful and is eating them regularly.

Voter, Take Your Time!

Please do not get the impression that this week's column is packed, or at least partly filled with advice. Conscious of my own weakness I hesitate to counsel even my most intimate friends. Nevertheless I am going to make bold and urge that every voter see to it that he votes early and also that he votes slowly. Maybe the suggestion that time be given to marking a ballot is new. It's a good tip and those who follow it will agree. Votes are too precious now to be marked carelessly. There's plenty of time and even if the polls are crowded you are not called upon to hurry. Read the ballot first then be sure you have placed a cross in the proper square and nowhere else. VOTE SLOWLY.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS

VACATIONS

At the Annual Election to be held November 8, 1938, the following will appear on the ballot:

"Shall Section one hundred and eleven of Chapter forty-one of the General Laws, providing for vacations for certain municipal employees be accepted?"

We believe that in fairness to the common laborer, skilled laborer, mechanic or craftsman that we are entitled to a vacation.

In our city we are the only group that do not get the vacation and so we are asking our friends to join us in making a successful campaign so that we can enjoy the same privilege.

Vote YES on this question and do someone some good. There are thirty-nine cities in the State and thirty-five now enjoy two weeks' vacation.

There are 210 towns in the State and 173 have accepted the Act.

All of the Metropolitan District Commission employees also enjoy vacations.

Sheriff JOSEPH M. McELROY
Candidate for RE-ELECTION
MERITS A WELL-DESERVED SECOND TERM

He has been an outstandingly successful public servant. Under his supervision our County's penal institutions have received the highest Federal and State ratings. We enjoy the minimum County tax-rate because SHERIFF McELROY has not only operated within his budgets, but has returned to the county treasury each year from $4,000 to $12,000 in unexpended balances. His humane, efficient handling of penal and executive problems has brought Middlesex the acclaim of parole and prison authorities.

A GOOD SHERIFF IS NOT MADE OVER NIGHT!

Sheriff McElroy's widely recognized abilities have been gained through long years of EXPERIENCE. He entered the county's service as a prison guard and worked his way up through the various grades. Four years ago, he was elected as Sheriff. We submit that his RECORD OF HONEST, HUMANE AND ECONOMICAL SERVICE MERITS A 2nd TERM.

Thoughtful citizens are urged to contrast Sheriff McElroy's splendid record of service and accomplishment with that of his opponent, whose occupation as a salesman has given him no experience or insight, whatsoever, into the extremely technical and involved duties of the Sheriffship.

SHERIFF McELROY IS ENDORSED, AND HIS RE-ELECTION IS URGED BY:

Keller, Chairman of the Membership Committee.

Mrs. John J. ## WOMEN'S CLUB ACTIVITIES

Edited by EMMA D. COOLIDGE

Education Luncheon Conference

The State division of Education, of which Mrs. Harlan T. Stetson is chairman, is to have a Luncheon-Conference at the Hotel Lenox, Boston, on Monday, November 14, at 1 o'clock. Applications for tickets, which are $1.25 each, should be made to Mrs. Jewell B. Knight, 11 Kipling rd., Wellesley Hills, before the 12th of November.

The topic of the Conference promises some interesting discussions of new ideas for the education of children, and for college requirements, showing the changes which are occurring through problems of this more complex world in which we are now living. Speakers on these "Modern Trends in Education" will include President Bancroft Beasley, of Simmons College; Mr. W. Linwood Chase, headmaster of the Newton Country Day School; Mr. John B. Wood, principal of Rindge Technical High School; Miss Mildred B. Harrison, director of Guidance and Research in the Quincy Public Schools; and Mrs. John H. Kimball, General Federation director.

Press Conference

Members of Press and Publicity committees of Federated clubs and all others interested in how to obtain newspaper publicity for their organizations are invited to attend a Press Conference to be held in the Auditorium of the Herald-Traveler building, 80 Mason st., Boston, on Tuesday afternoon, November 15, under the auspices of the Women's Club department of "The Boston Herald" and of the Press and Publicity department of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

New Junior Club Organized At Newtonville

Organization of a Junior Club in the Newtonville Woman's Club took place at the home of Mrs. Thomas G. Walters, a sponsor, 16 Randlett park, West Newton, Tuesday evening, at 8 p. m., November 1. The girls present were: Louise Balch, Doris Carey, Betty Jaffer, Vivian Weed, Phyllis J. Stafford, Jane Arend, E. Fredede Littlefield, Patricia Spaulding, Olive Guilford, Dorothy Shea Knox, Caro Stevenson, Sigrid E. Moller, Eleanor Hanlon, Bette Stockwell, Ruth McKusick, Helen Hayden, Marguerite Mergendahl, Dorothy Rennard, Irma Bryson, Marjorie Gilbert, and Louise Tardiel.

Mrs. Walters first introduced the president of the Newtonville Woman's Club, Mrs. George H. Tracy, who spoke a few cordial words of welcome to the Group, stating that it had been her desire for a long time to see this Junior Club established, and that she hoped it would be the most flourishing one in Newton. Mrs. Walters then called for nominations which were made from the floor and the other sponsor, Mrs. John R. Tolman, passed the ballots. Louise Balch was elected president and took the chair, and the following officers then were elected: Vice-president, Fredede Littlefield; secretary, Phyllis J. Stafford; treasurer, Dorothy Rennard; Philanthropic chairman, Louise Tardiel; Social chairman, Barbara Tolman; Publicity chairman, Bette Stockwell; Program, Eleanor Hanlon; Drama and Wit, Carol Stevenson; and By-Laws, Sigrid Moller. The president, Miss Balch, told the Club members the project for the year would be sending underprivileged children to camp next summer by raising money in the Club. Club fees and contests were discussed, and after refreshments were served, the members adjourned, to meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. John R. Tolman, 85 Elm rd., Newtonville.

TIMELY TALK ON CHINA. Karl Robinson will give his unusual and interesting lecture on Wednesday, November 10, before the Newton Community Club, at their meeting which opens at 2 o'clock in Underwood School Hall. He has spent nine years in China actively engaged as a merchant in the distribution of "oil for the lamps of China," and in his lecture entitled "Reflections of China in the American Mirror" he presents a picture of the various aspects of Chinese character, and some of the wisest and most interesting individuality takes when thrown against this background. He accompanies this with a fine set of colored slides, and he will display many articles and materials which will not only add color to the platform, but to his address as well.

BRIDGE AND FASHION SHOW. Mrs. Henry I. Harriman is opening her home at 825 Centre st. for the Annual Philanthropic Bridge of the Newton Community Club on Monday, November 7, at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Allan N. Kee has charge of the dessert which will be served at this hour. A Fashion Show put on by the Sally Wheeler Shop and a Millinery Display by Mrs. Hobbs, of Jones, Peterson, of Boston, will follow, with Mrs. Kendal A. Woodrough as chairman, assisted by Mrs. William W. Colton. Mrs. Paul H. Drake, Jr. and Mrs. Howard Moore will furnish the music on two pianos for the fashion parade.

Mrs. Clarence H. Spike will be in charge of the tickets. Mrs. Thomas Sundberg of taxes; and Mrs. Howard M. Le Sound of prizes. About eighteen Club members will act as models.

ART LECTURE. At the last meeting of the Newton Community Club held in the Underwood School Auditorium on Thursday, October 27, Miss Florence C. Bacon announced during the business session that the first lecture in the Art course would be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Dennison, 132 Farlow rd., November 14, at 10:30 o'clock.

During this same session it was announced that the Fall Rummage Sale of the Club, of which Mrs. Daniel M. Goodridge is chairman, would be held at 229 Washington st., November 4 and 5.

Mrs. Ramon F. Gustin called attention to the Book Club that is being formed. Mrs. Louis J. Hunter spoke of the splendid work that the Community Service committees were doing for the Newton World War Veterans, and asked Club members to take an attractive bag home to fill for them for Christmas.

The program for this meeting on the 27th was given by Mrs. Alice Dixon Bond, who presented a most interesting Book Review of some of the latest books. Her descriptions inspired her hearers with desire to read all of the books she mentioned. Following the program there was a social hour. Mrs. Clarence H. Spike, Mrs. Sterling N. Loveland, Mrs. Frank G. Dennison, and Mrs. Leon M. Lamb presided at the tea-table which was tastefully decorated for Halloween by Mrs. George F. Wilson and Mrs. Charles W. Smith.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Austin Fisher reviewed Phyllis Bottoms' novel "Mortal Storm," and Mrs. Charles Valentine read excerpts from criticisms by Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Edward Weeks on Margaret Halsey's book "With Malice Towards Some."

The program closed with a study of Maxwell Anderson's "Elizabeth, the Queen." Those reading the parts were Mrs. Herman Krueger, Mrs. Edward Gray, Mrs. Maurice Beardsley, Mrs. Ralph Phipps, Mrs. J. H. de Grasse, Mrs. Herbert Haake, Mrs. Eldin Lynn, and Mrs. Charles Valentine. Mrs. Valentine was chairman for the Day.

An hour of sociability while dessert and coffee were being served preceded the business meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club on Tuesday afternoon, October 26. At 2:30 o'clock, the president of the Club, Mrs. James Dunlop, welcomed the members, thirty-four of whom are new this year.

On the stage with the present were the following chairmen: Mrs. William W. Edson, American Home; Mrs. Ashley L. Wright, Community Service and Co-operation with War Veterans; Mrs. Edmund I. Wilson, Conservation; Mrs. Arthur G. Robinson, International Relations, and Mrs. Arthur W. Descoe, Legislation.

Mrs. Wright made a plea for the Clothing Drive which the Newton Federation again is sponsoring. She also asked for donations for the coming Treasure Sale to be held by the Hospital Aid Benefit Shop Committee on the 17th and 18th of November at 53 Union st., Newton Centre.

Mrs. Wilson reported on the splendid work done against "Rag-Weed" during the summer months. The other chairmen gave notices of coming events pertaining to their respective committees.

Mrs. Bradley L. Hill, Day chairman, then introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mr. Ralph Rogers, who has charge of the courses in Radio at Boston University. Mr. Rogers was one of the pioneers in the early days of radio, and he amused his audience with the story of his first appearance before the "mike" under Bob Emery at Medford Hillside. The "Mr. and Mrs." programs were among his contributions to the air, and were heard about five years. He emphasized the fact that the radio could be most instructive while entertaining; and that the listener might become familiar with music from the best of composers, hear correct speech, and learn what is happening all over the world.

Attention of the Community Service Glee Club members is called to the fact that the place of rehearsal has been changed. During the rest of November these will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilson Dort, 342 Otis st., West Newton, on Thursday mornings at 10 o'clock. This active group is preparing music for the Christmas meeting of the Community Service Club to supplement an original play written and to be produced by Hortense Creede Rallsback.

Many members of the Community Service Club of West Newton attended Mrs. Alice Dixon Bond's first Book Reading in the new fall series on Thursday morning, October 27, and the next morning a large audience of Club members greeted Mrs. Claude U. Gilson at the first of Friday morning lectures on Current Events. It is evident that among clubwomen there is growing enthusiasm for these two educational projects which bring to the membership much of timely interest.

With the manner in which she interprets contemporary books and stimulates the interest of prospective readers. Although an expectant audience gathered for Mrs. Gilson's comments on European situations of the moment, it was not altogether prepared for some of the startling revelations which she brought. Briefly Mrs. Gilson pointed out that "Munch" had begun a new and different world and that Americans must face the fact that something had happened to us here as well. During a question period that followed the lecture, several questions from the floor added much to the intense interest of the gathering. Mrs. Gilson's next lecture will be on November 11 in the Unitarian Parish House at 10:30 a. m.

Newtonville Woman's Club

"World News Mornings," by Mrs.

Frank Mansfield Taylor, is the title of the series of five stimulating lectures to be given, beginning Thursday, November 10, at 10:30 a. m., at the Club House of the Newtonville Woman's Club. At a special price members may take advantage of this series by calling the chairman of International Relations and Current Events, Mrs. Paul E. Ellicker, telephone, West Newton 1784M. The course is open also to the public at a reasonable price.

Colorful autumn leaves, silvery icicles, and perky pink roses appropriately suggested the changing seasons at the Bazaar of the Months put on by the Newtonville Woman's Club, Wednesday, October 26. From 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. customers thronged the gay little shops where gifts to suit every purse were displayed attractively. The children delighted in the large grab box effectively arranged for them on the stage of the Hall. At noon Club members and also many guests enjoyed a delicious luncheon, and again at night members and the men as guests found the steak dinner most satisfying, and served very efficiently by Club members as waitresses. The rose arbor for afternoon tea proved a delightful spot to rest and chat while dainty refreshments were served.

In the evening a short comedy "They're None of Them Perfect," by Sophie Kerr, was given in the Auditorium and the clever lines and splendid acting of the cast, composed of Club members, and ably coached by Mrs. Charles H. Abrams, Jr., greatly amused the audience. The theme of the play dealt humorously with the minor shortcomings of husbands as seen by their wives and exhibited as a warning to the engaged girl. The cast included Mrs. Ernest W. Kuebler, Mrs. Arthur E. Spence, Mrs. Paul (Continued on page 9)

The Liquor Question . . .

- In the light of experience prohibition was a failure because it attempted to do the impossible—take away by legislation the exercise of a natural right of man.
- As long as grain can be distilled and grapes pressed, Alcoholic Beverages will be sought and used by the general public. If this industry is not permitted to exist legally it will exist illegally with far more detriment to the community. What we can see and reach we can control; what is hidden and secret we cannot control.
- In these days of business recovery when the question of making municipal income balance with public expense is a difficult one, where is the advantage of outlawing, at increased expense, an industry that directly or indirectly affects the employment of several hundred people, contributes well over $30,000 in fees and taxes to the city, yields an annual rental to real estate owners of $55,000, dispenses a payroll in excess of $175,000 annually?
- Vigorous community business depends upon employment, payrolls, purchasing power. Eliminating the alcoholic beverage industry naturally will react on all businesses because it narrows down purchasing power, not only by a drop in employment but by a shift in the business of that portion of the community accustomed to the purchasing of alcoholic beverages.
- Is it logical to think that Newton residents accustomed to purchase liquors will change habits of living because their own community cannot supply their needs? The experience of many years past indicates that they will direct their shopping tour to neighboring communities where all their needs can be supplied, thus depriving all local merchants of commerce rightfully theirs. With the modern facility of the automobile this effect can only be intensified.
- These perfectly logical and normal facts are presented for the benefit of thinking citizens who are necessarily interested in the question of community prosperity, municipal income and their relation to the individual.

Letters To The Editor

OPPOSING POLITICAL ACTION

Editor, Newton Graphic,
Newton, Massachusetts.

Dear Editor:
As a Trustee of the Newton Free Library, I deplore the circularization of Library patrons by the Trustees, whether it be for or against proposed legislation.

Least anyone be misled by the recent action of the Board, permit me to say that I shall vote "yes" on the action of instructing our Representatives to support legislation barring from public employment married women whose husbands are employed.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES P. GALLAGHER

MARRIED WOMEN

November 3, 1938.

To the Editor:

The Trustees of the Newton Free Library hoped that their action in asking their readers to help them maintain the unimpaired efficiency of the Library through voting against the referendum that would bar from public employment all married women with employed husbands would need no explanation.

The Newton Library is exceedingly fortunate in being in a city where the public institutions are under no political domination in the filling of positions. The Trustees have been always free to fill vacancies with the best person available. Occasionally it has been a married woman, and among our married employees are some of our most valued workers. Our secretary, who has been in the Library's employ for many years, was married two years ago with the expressed understanding that she should continue her work with us. We have young women whose marriage might be abandoned or postponed if it meant a loss of job. The Trustees, under a rule barring married women, might well have the unpleasant experience of discovering a secret marriage among the staff. Our Children's Librarian, a married woman with no children of her own, has made a delightful centre for children's reading in our Boys' and Girls' Library, and has done much to cultivate a taste for reading in all our youthful public. With so much to lose, and with the knowledge that many people did not realize that institutions like schools and libraries would be affected by this referendum, it seemed hardly fair to the reading public to leave them unaware of the influence of their vote on our welfare.

We wonder if the proponents of this measure would have us carry their principle to its logical conclusion. There are many women writers unable to earn a living. Should we have refused to buy our hundred copies of "Gone with the Wind" since Margaret Mitchell has an employed husband, and should we now keep from our shelves Anne Lindbergh's charming "Listen! the Wind"? Should not the public be warned that the Library might cease to be run primarily for them?

If a measure affecting the Library came before the Legislature no one would question the propriety of our asking our Representatives to vote in our favor. If it came before the City Government we would appear before the Aldermen. With a referendum where the decision rests with the public what recourse is there but to appeal to the public?

VIRGINIA M. HUTCHINSON,
Trustee, Newton Free Library.

LICENSE A DETRIMENT

The Editor, Newton Graphic,
Dear Sir:

I want to share with you and through you with the citizens of Newton the facts concerning the license situation in our city. There is a large group of citizens who are greatly disturbed by the increasing seriousness of the problem. These facts show conclusively that the granting of licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages in Newton is not only a detriment to the morals of the community but causes a serious loss to the taxpayers. This loss is over and above the income received from license fees. The Newton Civic Council has been organized to bring Newton into the no-license class and asks for the support of all the citizens of Newton who desire to make our city a better and more wholesome place for ourselves and for our children.

Very sincerely yours,
MARK H. WARD, M.D.,
President.

GAMBLING DESTRUCTIVE

To the Editor:

May I approve and applaud your counsel to voters on parimutuel betting and liquor licenses?

Horse and dog racing may tend to improve equine and canine breeds. But it is the breed of men that is of supreme importance. Gambling destroys manhood. The gambler trusts to luck when he should depend on his own strength and knowledge and steadfastness of will. Massachusetts will be better to live in without the race-tracks.

And Newton will be better to live in without places where poisonous beverages are sold. We are proud of our beautiful city of homes. We shall be more proud when its citizens give a majority vote for no license of the traffic in alcoholic drink.

The daily papers print seductive advertisements of the joys of whiskey. I am glad that I do not find such in the NEWTON GRAPHIC. The fact that alcohol is a poison should not be forgotten or overlooked. Every bottle of wine, beer, whiskey, gin or brandy should have on its label in large letters the word POISON, and under that word an accurate statement like this: "Containing . . . per cent of alcohol, a dangerous, habit-forming drug."

Police and Firemen
Busy on Hallowe'en

While vandalism and malicious mischief was not so rampant in Newton on Hallowe'en, Monday night, as it was in other communities, it was more in evidence than in some recent years. Nonantum again proved itself to be one of the most orderly districts of the city; the only damage reported from that section was the destruction of goal posts at Allison Park. In Waban a large number of street lights were broken, many of them by boys with air rifles. In that section also many ash barrels and rubbish barrels were tipped over and their contents scattered on streets. Police ascertained the identity of some of the Waban boys who broke the street lights. Hundreds of store windows, in addition to windows on houses and automobiles, were smeared with soap. One instance of malicious mischief which will land the one responsible in court, if the police apprehend him, was the daubing on the car of Lt. Col. Ryan of Brookline, a broad stripe of white paint. Ryan's car was parked outside the State Armory at West Newton, while he was engaged in his official duties with the 101st Quartermaster's Regiment there.

Four false fire alarms were pulled during the evening and night, three of them in the Auburndale district. At 4:54 p. m., Box 443 at Melrose st., Auburndale; at 7:24 p. m., Box 819 at Chestnut Hill ave.; at 7:44 p. m., Box 437 at the Burr School, and at 9:13 p. m., Box 482 at Orris st. In addition to answering the false alarms, the firemen were called out several times by telephone calls to extinguish fires which had been started in piles of leaves along streets.

F. A. Wetherbee of
Newton Honored

Frederic A. Wetherbee of 211 Bellevue st., Newton, one of this city's oldest residents, was honored last week at a luncheon held in his honor in New York City by President Smith of The Home Insurance Company. In recognition of Mr. Wetherbee's continuous service of 50 years with the company, he was presented with a gold medal by Wilfred Kurth, chairman of the board of directors of the company, and himself a veteran of 37 years' service. At present Mr. Wetherbee is State Agent for the company and goes to his office in Boston every day. He was born at Newton Corner 87 years ago last July, and is one of the oldest natives of this city.

Aldermen Refuse
Several Claims

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night several claims were given leave to withdraw. The claim of Frederick O'Connor for damage to his property at 55 College rd., Chestnut Hill, allegedly caused by blasting while a sewer was being excavated, was labelled "No action necessary because suit has been brought against the city." Damages asked for by Muriel Morrison of 45 Caroline Park, Newton Highlands, and Frederick Stillman of 66 College rd., also allegedly caused by blasting, were also given leave to withdraw. The Alderman Rawson, chairman of the Claims Committee, stated that the Sewer Department has been using unusual care in blasting, and had been blasting only small charges of dynamite to assure no damage to property from this cause. Other claims turned down were those of Mrs. Lillian Kenway of Hollis st. for injuries received when she fell on the sidewalk in front of 430 Centre st. because the city contends there was no defect there; that of John McDonald for damage to his car by collision with the Free Library truck, because the evidence does not show that the plaintiff used due care; that of Norman Shipley for damage to his automobile caused by an alleged defect on Summit st., Newton; and the claim of Mrs. William Humphrey for damage to her clothing caused by tripping on a water gate at Adams ave.

The Board received a petition from Frank Battles asking that he be given a permit to install tanks at 208-214 Washington st. to store 1000 gallons of gasoline, and to install pumps inside the building for the sale of the fuel. An offer from Mrs. Marshall for the purchase of city owned land on Elliot st., Newton Highlands was refused.

Appropriations made by the Board included—Law Department, damages paid to Security Mills, Monroe st., Newtonville, for loss caused by breaking of water main on Blake st. last winter, $4800; Louis Watson, additional payment for taking of land in connection with new playground near Albermarle rd., $121; Street Department for excess expenditures for truck hire following hurricane, $4941; Street Department, care of trees, $4600; Water Department, eliminating dead ends on Dorset rd., Windevere rd., Commonwealth ave., $2255; for tools to clear water reservation of fallen trees, $1000; reconstructing Hammond Brook from Garland rd. to Charlotte rd., $13,500; reconstructing Paul Brook from Jackson st. to Boylston st., $4000; Street Department, deficit bills for two snowfalls, $690; tools and equipment, $2000; traffic signs, $2000; Soldiers' Relief, $12,000.

Watertown Boy
Keeps Police Busy

A 15 year old boy residing on Summer st., Watertown broke the law sufficiently last Saturday and Monday to end up in confinement, after he had been once caught and released in the custody of his parents. Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock as Daniel Cronin of Cambridge approached his parked car on Newtonville ave., near Walnut st., Newtonville, the boy jumped into Cronin's automobile and drove off. Cronin hastened to Patrolman Marshall who was on traffic duty nearby and told of the theft. Marshall commanded a truck and started in pursuit. Traffic Officer Dowling happened along on his motorcycle and Patrolman Marshall shouted to him to pursue the fleeing car. Along Walnut st., Dexter rd., Mill and Centre sts., Dowling pursued the automobile thief, until at Franklin st., he was forced to stop to avoid colliding with a car, and the youthful auto thief shook off the pursuit. But not for long. He passed several cars on Centre st. and sped into Wesley st. and reckless speed that he attracted the attention of Patrolman Connolly who was near. Connolly walked into short, roundabout Wesley st., nabbed the youth who had alighted from the stolen car, found he had no license, and placed him under arrest.

Taken to Newton police headquarters, the boy was released in the custody of his parents, after having been booked on the charge of using an automobile without authority. He was ordered to appear in the Newton court on Monday. He did not appear, and on Monday night he was again arrested, this time by Worcester police on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. Tuesday he was returned to the Lyman School—from which he was on parole.

Saltonstall Rally At
Nonantum Nov. 4

Tonight at Columbus Hall, Nonantum a rally will be held in the interest of Leverett Saltonstall and the entire Republican ticket. John Finelli will preside and the speakers will include Judge Robert Curran of Chestnut Hill, Stephen Baclgalupo, former Assistant Attorney General, and many of the Republican candidates.

A group of Newton citizens, including Republicans, Democrats and Independents are working for the election of Mr. Saltonstall because he is not only a Newton boy whose election would add to local pride, but because knowing him personally, they realize that his high character will assure Massachusetts of an excellent administration should he be elected Governor. Included in this group are John Finelli, Arthur Crane and Mrs. Helen Arata.

Aldermen Make
Recommendations

Department office and the No. 3 slip to be retained for reference by the supervisor or foreman.

To provide a means to enable the heads of departments daily to check the unexpended balance of all appropriations, and thereby eliminate all expenditures beyond appropriations we recommend:

That a departmental record be required in each department showing the unexpended balance of each appropriation. That when liabilities are incurred an order or form memorandum be made giving the amount of such liability where known and estimating the amount of the liability where unknown and that the balance or estimated balance on all appropriations be figured daily for the information of the heads of departments.

We further recommend:

That the duty of maintaining this record be assigned to some one individual in each department who shall be responsible therefor and that any member of such department authorized to incur a liability shall be held responsible that such memorandum of liability incurred is daily transmitted to the one in charge of this record.

To provide a reliable record of city property loaned to those working for the city we recommend:

That the Street Department and other departments of the City which make a practice of loaning equipment to individuals or concerns who do work for the City establish a practice of requiring receipts for such equipment when loaned, said receipts to be surrendered when the equipment is returned in order that a permanent record may exist at all times of city property not in the city's hands.

To assist in understanding the needs of the Street or other departments for new equipment and appropriation for equipment repair in the 1939 Budget we recommend:

That an immediate inventory of all rolling stock and equipment of the various departments of the City be made and that this inventory shall contain the following information:

1. Age of equipment
2. Condition of equipment
3. Estimated cost of repairs necessary in 1939
4. Kind and cost of repairs in 1938
5. Cost of repairs on equipment in 1937
6. Where repairs are made
7. Original cost of the equipment
8. Present location of equipment.

To aid in handling our Traffic Lights more economically and efficiently we recommend:

That the servicing and adjustment of our traffic lights if it is legal to do so be placed under the control of the Wire Department who under our charter have the duty of servicing and maintaining all wires and cables.

Respectfully submitted,
MAXWELL P. GADDIS,
GEORGE E. LAWSON,
CARL F. SCHIFFER, JR.,
CLARENCE C. COLBY,
Chairman.

Boy In Cart
Runs Into Truck

A pushmobile race between a group of Waban boys ended disastrously for one of the contestants Saturday afternoon when the home made cart in which John Salters, 15, of 225 Varick rd. was riding, collided at the corner of that street and Waban ave. with a truck driven by Paul Burns of 431 Parker st., Newton Centre. Young Salters received a cut on his right knee and was taken to the Newton Hospital by Burns. The latter reported that as he approached the intersection of the two streets, he observed some boys riding down the steep grade in their carts. He swerved his truck and stopped it in an effort to avoid a collision, but Salters' cart collided with the larger vehicle.

Bag Snatcher
At Newtonville

That bold, brave type of bandit who specializes in snatching bags from women on lonely streets, made his appearance in Newtonville last Sunday night. As Cora M. Barker of 32 Jefferson st., Newton was walking along Lowell ave. near Austin st. shortly before 10 o'clock, a youth approached, grabbed the handbag and fled so quickly that Miss Barker could give no description of him to the police.

Politicallights

those young men upon whom rests the future of the Democratic party in this state." Republican candidate Clarence E. Barnes of Mansfield has delicately criticized Dever for his failure to act in concluding the Graves case in which Curley and Santuosso were ordered to pay back to the city funds allegedly received in the General Equipment settlement. And he chided Dever for obtaining a special civil service examination for his brother in connection with an appointment to the M. D. C. He also remarked that the sangsters are not worrying in Revere although Dever obtained grand jury indictment in that city against several persons.

Meanwhile the remainder of the state ticket continues its efforts to recapture or hold the offices which are sought. The campaigns for Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General overshadow by far the contests for secretary of state, treasurer, and auditor. And as is usually the case although the candidates for these offices are capable of standing upon their own feet, they will benefit a great deal from whatever vote is cast for the head of the ticket. One of the factors which may cause the lower part of the Republican state ticket to run considerably behind Saltonstall and Cahill is that many prominent Democrats have openly voiced their opposition to the ticket headed by Saltonstall. There seems to be little doubt that the popular Newton citizen will receive many more Democratic votes than any other gubernatorial G.O.P. candidate since the Fuller campaigns of a decade ago. Many of these votes will also be cast for Horace Cahill for Lieutenant Governor as it is frequently rumored that the Democratic candidate, Joseph Brennan, is not extremely popular in his own party while Mr. Cahill has made many friends in the opposing party during his political career. It is considered likely that after casting their votes for the head of the Republican ticket that many of these Democrats will then vote for the balance of their own party nominees.

Over the coming week-end if other leading Democrats bolt their party leaders, Curley and Brennan, the outcome of the race may be determined. The campaign is at such a point of balance that it will take but very little more to turn the election into a complete rout with Saltonstall and Cahill being easy victors. And as we have already intimated, the ticket of their plurality may depend upon whether or not the entire G. O. P. ticket is swept into office.

In 1936, a presidential year, the total vote in the state exceeded 1,800,000 and it is anticipated this year, despite a heavy increase in the total registered vote that the vote will run approximately 1,650,000. Figures released by the Secretary of State's office show that a record total of slightly more than 2,000,000 voters are on the voting lists.

This brings us to the point of prediction of what we believe will happen next Tuesday. First, however, perhaps we should state that it is our own intention to vote the straight Republican ticket, from top to bottom. We expect that those who remain up Tuesday evening until the returns are in sufficiently to determine a winner will hear that Saltonstall will come close to equalling the victory of Henry Cabot Lodge over Curley in the senatorial contest of two years ago. In other words we figure Saltonstall's margin at nearly 140,000 and if the threatened landslide occurs it might easily exceed this figure. Many of our readers and friends will say that we are going way out on a limb on this but we will not back track on it.

The Cahill margin over Brennan should run slightly behind that of Saltonstall over Curley and we place the Brainaire candidate's vote at about 100,000 over his opponent. Coming down to the contest of Secretary of State it is apparent that the Democratic nominee, Mrs. Katherine Foley of Lawrence, is the strongest candidate of her party. In a campaign against the popular veteran Republican officeholder, Frederick W. Cook of Somerville, there is little chance that she will replace him unless the unbelievable happens and it turns out to be another Democratic landslide like that of 1924. Cook to win by slightly less than 100,000, his margin over Santuosso in 1936.

William E. Hurley, the Republican, has nothing to fear from Democratic nominee Owen A. Gallagher. This Gallagher is not the popular former State Senator but a former Representative who was not extremely popular with his fellow Democrats in the lower legislative branch. Hurley's margin should be considerably over 100,000.

The auditorship is a close contest. As we move down from the head of the ticket we find the present Democratic office holders strong enough to have a good chance of holding their offices. Tom Buckley must be given an edge over Russell Wood although that edge may be reduced from the 63,000 of two years ago to around 25,000. Wood's chances depend greatly upon the size of the Saltonstall plurality and if it is upwards of 140,000 the Republican nominee may be in.

A similar situation occurs in the contest for Attorney General. Two years ago Dever polled 915,000 to lead his ticket against 802,000 for Felix Forte, the Republican nominee. There seems little doubt that Clarence Barnes has made a more vigorous campaign this year for the Republican cause and it may bring decisive results. A margin of 100,000 votes, however, is something of a handicap to overcome. If many Democrats vote the entire Republican ticket, which is doubtful, Barnes has a chance. Dever, however, will know that he has been in a battle and may come out with less than 50,000 lead.

The 9th Congressional district fight between Robert Luce and Thomas Elliot is attracting considerable attention. Luce should win, but his margin of 9,000 which he polled over Richard Russell two years ago, will be reduced. Our guess is Luce by about 4,000.

Councilor Brooks should have little difficulty in the normally Republican third district. He will be returned to serve on Governor Saltonstall's Council by a plurality of at least 30,000.

The District Attorney contest should be all Bradford despite the desertion of former Republican D. A. Warren L. Bishop and his support of Curley and Democratic D. A. candidate Joseph Carroll of Belmont. In Middlesex County the Republicans should regain the County Commissionership now held by Thomas B. Brennan of Medford by the election of Charles C. Warren of Arlington. Sheriff Joseph McElroy will be re-elected as will clerk of courts, Frederick L. Putnam.

In the legislative contests which concern Newton present Senator Arthur W. Hollis will be returned over the Democratic candidate from Framingham, Joseph Sleeper. With no Democratic opponents the Republican nominees in the 5th Middlesex district, Representative Douglass B. Francis and ex-Alderman Paul N. Goddard, are assured of re-election although we understand that a Union Party candidate qualified as a nominee when his name was written in on primary ballots. Representative William B. Baker and Warren K. Brimblecom, having disposed of Democratic candidate Alfred Guzzi two years ago, should be returned over Guzzi and his running mate, Robert Allen, in a district which is normally two to one Republican.

Last week we wrote that not only are the library trustees wrong from an ethical viewpoint in the method used in printing and distributing the propaganda against the referendum, but probably have no legal right to do so. Chapter 55, Section 30 of the General Laws of Massachusetts reads as follows: "No person in the service of the Commonwealth or of any county, city or town shall use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or body, or to interfere with any election." The notation alongside this section reads: "Use of official authority or influence to affect political action forbidden." Are the library trustees and Librarian Julius Lutch interfering with an election and attempting to affect political action by the use of the Newton Free Library for the dissemination of propaganda in connection with the referendum?

The Boston Post on Thursday contained this editorial:

BOOKMARK PROPAGANDA

Of itself, the episode in Newton wherein bookmarks containing political arguments were distributed with books of the Newton Free Library is minor, but as a matter of principle the situation is of significance. In this case the bookmark pleaded for a vote to keep the library free of alleged outside interference and to retain the services of married women of the library staff. The right or wrong of this plea is of no moment. The point is that it did not belong in bookmarks coming out of the library. It is to be seen from this what might happen if other institutions employed the public equipment and machinery for the pleading of their own special causes. It is precisely this phase of publicity in the national sphere which has attracted so much unfavorable criticism.

The contest for Governor in next Tuesday's election is one of the most bitter for many years. Mr. Curley's foes, and they are legion, thought he was dead and buried after his two defeats in the past two years, but he is proving himself to be a very energetic corpse. He and his cohorts claim he will win by a large majority. Mr. Saltonstall's supporters assert that their candidate will prevail. Mr. Curley has been boasting. Personally we believe that the election will be close. Although many thousands of Democrats through the State will not vote for Curley, that political illusionist by concentrating on labor issues, will obtain the support of a large number of who do not like many of his past political acts. Although the orator from Jamaica Plain did not (and could not) keep his promise to return four years ago that he would put the unemployed in this State back to work if elected Governor, thousands will again vote for him on this same buncombe.

The bogey of the "New Deal" is being used by Congressman Luce and his supporters in the endeavor to assure his election over his opponent, Thomas Elliot of Cambridge. While we do not approve of all the political principles and acts of President Roosevelt, loosely referred to as the "New Deal," many Republicans, even members of Congress, have approved and do approve some of the President's efforts to lead this country out of the economic chaos for which the "Old Dealers" were to a large degree responsible. It is not convincing to attempt to vilifyate Mr. Luce's opposition to the Wages and Hour Law because that law has caused certain Southern industries to be temporarily suspended. These industries, conducted on a peon like basis, were among those which the Wage-Hour Law is intended to raise to an American standard. We have faith enough in Tom Elliot, in his character and training, to believe that he will, if elected, not be a demagogic, servile tool who will do the bidding of any politicians, however powerful. We believe that he has sufficient intelligence, manhood and patriotism to act and vote conscientiously to the end that all the people of this country, both the haves and the have-nots, will get a "square deal."

The contest for Governor in next Tuesday's election is one of the most bitter for many years. Mr. Curley's foes, and they are legion, thought he was dead and buried after his two defeats in the past two years, but he is proving himself to be a very energetic corpse. He and his cohorts claim he will win by a large majority. Mr. Saltonstall's supporters assert that their candidate will prevail. Mr. Curley has been boasting. Personally we believe that the election will be close. Although many thousands of Democrats through the State will not vote for Curley, that political illusionist by concentrating on labor issues, will obtain the support of a large number of who do not like many of his past political acts. Although the orator from Jamaica Plain did not (and could not) keep his promise to return four years ago that he would put the unemployed in this State back to work if elected Governor, thousands will again vote for him on this same buncombe.

...for Looks and Luxury...at Low Cost!

LA SALLE IS OUT IN FRONT AGAIN—further than ever!

Just a glance—and you will know that it leads in looks. From its narrow, racing-type radiator to the tastefully-fashioned tail light—it has no counterpart among cars of its price. And, of course, being a Cadillac product, it rides and performs like no other car in its field. It is luxury personified—not only in its comfort and handling ease, but in the beauty and richness of its interiors as well.

Plainly, if you intend to spend as much as a thousand dollars for your next car, you ought to see the LaSalle. You can learn in thirty minutes why it's the "hit" car of the year!

West Newton Women's Educational Club

The regular meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club was held on Friday, October 28, at the Unitarian Church Parish House, Mrs. Francis H. McCrudden presided.

Mrs. D. Earle Brackett, Program chairman, introduced the speaker, Mr. Ralph Rogers, member of the faculty of Boston University, who spoke on "My Ten Years Among the Stars."

Mr. Rogers is known as one of America's first author-producers in the fascinating field of radio. His early work for more than ten years has brought him in constant contact with all of the big stars of the air. He said that writing script for radio was much more difficult than writing plays for the stage and that the public little realized what went on behind the microphone.

Mr. Rogers cited several interesting as well as humorous incidents. He said television was not far off, although it would be several years before we had it in Boston. He expected it would be ready for the World's Fair in New York next spring.

Mrs. Robert T. Bushnell, member of the Radio division of the State

Federation, urged the members to listen in to WORL at 10:45 a. m. every day to hear the news of neighboring clubs and guest speakers.

A Drama group has been formed and Miss Ruth Filene and Mrs. Wilson C. Dort are very anxious to have more members join. Those interested in Play Readings should get in touch with Miss Filene at once.

The president called attention to the date of the next meeting being changed to November 18, which will be in charge of the American Home Class.

Pourers at the coffee table were Mrs. Francis E. Nowers and Mrs. Vernon E. Blagbrough. Hostesses were Mrs. Elroy F. Davis, Mrs. Howard E. Wilson and Mrs. George E. Dennett, chairman.

The speaker will be Miss Elfrida Mosher, cultivation secretary of the International Institute, upon the attractive topic "What I Saw and Heard in Europe in the Summer of 1938." She will be introduced by Mrs. Armand C. Bang, of Newton, as chairman and Mrs. W. E. Birdsall, the president, also of Newton, will preside.

There will be a Forum after the address; also Folk Music.

Woman's Club of Newton Highlands

The regular meeting of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands was held Tuesday afternoon, November 1, in the Parish House of the Congregational Church. Mrs. Malcolm Green presiding.

The 1938-39 series of Subscription Dances under the auspices of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands have been set for November 26, January 28, February 25, and March 25. As the dances are being held in the Workshop the number is limited and those interested are asked to send their check for $8 to Mrs. Russell N. Hopkins, 141 Dickerman rd., on or before November 5. The names will be taken in the order in which they are received.

The Education committee is sponsoring a series of three Book Talks by Mrs. Thomas Rudkin who entertained the Club a fortnight ago. The talks are to be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday, November 8, and also on Tuesday, November 26, and December 13. The Workshop subscription is $1 for Club members; $1.25 for non-member; and 50 cents for individual talks.

The water-colors painted by Mr. Earl G. Manning, husband of a Club member, were the cynosure of attention in the Art Corner before and after the meeting. These were scenes of Mr. Manning's recent trip through the European continent.

Mrs. Kenneth J. Waite, chairman of the Music committee, announced plans for a Bridge to be held in the Workshop on November 16. This bridge is to raise money for robes for the Club Chorus. All members are urged to attend and to bring their husbands.

Mrs. Albert S. Hutchinson, chairman of the Legislative committee, explained thoroughly both sides of the proposed amendments on which citizens are to vote on November 8th.

The Community Service committee made an appeal for canned goods to be brought to the next meeting. These canned goods are used in Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets for less fortunate neighbors.

The Chair announced that Mrs. Stimson, a current events lecturer, would take the place of Mrs. Francis H. Russell who was to speak at the Informal Tea in the Workshop on Armistice Day.

The speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor, told vividly of her recent trip to Germany and other countries on the continent during the summer when dramatic events were taking place. Mrs. Taylor felt that the Munich treaty was a rebuff to Communism and Socialism and that it showed that parliamentary democracy is dead in Europe. In commenting about the United States she said that we love peace and want it; that we have the choice of three ways of getting it. Will we have peace by war, will we have peace by being armed to the teeth, or will we be strong enough to impose peace by understanding?

WCOP Promotes Highway Courtesy

Residents of this section are requested to listen to radio station WCOP, Boston, at 10:30 a. m., every Tuesday, during the broadcast portion of the WCOP-Massachusetts Safety Council Highway Safety Campaign.

Registration numbers are being taken by WCOP agents all over the State within a 25-mile radius of Boston. Motorists of this vicinity should listen in that they may not miss hearing their names read on the air.

WCOP's Highway Safety Campaign is operating in conjunction with the Pedestrian Safety Campaign which is being waged to eliminate pedestrian accidents on the highways of Massachusetts. In the Highway Safety Campaign, acts of unusual intelligence, courtesy or other instances of driving that makes for safer highways, should be reported to WCOP, at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Here are some examples of courtesy and intelligence that have earned for Massachusetts motorists the WCOP Certificate of Merit, a beautiful award made for safe driving: one motorist stopped, left his car, and assisted an aged woman across a heavily traveled street; another motorist, coming to the scene of a bad accident, took an injured person to the hospital; another, by simply stopping his car when to go ahead would have further complicated an already bad traffic jam, relieved congestion that had been getting steadily worse for several minutes.

If you have done something unusually thoughtful or courteous on the highways, the chances are strong that WCOP already has your registration number in the files.

Listen to WCOP Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. for your name, and watch the mails for your Certificate of Merit.

Waban Woman Found Dead

Mrs. Dorothy B. Wilson, 39, of 60 Pontiac rd., Waban was found dead shortly before 8 o'clock Monday morning in a clump of woods near her home. When her husband awoke and found Mrs. Wilson was not in the house, he started to search for her.

The barking of a neighbor's dog attracted his attention to the cluster of trees, and there Mrs. Wilson's body was found. She had cut herself with a carving knife. The woman had been in poor health and apparently had become mentally deranged. She is survived by her husband, Edmund G. Wilson; two sons; and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Balcom of Wamesit rd., Waban. Mrs. Wilson's funeral service was held on Wednesday afternoon.

Lawrence Boys Cause Excitement

Two boys from Lawrence, Edwin Narushof, 15, and Anthony Kakazys, 15, caused considerable excitement Thursday morning at Newton Highlands. At 8 o'clock the pair were found asleep in a garage on Walnut Hill rd. by Peter Vespa of Newton Centre, who is employed by Davis & Vaughan, owners of the garage. Vespa telephoned police headquarters and the boys awakened. Kakazys jumped out a window and the Narushof boy retreated into a closet, only to emerge a minute later brandishing a revolver with which he threatened Vespa and three other employees of Davis & Vaughan who had arrived at the garage in the meantime. The boy then escaped from the building.

In a few minutes a police car arrived with Serg. Sheridan, Patrolmen Burke and Marden. The police started to search the neighborhood and soon found young Narushof in a field off Parker st. Later Inspectors Burke and Hammell caught the Kakazys boy on Boylston st. The revolver carried by Narushof was empty. Both boys had dirk knives and flashlights in their possession. On Narushof the police found a newspaper clipping relative to the handbag robbery in Lawrence in which it is alleged the pair were involved. The boys were arraigned in the Newton court on Thursday and held for a hearing in the juvenile session today.

Although the Red Cross drive for memberships officially closes October 31st, the quota is not complete and enrollment will continue for a time. In emergencies, Newton has far exceeded the amount called for by the National Headquarters, but in order to carry on the local work it is necessary to have a large membership. The Roll Call committee, headed by Mrs. Henry T. Patch, Chairman, and Mr. George Lincoln Parker, Vice Chairman, report the following total: 2967 memberships.

This amount is a little over 3000 short of the quota. We hope you will send in your memberships.

THE WEEK IN NEWTON SPORTS

EVERTS WINS HIGH SCHOOL TENNIS TITLE

Albert Everts, state junior tennis champion and captain of tennis at High School, handily retained his school championship last week defeating Ernest Johnson, semi-finalist in the 1938 high school tennis tournament, 6-1, 6-3 in the finals of the varsity invitation tournament at the high school.

In the junior tournament, open to non-letter players, used annually to uncover the talent in those who have not made the teams, Jack Carder, popular hockey captain, plowed through strong opposition from Richard Daly and Bill Woods to win the junior meet. Carder, Woods, Daly and John Lynch were the outstanding players of the junior tournament who were invited to take part in the varsity tournament in which L. E. Boyle and W. M. Taylor of faculty also participated.

Tennis ratings at the high school are decidedly upset because although Carder had conquered Woods and Woods had beaten Lynch in the junior tournament, Lynch's lobbying and steady defensive tactics upset Carder in the varsity tourney.

With five veterans from an undefeated 1938 season and excellent material on the way, prospects in Newton tennis are bright indeed.

Donald Manchester, captain of the 1938 team, now a student at Hebron Academy, may play against his teammates when Newton meets the strong Hebron team led by Manchester and Bill Power, former Massachusetts champion whom Everts dethroned at Longwood this past summer.

NEWTON LOSES TITLE TO RINDGE TECH, 25-0

Rindge Tech clinched the 1938 Suburban League title last Saturday at Dickinson Stadium, Newtonville, by whitewashing an injury-riddled Newton outfit, 25 to 0. The defeat deprived the orange and black of any chance of retaining the league honors which they have held the past two years. Rindge had previously defeated both Brookline and Cambridge Latin and thus finished its league schedule undefeated. Having tied the Cantabs, the locals needed wins over both Rindge Tech and Brookline to keep the title, and a win over Rindge and a tie with Brookline to tie the Technicians.

Rindge won the toss and chose to receive, running the kickoff back to their own 35-yard stripe. A pass on first netted 22 yards to put the visitors into Newton territory. Three line plays netted seven yards and then Baniewicz, who continually was ripping through the Newton line, carried on a deceptive play which brought a first down on the Newton 24. Chalking up another first down on the Newton 13 the first ball was imminent. But aided by Castoldi's smashing tackle for a five yard loss Newton took the ball on downs. Rindge later again took the ball on a Newton punt to midfield. A fake reverse gained five yards but Foster, Rindge back, broke his leg on the play and was carried off the field. Two completed passes gave Rindge a first down on the Newton 11 and soon the visitors had their score with Griffin carrying over from the 3 yard line. Wiggins kicked the point. The quarter ended after Newton had received the kickoff which went offside at the Newton 35, and fumbling on the first play to give Rindge the ball at the same point.

Again Griffin buckled down to carry to the Newton 3-yard line in three plays from which point Bonneau went over. The attempted conversion failed and Rindge led 13 to 0. After the kickoff Newton rung up a first down but then was forced to kick with Hughes' boot going offside at the Rindge 30. For the remainder of the half it was a defensive struggle with a 15-yard clipping penalty setting the Rindge team back. This handicap was offset, however, by a 15 yard dash through guard by Griffin.

Following the second half kickoff a Newton fumble again gave Rindge the ball deep in Newton territory, this time on the Newton 26. After two line plays a Baniewicz pass was batted by Kit Fisher of Newton. Scott of Rindge, however, retrieved the ball before it hit the ground and crossed the goal line standing up for the third tally. Again the try at point failed.

The final tally came after a 70-yard march by the visitors, Newton having been forced to relinquish the ball by punting after failing to gain on receipt of the kickoff after the third touchdown. Bonneau, Balga and Griffin ate up yardage in huge chunks as the Newton defense tired. Griffin plunged from the 1-yard line for the score and the point failed to set the figures at 25 to 0.

At the start of the last quarter Newton's offense began to click and three first downs were chalked up before Rindge stiffened. Nearing the Rindge goal as the game was nearly over a Newton pass was intercepted and run back 20-yards to end the game.

THE NEWTON ARCHERS

Seventeen archers lined up to shoot with the wind playing about to carry the arrows away from the targets. In spite of the wind Adrian Matthews was able to shoot an 85-517. Ted Skinner followed with an 83-467. Anita Howarth can shoot a score of 68-340 with other arrows than her own for all the 60 yd. distance. Teresa Golich placed second with 50-228.

The junior boys were anxious to shoot a senior American so the girls were willing to try it with them. Philip Spofford shot 83-421 and Scott Doren 69-329 for the boys while Marjorie Kimber shot 42-144 and Sally Spofford 41-132 for the girls.

The archers voted at the conclusion of Saturday's shoot to have another on Nov. 5th if the weather permitted.

Newton Youths Standouts On Olympic Hockey Team

When the Boston Olympics swing into action at the Garden this winter in the race for Provincial League honors, the City of Newton will, as usual, be well represented by its local sons.

This year's representation from the Garden City stands up well with any this famous hockey hotbed has ever sent forth. At this writing the names of Frankie Spain, Junie Stubbs and Ike Powers stand out.

Young Mr. Powers may be a newcomer in Olympic ranks, but he is hardly a stranger to those who have watched the schoolboy and college athletes perform these last four or five years. Ike was always a standout on the schoolboy and college rinks, and made a name for himself as a brilliant climax runner with the Dartmouth football team. His thrum years as a left winger on the Big Green sextet proved his ability both as a scorer and a team man. Coach Hago Harrington of the Olympics expects much from the blond Newtonian, and does not feel that his two years out of competition will hurt him materially. Again this season the oldesters will be back in the persons of Frankie Spain and Junie Stubbs. Neither of these boys need any introduction to local hockey circles. Both were standouts at Newton High under the Oskar Martin regime, and later in the collegiate ranks. Spain at Dartmouth and Stubbs under his brother at Cambridge. Both lads represented this country at the last Olympics held in Garmisch.

NEWTON NOTES

Bob Liming was out of the Rindge game with an injured neck muscle. It is not certain that he will play against Lynn Classical tomorrow.

Johnny Fitzgerald is definitely through for the season. Newton athletic officials and doctors are unwilling to permit Fitz to risk breaking his collarbone again. This week the Newton back visited the Harvard trainer, accompanied by Newton's Frank Simmons and Don Enoch.

Rindge has been unable to get a new date with Brookline for its annual Suburban league game and it is rumored that the Suburban league as far as football is concerned will not exist much longer.

Automobile Accidents

Two automobiles skidded at West Newton in the early hours of Sunday and their occupants received slight injuries. At 12:40 a. m. a car driven by Lawrence Smith of Riverway, Boston skidded at Chestnut st. and Commonwealth ave. when Smith applied the brakes. He and his wife received slight injuries when the vehicle hit a pole. They went to Newton Hospital. About 2 a. m. a car driven by James Olson of 227 Derby st., hit a pole near 155 Temple st. Olson received a cut on his right leg. Helen Jaynes of 76 Prince st., a passenger in the car, received injuries to her right leg and shoulder.

Here's one worth going after!

COMING at you, it looks like a million. Going away, it looks like good fortune you've missed.

A lot of fussy care went into the way it looks from the rear—you know, that's the angle from which it's oftenest seen.

Going or coming, it moves like a honey bee about its business. Better look quick if you want to see it—one sudden "two-o-o-sh!" and it's gone!

How about it—is this stunning 1939 Buick really as lively as it looks? Well, just try it and see—you'll find it the car and the value of the year!

Maybe a bullet gets off faster.

Maybe a rabbit can beat it on the jump or a skyliner lead it from point to point.

But you'll never want a highway cruiser that answers quicker to the green light's "go"—that slips more deftly through the holes in traffic—that with keener relish eats up the miles.

That bonnet houses a full complement of eight cylinders, and Dynaflex cylinders at that. All four wheels dance on BuicOil springing of stout spiraled steel; no quiver or shiver shakes the luxurious body in its flight.

You'll see the world—lots of it—for this slightly Buick now parades the passing panorama through windows with up to 413 more square inches of outlook than before.

Other things you'll like: A gearshift out of knee-way. Front wheels that "bank" the curves for you. Brakes that stop on a dime—and leave nine cents change.

Go see this lovely lively traveler. Drive it—feel its magic yourself, first-hand.

You'll find it beautiful in action as in aspect—you'll go for the way it goes for you.

You'll find it obedient and willing, a car that holds its marks in crosswinds, bears sharp around curves without slide or slew.

In fine—you think you'll like all of it—from its looks to the way it lives up to them. Won't you try it out—and see?

Senator Lodge Talks To 1500 At Opening Meeting of Forum At Newtonville Last Sunday

Lodge Denounces Pittman Bill as Dangerous; It Advocates Continuance of Foreign Trading, But Tells Us to Avoid War

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge addressed an audience of 1500 persons at the opening meeting of the Newton Community Forum at the high school last Sunday. The auditorium was filled, and many persons were seated in the gymnasium, where a loud speaker relayed the senator's address. Kirtley Mather announced that all tickets offered for subscription have been taken, but that 500 free seats will be available to the public at each meeting of the Forum. He stated that the Forum has given equipment to the high school to complete its amplifying system, and that the judges had decided that the best questions asked at the preceding session of the Forum, were propounded by Edgar E. Abrams, and Edward Simpson. Senator Lodge assailed the "Cash and Carry" clause of the Pittman bill, and urged legislation to make war a tax supported activity, rather than a bonded burden.

The Senator's address was in part as follows:

In line with our faith in peace by legislation, the Senate on March 3, 1937, passed the Pittman bill, which takes two major steps with regard to wartime ocean-borne American foreign trade.

To my way of thinking, the cash and carry provision is the heart of the bill. I think it is dangerous and unsound. Anyone with cash and sea power can have our trade. We go on trading—so the advocates of this bill tell us—but stay out of war. We are to eat our cake and have it, too.

The cash and carry method must fail, when put to the practical test, because it rests on three very false assumptions.

1. It ignores the reality of our foreign trade. Advocates of the bill referred to people engaged in foreign trade as contemptible "hucksters." A visitor from Mars, listening to the debate, would have concluded that Americans engaged in foreign trade were a species of particularly selfish devil who helped themselves at the expense of national bloodshed. I do not happen to number among my intimate friends any foreign traders, but I imagine that they are as selfish—or as unselfish—as their brethren who try to make their living at home. I particularly cannot escape the belief that the American goods which American traders sell abroad employ large numbers of American citizens, and that, if American foreign trade were stopped tomorrow, the sufferers would not be restricted to the contemptible "hucksters." If they were so restricted, I would gladly do away with it tomorrow. If the price of peace consists in lining up some foreign traders against a wall, peace could be cheap indeed. Whether we like it or not, we are, at this moment, dependent on foreign trade for the existence of our present civilization. The worker whose weekly pay envelope goes from $30 to $70 per week in wartime is just as pleased as the corporation executive. The cash-and-carry policy would reduce our foreign trade materially and would thus throw out of employment American citizens whose living depends on it. This is a fact, and it is a fact which legislation must face.

2. The cash-and-carry policy rests on the assumption that a display of weakness will induce favorable and friendly treatment. In the Pittman bill we make a public admission to the world that we will let a large segment of our foreign trade disappear without a murmur—in fact, with loud applause. As one who deeply fears the dangers of foreign trade and wants to take practical steps to free us from

Will Try To Stop Denuding of Land

The Newton Board of Aldermen proposes to amend the city ordinance so that sod, loam, gravel or sand cannot be removed from any parcel of land in Newton without a permit. About 2 years ago the Aldermen passed an ordinance forbidding the removal of loam or gravel from land for the purpose of selling such material, unless a permit had been obtained. This ordinance has been circumvented by owners or lessees of land taking the sods, loam and gravel on the claim that the material was to be used for private purposes, and would not be sold. The proposed amendment to the ordinance will make a permit necessary, even though the claim is made that the sod, loam, gravel etc., is being removed for private use. Many lots of land in the city, including large areas, have been made eyesores by having been denuded.

Statement From Library Trustees

We, the undersigned, trustees and Librarian of the Newton Free Library, express our regret for the action we took in using our official influence in having printed, and distributed through the medium of the Newton Free Library a large quantity of bookmarks relative to a referendum, Question 6, which appeared on ballots at the election on November 8; said question pertaining to the employment of married women in public service.

We are advised that such political activity may have been contrary to Section 30 of Chapter 55 of the General Laws of Massachusetts. We admit that by causing the issuance of bookmarks and placards designed to influence the voters of Newton on this referendum, without having the names of two of the officers of our board printed thereon, we violated Section 34 of Chapter 55 of the General Laws.

Community Chest Drive Opens, 1800 Attend Dinner

Public authority ought not and cannot adequately perform the services carried on by Chest supported agencies, A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., chairman of the Newton Community Chest Campaign told 1800 campaign workers at the Opening Dinner held at the Newton High School gymnasium, Newtonville Wednesday night. "Newton citizens know," he said, "that many vital human needs exist in this community which can only be met by Chest agencies. Giving to the Chest is just plain ordinary common sense." The goal of the Campaign which will continue until November 22, is $194,787.15.

The cheering news that the Women's Division which carries on a pre-campaign drive among Newton retail stores and professional offices has raised its quota was announced by Mrs. Arnold C. Barker, chairman of the division. The workers in the other divisions begin a canvass of all Newton names today determined to complete the drive on November 22.

Mayor Edwin O. Childs, an assistant chairman of the campaign told the audience: "We join our fellow citizens in a united effort to finance for another year the health, welfare, social and character-building agencies of the city. If Newton is to be the city she has been or even better, there can be no let-up in the work. The money you give to the Chest is the best you can make in civic advancement."

Other speakers were Wm. V. M. Fawcett, Assistant Campaign Chairman, Stuart C. Rand, chairman of the 1939 Boston Community Fund Campaign and L. A. Bruce, Jr., Campaign Director.

The dinner was given a nautical setting and all "hands" were urged to complete their work for time for the "Shore Leave" party on November 22. The Highland Glee Club and Louis Haffermehl's orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

Those seated at the head table were: Wm. V. M. Fawcett, Assistant Campaign Chairman; Clifford H. Walker, Campaign Counsel; Wm. R. Rich, Chairman Business Division; A. L. Moriarty, Community Delegate; Roland P. Gammons, Campaign Auditor; Kivie Kaplan, Assistant Campaign Chairman; Mrs. Edgar P. Hay, President Newton Federation of Women's Club; Joseph B. Jamieson, Chairman Residential Division; Mrs. Wm. Albert Gallup, Assistant Campaign Chairman; Rev. Fr. John A. Sheridan, Charles E. ## Big Auto Parade By Newton Friends Of Saltonstall

The Republicans of Newton ended their campaign on Monday night with an outstanding demonstration for an outstanding citizen of this city who headed the State ticket as the candidate for Governor. Several hundred automobiles were in the big parade which started from City Hall shortly after 7:30 and proceeded through most of the villages at a rather rapid pace. The length of the parade resulted of necessity in short delays and separations of the many cars participating, as heavily travelled streets were crossed at several points, and the route planned for the parade had to be shortened. Many of the cars bore large signs urging voters to vote for Saltonstall and the entire Republican ticket.

The parade was headed by the band of Newton Post, American Legion, and in the first three cars were members of the Saltonstall family and Mayor Childs. The parade ended at Newton Centre Square and was followed by an open-air rally at which Mayor Childs presided. The speakers included Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Charles B. Floyd, president of Newton Board of Aldermen; State Senator Hollis, Representative Douglas Francis, Thomas W. White, Judge Robert Curran, A. Leslie Moriarty of the City Employees' Union, and Edward Edmonds, Past Commander of Newton Post, A. L.

Mr. Saltonstall enunciated his campaign slogan—that he would, if elected, put all he can into the office of Governor, instead of taking all he can out of the office. He referred humorously to the description of his face as a "South Boston face," and which had been made a campaign issue by Mr. Curley. Mr. Saltonstall commented that — "It will be the same face after election, as it is now."

Chairman; Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Assistant Campaign Chairman; Stuart C. Rand, Chairman, 1939 Boston Federation Campaign; Rev. Edward Taylor Sullivan, D.D., Mrs. Arnold C. Barker, Chairman Women's Division; Benjamin J. Bowen, Chairman Budget Committee; Rev. Fr. W. J. McGuarry, President, Boston College; Julius E. Warren, Chairman Newton Community Council; Rabbi Samuel N. Sherman, Charles C. Dasey, Assistant Campaign Chairman; Dana S. Sylvester, Chairman Public Relations; J. Edward Theriault, Chairman Newton Veterans Council; Fred D. Bond, President Newton Chamber of Commerce; Lyscom A. Bruce, Jr., Campaign Director.

Newton Gives Saltonstall Tremendous Majority In Contest For Governor

City Votes "Yes" on Vacations For Laborers, "Yes" on Beer, Package Stores, "No" on All Liquors

With about 90% of the registered voters of this city going to the polls, vote of 8872 for, and 19,247 against. Newton paid tribute to one of its citizens. Horse gambling won out by a narrow margin on Tuesday by giving Leverett Saltonstall three times as many votes as his opponent, James M. Curley. Saltonstall received 24,550 votes and Curley 8260. Saltonstall carried 20 of the 23 precincts of the city; Curley carried Precincts 1 of Ward 1, 3 of Ward 2, and 3 of Ward 3. Saltonstall received about 2000 more votes than were cast for Haislis in 1936, and Curley about 2900 less than were cast for Hurley in 1936. Of the 37,068 registered voters in the city, 33,284 went to the polls.

The entire Republican slate received big majorities in Newton. The city laborers received a complimentary majority in their quest for vacations, the vote was 20,115 for, and 6487 against on this referendum. On the referendum on liquor licenses the question of selling all liquors in restaurants and clubs, was defeated by a small plurality—Yes, 14,407; No, 15,540. Licenses to sell beer and wine for consumption on the premises won by an increased majority over that of 2 years ago; Yes, 16,617; No, 12,928. That package stores are firmly entrenched in Newton was indicated by the vote of 20,886 in their favor, and 9353 opposed. On the question of instructing Newton's representatives in the Legislature to vote against the employment of married women in public service, the vote was 16,826 in favor, and 12,093 opposed. Newton voted in favor of biennial sessions by a ratio of 2 to 1. It repudiated the

We Invite You to "Pondbrook"

A Two Acre Estate

WOMAN DESIGNED

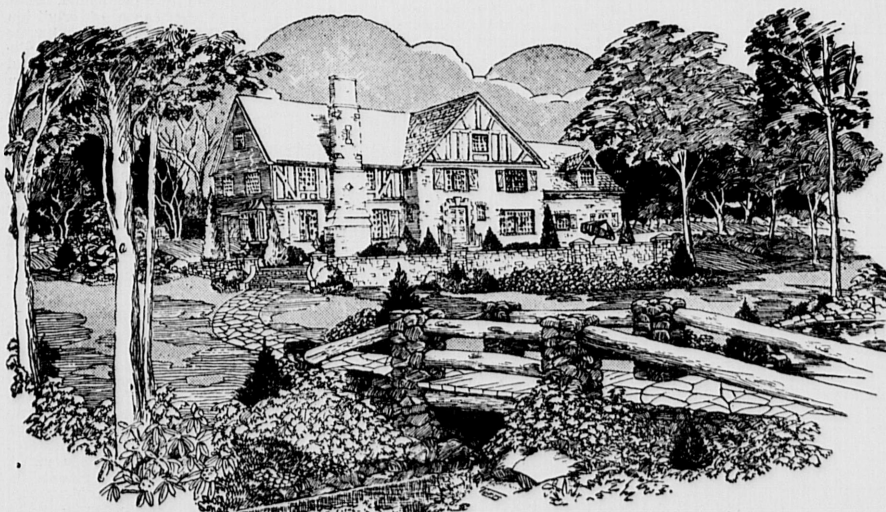

BRODRICK BUILT

WHITE OAK ROAD AT CLIFF ROAD

From the Worcester Turnpike take Cliff Road to White Oak Road

CLIFF ESTATES

WELLESLEY HILLS

A "bit of old England" high in the Wellesley Hills, best describes "Pondbrook," a truly fine home, dignified and spacious without being pretentious, and with the air of a medieval manor surrounded by ancestral acres.

Living in such a home would be a source of unending joy, whether the simple life of a country squire or entertaining extensively is the aim of its ultimate owner.

A replica of a baronial castle in Surrey, England, the house of mellow brick with heavy timbering and weathered shutters has its beauty mirrored in the pond below the terrace. A pause on the bridge which spans the brook reveals a waterfall spilling over a dam into the pond below. Skirting the pond and climbing the slopes, a pathway has been smoothed to make a ramble over the estate inviting, and to blaze a trail to the barbecue "snack-shack" for a weenie roast, or charcoal-broiled steaks, when the crowd drops in on the cook's day out.

In fact, there are infinite opportunities here for dispensing gracious hospitality . . . tea on the terrace; a cozy tete-a-tete with a friend or with books in the secluded library, while the ladies enjoy the delightful formality of the Tudor drawing room with the glow from the firelight pecking out the highlights and caressing the fine patina of the hand-carved oak which panels the living room to the ceiling.

The morning room would tempt the breakfast-bed person to make an early morning appearance; while dining "en famille" or with guests would be a pleasure in the spacious dining room.

The kitchen? A woman's Paradise . . . whether mistress or maid . . . for besides cupboards galore for utilities, there are numerous glass-enclosed cabinets for fine Wedgewood and Spode and crystal.

Upstairs there is a master suite, with dressing room and private bath and four other family bedrooms (every one of twin bed size) and with adjoining or connecting glass-tiled baths, besides the maid's suite with bath.

"The Wheat Sheaf Inn" with thatched roof makes a novel recreation room in the basement.

This entire home shows more eloquently than words can describe, the careful, thoughtful planning of a woman with original ideas and good taste . . . one who anticipates the desires of those very discriminating people who like to be relieved of the irksome details of building the house they will call HOME.

Monel metal in the kitchen; a General Electric Oil Furnace with an estimated heating cost of $253 a year (which includes domestic hot water); rock wool insulation, a garage for 3 cars, electric fixtures by Chase Brass and Lightoller and an incinerator, add the ultimate touch to this fine home.

May we welcome you to "Pondbrook" . . . TODAY?

GOVERNOR-ELECT SALTONSTALL

The people of the state have spoken. In no uncertain terms they have decreed that they desire honest service in government. The overwhelming and unprecedented victory of Leverett Saltonstall and practically the entire Republican ticket was most gratifying. In electing Leverett Saltonstall as Governor the voters assured themselves of a sincere, humane, and honest administration. A new day has dawned in Massachusetts politics. Mr. Saltonstall has a difficult task ahead of him, but, as in the past, we believe that he will fill the greatest office in this Commonwealth with the same distinction, the same integrity, the same sincerity, and the same honesty that has characterized his entire life. Leverett Saltonstall has many distinguishing qualities of which his sense of fair play and sportsmanship enable him to make peace where discord threatens. Beyond this he has a genuine liking and a sympathetic understanding for his fellow men, regardless of race, creed, or walk of life. Above all he has a deep love for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The best wishes of all Newton citizens go to him upon his splendid victory.

Politicallight

By THE EDITOR

A grand Republican victory. More satisfying than most Republicans dared to hope. And the first show of widespread support of the Republican ticket in the past ten years. Back in 1928 the G. O. P. elected or re-elected all six of its state-wide candidates for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, and attorney general. In the first Ely campaign of 1930 the ascending tide of the Democratic party captured half of the six places, namely the governorship, treasurer, auditor, and attorney general. The year 1932 was a repetition but the following campaign, that of 1934, swept all Republican hopes except Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook from office. Two years ago the G. O. P. recaptured the treasurer's office with the Republican Hurley. On Tuesday with a moral issue of honesty in government the keynote of the Republican campaign and with Leverett Saltonstall as the living symbol of that issue the Republican party, aided by a legion of independent and Democratic voters, elected five of its six candidates. Republican Clarence E. Barnes, running for Attorney General, alone was repulsed by the present Attorney General, Paul A. Dever, one of the most popular Democratic office holders in Massachusetts for many years.

Although not unexpected (it will be remembered that it was predicted in this column a week ago that his plurality would approximate 140,000) the Saltonstall triumph proved conclusively that Newton's most prominent citizen had "sold himself" to the average voter of this state. Despite his modest contention that the victory was not a personal triumph but a victory of the people in a struggle for good government his flattering vote was in many respects a personal tribute. The vote was one which was obtained by Saltonstall, the man, as well as the issue of honest government. For months the close and personal contact which Saltonstall made with Mr. Average Voter and Mr. Wage Earner, slowly but surely brought to them the realization that vote for minor offices. It is the general opinion that the defection from

Mr. Curley carried on down through the ticket until the fifth position on the ballot, the contest for auditor between Democrat Thomas Buckley and Republican Russell Wood. Here a few thousands of voters switched back to the Democratic columns but in insufficient numbers to re-elect the nominee of that party. As a result Russell Wood will be the State Auditor after next January 18th.

The lone survivor of the Republican onslaught was At. Gen. Dever. His successful attempt to retain his office was on a parallel with the Saltonstall victory in that both were unprecedented in the history of the Commonwealth. It is amazing that the candidate of one party could out down a deficit of 140,000 suffered by the head of his ticket and turn it into a similar plurality. A difference of nearly 300,000 votes.

Unquestionably the overwhelming Saltonstall surge aided in the election of many other Republican candidates whose success was in doubt prior to election day. All fifteen of the Massachusetts Congressmen, 10 Republicans and 5 Democrats, were returned to office. Major interest in these contests were centered in the 1st, 9th and 14th districts. In the 9th district Congressman Robert Luce was re-elected over youthful Thomas Eliot. Eliot, however, closed slightly the 9,000 gap which separated Richard Russell and Mr. Luce two years ago. In the 1st district the veteran Allen T. Treadway polled a substantial plurality over his opponent, novelist Owen Johnson, and in the 14th district top-ranking Massachusetts Congressman Joe Martin of North Attleboro who turned back the alleged New Deal attempt to oust him. It will be found, however, that in several of the strong Democratic Congressional districts that the Republican candidates reduced the normal Republican deficits materially although failing of election.

The smashing victory of Robert Bradford over his Democratic opponent the winning gubernatorial candidate was the genuine, sincere character that his more intimate friends have long proclaimed that he was. This fact, together with resentment of the campaign waged by his opponent, typical of that which has marked his entire political career, and which fooled Mr. Average Voter once too often were the vital sparks that touched off the explosion.

From another angle the Republican triumph was not in the true sense a party victory. Grouping the voters into three major classes of Republicans, Independents and Democrats it is found that the Republicans were united behind their standard bearer and the remainder of the ticket. Likewise for the first time in a decade a great majority of the huge independent vote was given to Saltonstall and most of his conferees. Thousands of Democrats, however, bolted their party's nominee and in all probability, but never a certainty, decreed the end of a 40-year political record not likely to be equalled. From many parts of the state comes evidence that literally thousands of voters marked their ballot for Saltonstall and Cahill but otherwise for the Democratic candidates.

Further evidence of this is found in a glance at the returns in the recent Joseph Carroll and the victory of Charles C. Warren, Republican candidate for County Commissioner over the present Commissioner Thomas Brennan of Medford, together with the re-election of Sheriff Joseph McElroy and Clerk of Courts Frederic L. Putnam again showed conclusively that Middlesex County continues to be a Republican stronghold despite the Democratic inroads of four years ago.

The election of Tuesday is history. What of the future? The Republican triumph in Massachusetts, together with Republican comebacks in other states throughout the nation give promise of a rebirth of the G. O. P. In Massachusetts we look for a fulfillment of the campaign promises made by Saltonstall and the rest of the state ticket for a progressive, liberal program of government with security for the aged and opportunity for the young. In 1940 if the Republican party is to hold the gains thus far won, let alone make new steps forward, accomplishments must be promptly achieved. Never again can the G. O. P. permit itself to lapse into stodgy self-satisfaction which marked its decline in the past decade or it will never come to life again. New blood and new leadership has taken the helm with a new Republicanism. It will be most interesting to watch it unfold and develop.

Powers' Paragraphs

The great majority of his fellow Newtonians rejoice with Leverett Saltonstall that he has achieved his ambition to become Governor of Massachusetts. He is an outstanding citizen, well qualified by character and training to assume the duties of Chief Executive of this Commonwealth. No recipient of this honor ever deserved it more. For fourteen long years Leverett Saltonstall served as a Representative in the Legislature, eight years of that time as Speaker of the House. A man of his wealth who is willing to give so freely of his time in public service is well entitled to the honor he has desired—and gained. It is 60 years since a resident of this city has been elected to the office of Governor, and no resident of this State is better qualified for the office than the man from Chestnut Hill.

While we would have been pleased to have seen Tom Eliot the victor in the contest for Congressman from this district, we must admit that for a man of his years, Robert Luce conducted a valiant fight to retain the office he has held so long. He can attribute his success in large part to the efficiency and popularity of his competent and courteous secretary, Bob Kempton.

Without disparaging the ability and popularity of Paul Dever, the only Democrat on the State ticket to survive the Republican landslide, it cannot be denied that two things which happened in the week preceding the election were vital factors in helping to pile up the huge vote which Mr. Dever received. One was the decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts which gave a victory to the Commonwealth in the litigation with the owners of the franchise of the Boston & Worcester Street Railway, and saved taxpayers of this State about a half million dollars. The other was the decision of the master appointed to recommend payment of taxes from the estate of Colonel Green, a plum for which several states waged a long contest. Massachusetts won, and as a result, $5,250,000 will be received by Massachusetts, provided the Supreme Court upholds the master's decision, which is probable. In both of these important legal actions the man who was on the job was Edward O. Proctor of Newton Centre, first assistant to Mr. Dever. The Attorney General made no mistake when he appointed Mr. Proctor as his assistant.

Another factor in Mr. Dever's success was the amount of publicity he procured. Apart from James M. Curley, no candidate for a State office advertised so extensively as did Mr. Dever. He can testify that it pays to advertise.

We did not, as some folks might think, derive pleasure from our participation in the controversy over the distribution of bookmarks by the Newton Free Library relative to the referendum on the employment in public service of married women. Our part in this matter was a disagreeable civic duty. Naturally the outcome was satisfactory to us. But, had the trustees involved, and the Librarian desisted from having the bookmarks on display even as late as last Thursday, further complications would have not ensued. And had the Mayor seen fit to request a cessation of the bookmark activity when a protest was made to him two weeks ago, he would not have had to make the improper request to the City Solicitor to become involved in this matter.

Because of the millions of dollars expense which the hurricane caused he Edison Company and the Telephone Company, we thought these two public utility companies might ask for increased rates to reimburse them for the unlooked for addition to their costs of operation. So far they have not asked for such increases. But, the other public utility company, The Boston Consolidated Gas Company, which did not suffer because of the hurricane, comes out again with an announcement that it intends to charge a large percentage of its customers much higher rates than they now pay. We predict that the Gas Company will again meet with a rebuff from the Department of Public Utilities.

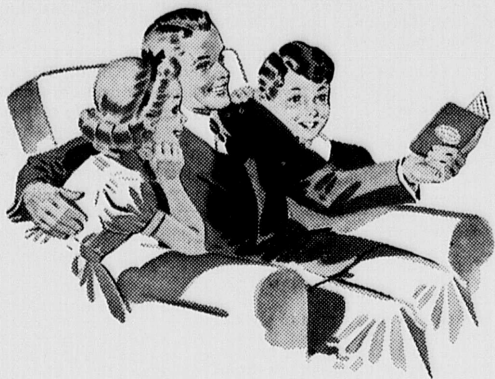

The political career of James M. Curley would make an interesting story. A man endowed with a brilliant intellect and wonderful vigor, he enjoyed repeated successes in public life, and four years ago reached the goal for which he had for many years aimed, the office of Governor of Massachusetts. Had Mr. Curley used the brains he possessed when he assumed this office, had he given the Commonwealth of Massachusetts an efficient, economical administration, there is little doubt in the minds of the majority of the people of this State that he would have been elected Senator in 1936 instead of suffering defeat at the hands of young Henry Cabot Lodge. And with his ability and oratorical skill, he would have become an important member of the United States Senate. But, Mr. Curley as Governor chose to engage in practical politics, and to display a grandiloquent manner which antagonized many who otherwise would have supported him in his quest for further political honors. An old axiom holds true in his case—"Pride Cometh Before a Fall."

How to teach your children the VALUE OF A DOLLAR

A Savings Bank Book builds character

THE saddest thing about the young man today who "doesn't know the value of a dollar," is that it probably isn't his fault. Somebody didn't think, that's all.

If someone had thought, he might have had a savings bank account when he was a boy, and from that acquired the habit of thrift that he needs today.

When a child has his own savings bank book, he has a certain goal. He learns to save and to respect the habit of saving. Don't delay giving your boy or girl this opportunity. And set a good example by starting an account of your own at the same time.

Election in Newton

his opponent Barnes received 20,368. Arthur W. Hollis, running for State Senator, ranked next to Saltonstall in the number of votes received. He got 24,337. All the Republican candidates for Representatives in both the 4th and 5th Middlesex Districts won easily over their opponents. Following the closing of the polls at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, election officers got busy at once on counting the votes for Governor, and the result was known at City Hall at 9:30. those dangers, I submit that we would do better to embark on such a policy when the need arises, and that we obtain concessions from other nations for so doing. The cash-and-carry theory would have you believe that if you lead with your chin your opponent will not hit you. All human experience seems to be against it. Give up some of your rights and it becomes harder to hold on to the others. I hope I am wrong, but I fear that this bill will give fresh stimulus to every swashbuckler and jingo the world around.

3. The cash-and-carry theory implies that foreign trade is the cause of American involvement in war. That it is a major factor, I agree. But there were millions of Americans whose moral sense was offended when they read of the invasion of Belgium. There were millions more whose anger was aroused by the sinking of the Lusitania. There were millions more who hated Germany and her allies, not for selfish motives but on high moral grounds. Democracies do not often go to war for reasons that are purely selfish, calculating and materialistic. It is to the everlasting credit of human nature that most men are unwilling to be killed for causes which they do not think are greater than themselves. True, the hindsight of history may make their cause seem futile, but, at the time they knew they were fighting for ideals. I believe our national tendency to pass moral judgments is still as strong as ever. I believe that future disturbances will arouse our unselfish passions. And no nation which has not got a cash-and-carry moral code can conform to a cash-and-carry law.

The cash-and-carry bill, with its half-truths and attractive illusions, which was passed by the Senate and, with some changes, passed by the House, was labeled "Peace Act of 1937." A colleague who also voted against it received a telegram on the following day saying, "Extremely disappointed to see that you voted against peace. Nobody likes to vote against peace, and no one in public life likes to have people think that he did, even though his own conscience is clear. But it is also noteworthy and encouraging that much of the correspondence which I received not only urged me to 'vote for peace'—which I believe I did—but urgently requested me to 'plug the holes' in the Pittman bill—which I tried unsuccessfully to do. I believe, however, that a

Ford

During the past few years, thousands of motorists have asked for a larger car than the Ford, with all the fundamental virtues and advantages of the Ford V-8, and priced according to Ford standards of value.

In response to this demand, the Ford Motor Company presents the Mercury 8—a new name, a new car, and a new value in the Ford-Lincoln family of quality cars.

Offered on the 116-inch wheelbase Mercury chassis is a choice of four body types: The Sedan; the Town Sedan; the Sedan-Coupe; and the Sport Convertible.

The Mercury 8 is a big car, long and unusually wide, with exceptional room for passengers and luggage. The compact V-type engine conserves inches of interior length. Upholstery and appointments are characterized by tasteful luxury in quality and design of materials.

A new, 95 horsepower, V-type, 8-cylinder engine, designed to create Ford standards of brilliant performance in this price class, combines all the proved performance and economy of the Ford V-8 engine with increased power.

Extensive research has resulted in the Mercury's really remarkable freedom from noise and vibration. Numerous rubber-cushioned mountings further contribute to this car's quiet and comfort and smooth riding qualities.

Owners of the Mercury will find perfect motoring peace of mind in the secure safety of all-steel body and chassis with the stop-ability of big hydraulic brakes.

The Mercury 8 takes its place this year with the Lincoln, the Lincoln-Zephyr, and the Ford... bringing to a new price field the Ford-Lincoln tradition of progressive engineering, mechanical excellence and outstanding value.

The Newton Motor Sales Company, Ford Agents for Newton, has on display models of the Ford V-8, both 60 H.P., and 85 H.P.; the Ford De Luxe, the new Mercury and the Lincoln-

Zephyr. In order to provide more accessible facilities for residents of the South Side, the Newton Motor Sales Company recently opened a showroom and service station at 714 Beacon st., Newton Centre, and for the North Side of the city the long-established showroom and service garage at 773 Washington st. are available.

De Soto

Styled for beauty? Yes! But that's only half the story. DeSoto's Streamline Styling provides more room for passengers and luggage.

More comfort... with ingenious new controls at your finger tips... headlamps set wide apart for safe night driving... higher, wider windshield for better visibility.

This year De Soto introduces Super-finishing... a revolutionary new surfacing process. Vital engine parts are now smoothed down to within 3 to 10 millionths of an inch... prolonging life... increasing oil economy... adding years to car life!

Floating Power Engine Mountings suspend the engine in proper balance... dissipate vibration... add many extra miles to motor life.

All De Soto Models are available in the Custom line—Coupe, Two-Door Touring Sedan, Four-Door Touring Sedan, Seven-Passenger Sedan and Limousine. Custom models are luxuriously upholstered in rich blue or tan broadcloth. Front compartment is carpeted.

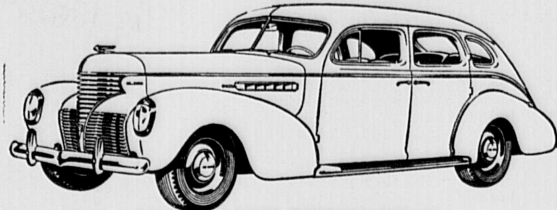

De Soto now has "five speeds forward" (available at extra cost) a powerful first gear; fast, lively second gear; overdrive in second; conventional third gear; and overdrive in third for highway touring. New "Step-Down" feature on Perfected Automatic Overdrive gets car back in conventional gear instantly, gives extra power and lightning-fast pickup quickly for passing!

Ride in this great new De Soto! You'll discover it has more of everything to make driving an exciting new pleasure instead of a chore.

Police Motorcycle Destroyed by Fire

One of the four overworked motorcycles of the Newton police department burst into flames last Sunday morning and was destroyed. Traffic Officer Lawrence O'Donnell was endeavoring to start the motorcycle at the police garage shortly before 8 o'clock, when the vehicle caught fire. O'Donnell with Traffic Officers Dowling and McHugh turned fire extinguishers on the flaming gasoline in an effort to save the motorcycle. When the motorcycle squad was reestablished in the Newton police department a couple of years ago, 8 men were assigned to this work, four on nights, and four days, and only four motorcycles have been provided for the two shifts. It is not surprising that any motor vehicle subjected to double duty will become defective.

Had Uninsured Car, Fined $110

Leon Kunish, 25, of Old Colony Path, Framingham, was fined $110 by Judge Mayberry in the Newton court last Friday for driving an uninsured automobile, $5 for driving an unregistered car, and $5 for driving without a license. He paid $5 on account and was given until March 29th to pay the balance. Traffic Officer Dwyer stopped Kunish on October 24 when the defendant entered Washington st. without stopping. Kunish told the policeman that he had left his license and registration at home and Dwyer allowed him to go on condition that he produce the missing papers. Several days later Kunish came to Dwyer and showed the officer a license and registration, but the policeman noticed that the papers had been issued to Kunish on October 26.

House on Mt. Ida Damaged by Fire

The house at 191 Newtonville ave., Newton, occupied by Richard Kelliher and owned by Mrs. Helen Briggs, was damaged by fire on Monday to the extent of about $2500. The fire started in a back hall and spread rapidly up a corner of the house. The flames worked up the outside of the house toward the roof, and because of the location of the building, on the slope of Mount Ida, were visible from Washington st. and more distant points. The cracking of the flames acquainted Mr. Kelliher's housekeeper with the fact that the house was afire, and an alarm was pulled at 11:15 a. m. from Box 18. When the firemen arrived the flames had worked up one end of the building, but they were confined to that part of the house.

Big Barn Burned At Oak Hill

A large barn at Hyacre Farm, 411 Dedham st., Oak Hill, was largely destroyed by fire last Saturday afternoon. Sparks from a distant bonfire, or a short circuit are believed to have ignited hay in the barn, which was owned by Timothy Murphy of Boston and had been leased for years by George Goodband who conducts a riding school. Clifford and George Goodband, Jr., sons of Mr. Goodband, rushed into the burning barn and rescued three horses and ten Scotch terriers. They were prevented by their father from going into the barn to save harness and saddles. The loss to Mr. Goodband was about $1000, and he had no insurance. The loss on the barn was about $2000. Sunday morning about 5:45 flames broke out again in the burned barn, necessitating the firemen working at this second blaze for about two hours.

Drove Uninsured Car, Fined $135

Raymond Gallant, 23, of Eustis st., Cambridge, was fined $100 by Judge Mayberry in the Newton court on Wednesday for driving an uninsured car, $10 for driving a car not registered, and $25 for driving without a license. Inspector A. J. Connors of the Registry of Motor Vehicles was the complainant. He stopped the car on the turnpike when he saw it had but one headlight working.

Handbag Robbery At Chest. Hill

As May Taylor of 188 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill, was walking along the avenue near Boston College about 10:30 Sunday night, a dark complexioned youth grabbed a handbag the woman was carrying, took the money it contained, $4.65, and then threw the handbag back at its owner. Newton police were notified but could find no trace of the thief.

Aged Man Hit by Auto Died Friday

James Finley, 72, of 143 Galen st., Watertown, died at the Newton Hospital last Friday of injuries received on Sept. 23rd when he was hit at the corner of Washington and Adams sts., Newton, by an automobile driven by Thomas Roche, 19, of 156 River st., West Newton. The aged man received a fractured spine and a head injury when struck by the automobile.

Police Catch Boy Burglars at Newton

Tuesday afternoon patrolmen Dungan and Goddard captured two boys who had broken into the home of Mrs. Harriet Ferris at 59 Sargent st., Newton. A canvasser, who had been told the house was unoccupied, observed the boys in the building and notified a neighbor who telephoned police headquarters. Patrolmen Dungan and Goddard hastened to the scene and the latter found a cellar door open and entered. The boys who were in the cellar fled. One ran out the front door and was seized by Dungan. Goddard captured the other in an attic closet. The boys had broken open a cabinet to get at its contents. They gained entrance to the house by breaking a cellar window. One of the boys is 15 and resides in Belmont, the other, 14, lives in Cambridge. They will be arraigned in the juvenile court on Friday.

Catholic Welfare Committee Meets

A regular monthly meeting of the Newton Catholic Welfare Committee was held on Monday night at the rectory of Our Lady's Church, Newton, with President Charles C. Dasey presiding. It was brought out at the meeting that the temporary improvement in the financial condition of many recipients of welfare which resulted because of hurricane rehabilitation, is diminishing. Work on clearing estates of hurricane debris, and employment on trees, has largely stopped and many have reverted to the lack of employment which obtained prior to the hurricane. As a result the requests for assistance from those in need have again increased and the outlook for the coming winter months is not encouraging.

Do you remember the thrill you felt when you first took the wheel of an automobile? Well, the time has come when you can duplicate it. Just settle down in the driver's seat of the Cadillac Sixty Special and head for the open spaces. There's something about the way it rides . . . the way it handles . . . the way it picks up and slows down . . . the way you see out of it—well, it's just different! It's SO different, in fact, that few can resist it. Once the average person drives a Sixty Special he is more or less restless until he gets his hands on one for keeps. Try it and see for yourself!

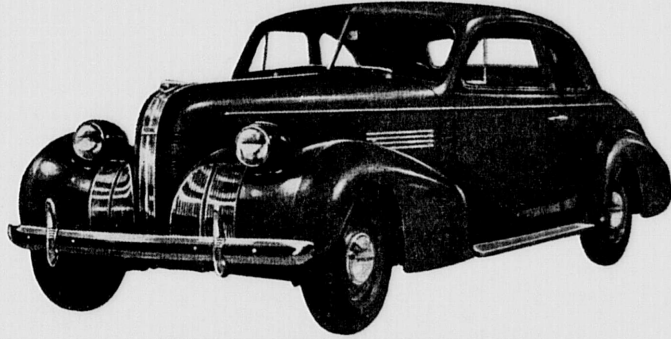

Cadillac's dominance of the fine-car field has been predicated squarely on one thing—engineering leadership. Year in and year out, Cadillac has made the necessary expenditures and put forth the necessary effort to be a pioneer in every phase of motor car design. Cadillac's engineering cost per car is undoubtedly one of the highest in the industry. But it has been a wise expenditure, for in no other way could Cadillac have come to merit the unquestioned position it now occupies. From their mighty V-type engines to the latest control on the instrument panel—Cadillac cars stand alone in the soundness and completeness of their design. This year, as in the past, they are the engineering yardstick of the industry.

Your first glimpse of the new LaSalle V-8 will tell you that here is a car of unusual distinction—for it was styled by the same designers who created the Cadillac-Fleetwoods. Relying for its beauty upon correct proportions and harmony of line—rather than upon trick decorations and radical departures in form—LaSalle is, nonetheless, one of the most individual cars of the year. No other car looks even remotely like the new LaSalle. The striking new radiator, narrowed to the span of a man's hand, identifies the LaSalle from a point as far as the eye can see. Across the front of the grille appears the LaSalle name in script. The new headlamps are long and streamlined, flowing into the hood side panels. All models have chrome window reveals and are available with or without running boards, at no extra charge. The lower turret top, streamlined hood, forwardly inclined rear quarter pillar, and the new trunk into which the body lines flow, all contribute to an appearance of extraordinary agility and fleetness. At the rear, the new LaSalle presents an unusually smart ground-gripping appearance. A new rear bumper carries the name "LaSalle" in script. The new 1939 LaSalle is now completely identified as a beautiful quality-built car—a worthy product of Cadillac's master craftsmen.

These beautiful cars are on display and ready to be demonstrated at your convenience by Frost Motors, Inc., 399 Washington St., Newton.

Oldsmobile

In designing the Series Sixty, Oldsmobile's new third line of motor cars, Oldsmobile engineers worked toward two major objectives. First, that traditional Oldsmobile quality must be maintained throughout. Second, that the car must sell in the low-price field. Critical inspection of the "Sixty," and a turn behind the wheel, will show you how well the engineering staff has succeeded. Here is Style-Leader styling in the modern manner. Here is performance far above anything you ever anticipated in a low-priced car. Here are all the safety, comfort and convenience features you would expect to find in motor cars priced at hundreds more. Whether you put price foremost, or make quality paramount, you will want to consider the Oldsmobile "Sixty." It's the car in which price and quality meet.

A true aristocrat of the highway, the Oldsmobile "Seventy" looks and acts like a car of much higher price. In fact, when you compare the Series Seventy with other cars in the popular-price field, it is immediately evident that Oldsmobile offers a "plus" value in this stunning Six. It has a jaunty air, a flair for style which you simply cannot get elsewhere. It offers the roominess, luxury and tasteful appointments that you have always associated with expensive cars. It provides a smooth, restful, Rhythmic Ride which you cannot match in any other make of car at any price. It delivers brilliant, flexible, economical performance on city street or open road. Above all, the Oldsmobile Series Seventy gives you lasting satisfaction and the certain knowledge that your dollars have bought top value.

Though you were willing to pay hundreds of dollars more, it would be difficult to find a motor car that combines so happily as the Oldsmobile "Eighty," all the characteristics that make up the ideal motor car. Modern to the minute in engineering, in styling and in appointments, the Oldsmobile "Eighty" appeals to motorists who insist upon highest quality and who demand, in addition, fleetness and nimbleness, feather-touch handling ease and the newest vogue in styling. All of these you may have in the Oldsmobile Series Eighty at surprisingly moderate price. And further, your purchase is backed by the reputation of America's oldest manufacturer of motor cars.

Frost Motors, Inc., 399 Washington St., have the new Oldsmobiles on display and will be glad to demonstrate these remarkable cars.

Pontiac

This year Pontiac present the finest cars they have ever built and the finest ever to appear in their respective price fields—a completely new Quality Six . . . a new De Luxe Six . . . and a new De Luxe Eight. All three have these things in common: each is big, smart, and luxurious . . . each is packed with brilliant new features . . . each is a marvel of thrift . . . and the cost of each represents a substantial price reduction. As a result, you can choose any model with complete assurance that you are getting the finest automotive value available today.

The Quality Six is new from the wheels up and a "top-flight" car all through. Its styling is so new and smart that it could win a beauty prize in any price field. It is generously sized inside and out, and appointed with fine-car richness. It offers the widely copied, Pontiac-pioneered Safety Shift at no extra cost. It introduces a new ride feature meeting a great need—Newrest Ride with Duplex Springing, which gives one passenger the jolt-free ride formerly possible only with a full passenger load. The engine is a marvel of smoothness, with economy that asks no odds of any car, plus performance that lets you step with the best. And this big Six is priced so near the lowest that you'll never miss the slight difference in monthly payments! Pontiac proudly presents a great automotive achievement—by all odds, America's finest low-priced car.

For people who believe that only an eight can satisfy them for performance, Pontiac provides General Motors' lowest-priced, eight-cylinder car. Although this eight sells at a new, reduced price which brings it well within the reach of people who normally buy sixes, it compares in smoothness, quietness and alert performance with any eight in any car regardless of price, and it excels most sixes in economy! This car, too, has the newest of bodies—Bodies by Fisher with curb-high floors and vastly increased vision—available with or without running boards. The exceptional comfort and roominess of these Unisteel, Turret-Top bodies can be judged from the fact that this luxurious car is 196 and one-quarter inches long. You can depend on it—when you sit behind the wheel of the 1939 Pontiac De Luxe Eight you command every road you travel . . . and you travel at a minimum cost per mile.

Frank Battles, Inc., at 26 Peabody St., Newton, are showing the new Pontiacs. On or about Nov. 20, this popular Pontiac dealer will move to larger, more modern, redecorated showrooms, and service shops at 208-214 Washington St., Newton Corner.

Studebaker

Studebaker, originator of style trends, pioneer of engineering innovations, again steps lengths ahead of the automobile industry with these stunningly beautiful new Commander and State President models for 1939—the world's smartest cars.

At no extra cost for the distinction, in fact at new low prices, Studebaker offers you these refreshingly different, magnificently luxurious, new-type cars which were designed by Raymond Loewy, famed stylist of the new streamlined Broadway Limited and visualist par excellence of New York's World's Fair.

Vigorous exterior lines have been combined with exquisite interior appointments to inaugurate a new mode—to give these new 1939 Studebakers an irresistible appeal to motorists who buy their cars with careful consideration and keen discrimination. And back of every model in this superb new line of pace-setting motor cars stands the incomparable 87-year reputation of Studebaker, world's oldest vehicle manufacturer. Many of the great and lasting motor car advancements have come from Studebaker's engineering and research laboratories, 800-acre, million-dollar proving ground and vast, modernly equipped plants.

Studebaker's simple new hand level shifter is attached to the steering post just below the wheel and operates mechanically like the old-style floor shift rod but with greater ease and safety. The floor, of course, is entirely clear, assuring greater comfort even when driving alone. Standard equipment at no extra cost on all Studebaker models.

Studebaker sedans give you 6-passenger roominess—The chair height seats are not only wide but exceptionally deep. In either front or rear three full-size passengers ride in relaxed comfort—with head and shoulders as well as hips restfully cushioned. Leg room is generous and front seat construction gives 3 extra inches of toe room in rear seat.

Studebaker's miracle ride provides restful comfort—Only Studebaker offers you the restful riding that is assured by planar independent front wheel suspension pioneered by Studebaker. After 4 successful years of operation it is acknowledged to be the simplest, strongest and most efficient front wheel suspension. It enables you to take turns with incredible steadiness and simplifies the handling of the car. Combined with the Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, it gently cradles all passengers over all road obstructions.

Newton Motors, Inc., 126 Galen St., Newton Corner, invite you to inspect the new Studebakers.

Ald. Temperley In Auto Accident

Alderman John Temperley of Newton Upper Falls, who has been a leading advocate of traffic safety during his long service in the Board of Aldermen, was an occupant of a car driven by his brother, Joseph Temperley of Newton Centre, when it was in a collision last Sunday afternoon on Chestnut st., Upper Falls, with a car driven by Robert Jepson of Cherry st., West Newton. Mrs. Clara Temperley, the Alderman's wife, who was also a passenger in the car, was reported as having received an injury to her neck.

Oppose Tea Room On Turnpike

A petition filed by Mrs. Emily Crowley for a permit to be allowed to change a barn at 1185 Boylston st., Upper Falls, from a paint shop to a tea room and antique shop, and also use the adjoining house for such business, is meeting opposition from owners of nearby properties. Among those who object are Oscar Nutter, 1174 Boylston st.; Sarah Stevens, 1190 Boylston st., and the owners of the Sarah Randall estate. The property is located in a private residence zone, and the barn has been used as a paint shop under a non-conforming use. The zoning ordinance permits the change of a non-conforming use by vote of the Board of Aldermen, to a similar type of business. Since the improved Worcester turnpike was built along Boylston st., Newton, Wellesley and other places have consistently refused to allow business to intrude on it.

Protests have also been registered against a petition filed by the Newton Savings Bank asking that property at 113 Washington st., Newton, be changed from single to private residence zone so that a two-family house can be erected there.

Packard

Motor car buying this year foretells a keener, more careful procedure than ever. Buying a car in this day and age calls for getting value received, possibly as never before. Packard welcomes the turn; for Packard has long believed in careful car buying, has long supported the idea of analyzing in detail just how much the purchase price gives the motorist in a values' way. Such a bold challenge to the intelligence of the car buying public calls for a product well able to back it. The experience of 248,212 owners who have bought the Packard One Twenty and Packard Six since Packard entered the lower price fields, has found that support most adequate. And in the new 1939 versions of these fine cars, the Packard measure of plus values promises to again swell the ranks of men and women who own one.

For, if there ever are cars that give the buyer more for his money—that abound in extra values—they are these new models of a distinguished line!

They have newness of interest. In the new Packard One Twenty and Packard Six you will find improvements that modern automotive design pronounces outstanding. From the new T & T engine, through Hand-shift and Econo-Drive (the latter optional at slight extra cost), to the exclusive Fifth Shock Absorber, is many a development for greater motoring pleasure. They help create a mellow, easier performance—a smoother, gentler ride. And each design is endowed with a definite Packard value!

These new cars offer protection of investment. The new Packard One Twenty and Packard Six are Packard in appearance and Packard in long life. New styling enhances the familiar lines of unmistakable identity. New refinements add to the traditional length of life of Packard parts. In this era of buying wisely and well, any investment a motorist makes in his personal transportation merits the protection that means its enjoyment through years ahead. Toward this end the new 1939 Packards abound in extra values no other car can claim.

For 1939, then, please make this check in keeping with the trend of the times—and learn why you too will likely pick a Packard for its very real worth, in each of the fourteen motoring values discussed on subsequent pages.

The new Packards are being shown and demonstrated at the new show rooms of the Newton Auto Sales, Inc., at 863 Washington st., Newtonville.

Mrs. George L. Curtis, secretary of Finance, reported the sum secured by the recent bazaar, which exceeded the sum estimated. The president, Mrs. Tracy, then told of the way the damage done to the building by the hurricane had been efficiently taken care of. She also announced her plan of selecting older members for purveyors at the teas as an effective and gracious way of making them acquainted with the newer members. She then introduced the guest of the afternoon, Mrs. Edgar P. Hay, who complimented the clubwomen on meeting the hurricane damage. She earnestly urged Club members to bring clothing bags filled with discarded clothing to the next Club meeting, as in this way used clothing would lessen the city's expenses and prevent the necessity of buying the more costly new clothing. She also urged all Club members to vote, and to watch that politics did not have an opportunity to creep into our school committee elections. Mrs. Hay ended by saying that she chose this particular afternoon to be a guest of the Club because she was always interested in the message that the speaker of the day, Margaret Slattery, would give.

Mrs. Walters, chairman of the Program committee, in presenting Miss Slattery, gave her the delightful tribute of being "sincerely young" in her spirit and of an understanding heart.

In her inspiring talk on "Adventures of the Modern Mind," Miss Slattery successfully brought home to her audience their tremendous responsibility as thinking persons in these perplexing days. She traced the wonderful progress of man from the dark ages, and showed how it was accomplished only by the undaunted pioneer spirit inherent in man. Now that man had mastered the physical forces in large measure, the pioneer spirit was still needed in that greater wilderness, the world of human relationships, and prophets were as necessary today to realize the vision of world peace, she declared. With a vibrant quotation from Anne Lindbergh's latest book, "Listen! the Wind," with a humorous remark, an appealing gesture, or a stirring bit of poetry, she stressed and interpreted convincingly the real kingdom of the pioneer spirit, the kingdom of mind and spirit, and left her audience with the statement that only through their development and powers can things be changed for the better as they always have been.

Mrs. George T. Tracy, president of the Newtonville Woman's Club and Mrs. Edgar P. Hay, president of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, a guest of the Club, greeted Club members and their friends at the first fall meeting, Tuesday, November 1, during the informal reception in Social Hall. Mrs. George Clapp, Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, and Mrs. Clarence Johnson, chairman of the Hospitality committee, and Mrs. Seth M. Kalberg, chairman of the Meetings committee, and their helpers were in charge.

Before the main program of the afternoon, Mrs. George A. Edmonds, one of the vice-presidents, read a splendid report of the State Federation meeting at Swampscott in May, and at Hyannis in October, giving concisely and entertainingly the thought of each speaker. Mrs. H. Story Granger, chairman of the Legislative committee, commented briefly on the legislative discussion at the October Newton Federation meeting, stating that in local Newton elections only fifty per cent of the voters voted, and urging each Club member to be sure and go to the polls on November 8.

Mrs. Thomas G. Walters stated that there would be a meeting at her home that evening, November 1, for about twenty girls who were interested in organizing a Junior Club, this Club to be open to Newton girls eighteen years of age and over, and that further information could be obtained by calling Mrs. Thomas G. Walters, Telephone, West Newton 2681-W.

Mrs. Paul E. Elicker, chairman of the Current Events program, stressed the very reasonable price of $1.00 for the five lectures given by the well-known and much-liked speaker, Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor, the first lecture beginning Thursday, November 10, at 10:30 a. m.

The November meeting of the Newton W. C. T. U. was held in the Baptist Church Parish House in Newton Centre, Thursday, November 3, at 2:30 o'clock. The president, Mrs. William E. Birdsall, presided. The devotional service was conducted by the Evangelistic director, Mrs. Hattie A. Shultz, who read Psalm 146—the Crusade Psalm—followed by the Lord's Prayer. The new Crusade Song was then sung by Mrs. William F. Ferrin. Mrs. Sarah S. P. Stevens presented the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. John A. Groves, who spoke on the November 8th election, and explained each referendum on the ballot, to aid the members to vote more understandingly next Tuesday. Tea was served by Mrs. Blanche G. Morris and Mrs. Emery W. Clark.

Loveland; Mrs. George Lincoln Parker; Mrs. Chester F. Smith; Mrs. F. Sayford Bacon; Mrs. Fred Hawkins; Mrs. Samuel E. Cutler; Mrs. Joe W. Gerrity; Mrs. Burdett P. Mansfield; Mrs. Herbert B. ### Newton Hospital Aid Association

Thirty members of the Board of Directors of the Newton Hospital Aid Association met Tuesday morning, the 8th of November, at the home of Mrs. Laurence Allen on Plainfield st., Waban, for the regular November Board meeting.

The president, Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson, presided, and announced that Miss Mary Steeves had been appointed chairman in charge of the Luncheon and Annual Meeting, which will be held in January.

Mrs. Faulkner Kendall will be chairman of the Nominating committee to report at that time.

The morning was given over to discussion of the proposed changes in the By-Laws of the Hospital Aid Association. Action will be taken on these at the December meeting of the Board of Directors.

At 12 o'clock morning coffee was served by the hostess, the pourers being Mrs. Dana Dutch and Mrs. Edward Sawyer.

Auburndale Woman's Club

Last Tuesday afternoon was Music Day at the Auburndale Woman's Club, with a program sponsored by the Music committee, of which Mrs. Edward Dana Kendall is chairman.

The first number was a group of two violin selections by Eva Stark, "La Folia," by Corelli; and "Sicilienne et Rigaudon," by Franck-Kreiser. She was accompanied on the piano by Frances Adelman, Margaret Godding, Soprano, sang a group of three songs: "Dance les Ruins d'une Abbaye," by Faure; "Joues Fillettes," an eighteenth century Bergerette; and "Mariage des Roses," by Franck. Nellie Zimmer, Harpist, was Miss Godding's accompanist and she furnished the next three numbers: "The Fountain," by Zabel; "Air de la Cantata," by Bach; and "Impromptu-Caprice," by Piere.

The next selections were vocal ones by Margaret Godding: "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," by Haydn; "Maria's Wiegengied," by Reger; "Shy One," by Clarke; and "The Danza," by Chadwick.

Miss Stack brought the program to a close with three violin numbers: "Slavonic Dance E Minor," by Dvorak-Kreiser; "Romance," by Schumann; and "Rondo Capriccioso," by Saint-Saens.

Sharing this program with the members of the Club, was a group of Newton residents who are either totally or partially blind. This work for them is under the supervision of the Physically-Handicapped committee of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs. The chairman, Mrs. Elmore I. MacPhie came with the group, and spoke of the work which her committee is doing not only with the blind, but for the crippled residents of this city. Refreshments were served by the Hospitality committee, Mrs. Raymond Perkins chairman, to the invited guests, at the close of the program.

NOVEL PLANT FOR INDOORS

"Take a large turnip," writes Mrs. Georgina M. Kelly of Newton, in the current issue of Woman's Day, "cut out the inside, leaving shell about one inch thick; fill with earth and plant mustard seed, parsley or canary seed. The seed will grow, and leaves will spring out all over the turnip—making a handsome window plant. Water occasionally. Another interesting plant may be made by putting the top of a pineapple in a pint jar of water. It will soon root. Place the jar in a flowerpot, and you will have a pretty palm."

Library Trustees Admit Error, Legal Action Dropped

The controversy over the distribution of bookmarks at the Newton Free Library on the matter of the referendum regarding the employment of married women in public service, reached a serious stage last Saturday when Edward H. Powers appeared before Judge Mayberry at the Newton court and complained that two sections of Chapter 55 of the General Laws were being violated: Section 30 which specifies that no person in the service of any city or town shall interfere in the conduct of an election, and Section 34 which states that any cards or circulars dealing with any matter to be voted on at election, and which are printed and circulated, must be signed by two officers of the organization responsible for such literature. With Powers was Captain Veduccio of the Newton police, and Inspector King who had prepared the complaints.

Judge Mayberry ordered a hearing on the issuance of the complaints, and designated Judge Quinn of Natick to conduct the hearing on Monday morning. The complaints were made against Mrs. Virginia Hutchinson, Vincent P. Roberts and Guy M. Winslow, trustees who authorized the printing of the bookmarks, and Julius Lucht, Librarian of the Newton Free Library. These four persons appeared at the court house on Monday morning. Also appearing in the capacity of counsel for the defendants was Joseph W. Bartlett, City Solicitor of Newton. He came at the request of Mayor Childs. Following a conference between Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Powers, it was agreed that if the trustees and the Librarian apologized for their activity in the matter of the bookmarks, and admitted error, the complaints would be withdrawn. Captain Veduccio demurred at this compromise because he felt that he might be accused of showing discrimination due to the prominence of those involved, and he also might be accused of having failed to do his duty. With Powers, however, assuming responsibility for asking that the complaint be dropped, Captain Veduccio acquiesced.

Car Killed Woman, Driver Not Guilty

Thomas J. Sullivan of 114 Dedham st., Newton Highlands, was found not guilty of driving to endanger the lives of the public by Judge William A. Murray of Milford who presided at an inquest held on the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Springham, 83, of Oak st., Newton Upper Falls. The aged woman was hit on the night of August 20 as she was crossing the street near her home by a car driven by Sullivan. Sullivan reported that the woman stepped off the sidewalk into the path of his car, and that as she lay on the street another automobile ran over her. Witnesses to the accident stated they did not see any other automobile. The inquest was held on Sept. 8 and the report was received from Judge Murray last Saturday.

"Moments of Charm" Featured At Paramount Theatre

One of the most charming bits of cinema fare in many a moon is the Paramount technicolor film featuring Phil Spitalny and his group of thirty attractive and gifted women musicians, which opens Sunday, Nov. 13th, at the Paramount Theatre, Newton, through Wednesday, Nov. 16th. Appropriately enough, it is called "Moments of Charm."

In this entertaining film, the musical accomplishments of the girls are embellished with gorgeous pictorial backgrounds and many novel photographic effects. The numbers rendered, are from light-classical to the popular, and include several instrumental and vocal renditions that present the unique talents of the deep-throated Maxine; Evelyn and her Magic Violin, the "Three Little Words," harmony trio; and Rochelle and Lola, piano duet. The Spitalny all-feminine aggregation has received wild acclaim for its instrumental and vocal virtuosity. Their "Hour of Charm" now heard over the air every Monday night.

Ask Damages For Sidewalk Defects

Two claims have been made against the City of Newton as a result of sidewalk and street defects which were caused by the hurricane of September 21. John McCrae of 277 Walnut st., Newtonville asks for $15 for a broken spring caused by his automobile hitting a projecting root on Bowers st., Newtonville on the night of October 15. He states that there was no lantern at the place to warn of the defect.

Rev. Thomas Quinn, S.J., of Boston College asks that he receive reimbursement for the cost of his eyeglasses which were broken on October 12 when he fell on a sidewalk opposite 116 Manet rd., Chestnut Hill.

where a sidewalk had been raised up by a fallen tree. He also received personal injuries.

Leaves Police, Re-Enters P. O.

Arthur V. Connolly of 46 Lexington st., West Newton, who became a member of the Newton police department on September 17, resigned from that service on November 5 to resume his work as a clerk at the Newton Center postoffice. Connolly, who had been employed in the postal service for several years, obtained a leave of absence in September to accept the appointment to the police department. Apparently he decided that he preferred postoffice work to that of the police.

It's got looks—and so have you!

EYE OPENER! With all its extra value, this Buick sedan lists at $51 less than last year!

It makes the eye glad and grateful—you spot that the instant your gaze takes in this sparkling Buick for 1939.

It's sleek and swift and businesslike, lean and clean in every line, the trim bonnet low-set, the graceful upper-structure light-and-airy looking, neat and fine.

Will you step in, please, and look it over closer?

Why, it's almost like being in an open car, with the outlook you've got here!

The long nose tapers quickly out of eye-way, the pillars modestly retire to the background, overhead stop lights drop into easy vision—ahead, to right, to left, you can see!

The ruler will tell you there are as much as 413 added square inches of safety glass in this Buick, and these inches are placed where they count.

It has a lot to do with making Buick beautiful, this grand expanse of openness!

And like "catwalk-cooling": radiators low where air pressure is greatest—and the lines of the bonnet: broad, clean, aerodynamically better—

Buick's stepped-up visibility both sets a pattern and fills a function.

So take a good look into its bigger, better, broader outlook. It's one thing among many that Buick's got that you'll want in your next automobile.

Cooking School Sessions Offer Unusual Benefits To Women of the Newtons

Miss Margaret Fossett to Direct First Annual Free School at Newton Centre

Announcement of the first annual free Fall Cooking School, sponsored by the Newton Graphic in conjunction with the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., and a number of local merchants, will be of major interest among Newton women. The Cooking School will be held on the afternoons of Nov. 28, 29 and 30, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at the Newton Centre Woman's Clubhouse in Newton Centre sq. The Cooking School has been timed to follow the Thanksgiving holiday weekend and yet precede the Christmas shopping period which follows soon after. Many attractive features of the school will be announced shortly.

Foremost among the features offered are the services of Miss Margaret Fossett, director of the Home Economics Department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., who will direct the school and demonstrate many of her favorite recipes. One of the most popular and best known cooking school teachers in this section, Miss Fossett has many treats and delightful surprises in store for the women of all parts of Newton.

In the many other communities where cooking schools have been held, her classes have always been filled to capacity by eager and enthusiastic women who carry away with them many helpful hints to make the task of preparing meals a satisfactory job for the cook as well as for the other members of the family. Miss Fossett's

Fire Prevention Meeting Tonight At City Hall

Tonight, Friday, Nov. 18, in the War Memorial Building at Newton City Hall the Newton Safety Council will hold a meeting at which the topic of "Fire Prevention" will be discussed. Alfred N. Miner, vice president of the Council, has secured as the principal speaker T. Alfred Fleming, nationally known speaker on fire protection, and Chairman of Conservation of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

At the time of the disastrous Lakeview School fire in Collingwood, Ohio, Mr. Fleming, at that time a clergyman, was passing by when the school

Community Chest Drive Passes Half-Way Mark

With contributions of $111,711.00 the Community Chest Campaign had achieved 56.8% of its goal on Wednesday night. Campaign leaders urged solicitors to speed their canvass in order to complete the Campaign by the closing date on November 22, when a "Shore Leave Party" for all Campaign workers will be held at the West Newton Armory.

Commenting on the progress of the Campaign A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., Campaign Chairman, pointed out the necessity of a prompt and generous response by contributors and complete coverage of all prospects by solicitors. "It is essential, also," he said, "that all solicitors turn in their cards promptly in order that Campaign Headquarters may tabulate the progress of the drive accurately. I urge every campaign worker to make every effort to complete his canvassing during the week-end and make his final report to his captain on Monday."

Chestnut Hill led the villages on Wednesday night with 75.6% of its goal pledge but West Newton was a close second with 66.6% and Newton stood third at 62.2% of its goal.

The standing of the other villages is as follows:

Auburndale	41.6%
Newton Centre	51.0%
Newton Highlands	62.2%
Newton Upper Falls	25.1%
Newtonville	48.4%
Nonantum	34.7%
Oak Hill	43.7%
Waban	58.9%
Waban Hill	39.8%

Plans for the "Shore Leave Party," November 22, the closing night of the Campaign, indicate that it will be a gala affair exceeding in interest even the "Harvest Night" of last year's drive.

Aldermen Condemn Overspending By City Departments

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night, Alderman Donald McKay, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board, as spokesman for the Finance and the Public Works Committees severely criticised the practice of various city departments of spending more than allotted them in budget appropriations. The immediate cause of the criticism was a recommendation from Mayor Childs asking that $289,000 additional be appropriated for supervision work in the Playground Department, and $250 for automobile maintenance in that department. During one of the customary long recesses which are held at every meeting of the Aldermen, the fourteen members of the Finance and Public Works Committee held a lengthy conference.

Alderman McKay said that the Playground Department had been allotted $30,000 by the Aldermen for supervision of playgrounds this year, instead of $32,000 requested in the budget, and it had been cautioned to keep within the amount appropriated. The department, however, had exhausted the $30,000 in slightly over 10 months and now asked for $2800 more. He stated that the two committees recommended a reduced additional appropriation of $1000 because of the knowledge that children who are using the playgrounds must be protected. The amount asked for automobile maintenance was not voted on. Alderman McKay said that other departments have also exceeded the budget appropriations apparently with the expectation that additional funds would be provided, and by reckless spending had nullified the work of the Board of Aldermen in carefully planning the finances of the city.

The Aldermen authorized an additional emergency loan of $13,000 to defray expenses incurred in repairing damage caused by the hurricane. The Mayor had recommended that a loan of $25,000 be authorized, but McKay explained that State officials regard the hurricane emergency as having passed and do not want further expenditures on this account. An additional appropriation of $2000 for Workmen's Compensation was voted; most of this sum will be required to pay for hospital treatment for one man severely injured in removing hurricane debris. Other appropriations included — Welfare Department, $45,530; care of sick poor, $3000; Street Department, maintenance of streets, $5000; WPA gypsy moth suppression project, $1000; WPA project on Hammond Brook, $500; widening of Dedham st., $4000; WPA sidewalk project, $2000. Water Department, for water mains, $2950; Health Department, $245; Public Buildings Department, to repair damages to buildings, $2000; for PWA project, $800.

Other recommendations made by the Mayor for appropriations which did not receive favorable consideration by the Aldermen included $120 for salary of an assistant city physician for the balance of this year, $150 for office expenses of Police Department and $200 for maintenance of automobiles in that department; Street Department, $5000 for collection of ashes, and $4000 for care of stables; $3700 for drain in Adams ave., West Newton. The Aldermen desired further information on these requests.

A hearing has been announced on the petition of the Martin Mfg. Company for a permit to install an underground tank at 1357 Washington st. for the storage of acetone in connection with the manufacture of rayon yarn. At the request of the petitioner this hearing was postponed. Alderman Rawson, reporting for the Claims and Rules Committee, turned down the petition of Emily D. Crowley for a permit to establish a tea room and

Work Started on Foundation of New Branch Library Building on Site of Old Newton Club at Walnut Street, Newtonville

Work has started on the excavation of the cellar for the new branch library at the corner of Walnut st. and Highland ave., Newtonville. The approval of PWA officials was received last Saturday on the contract for the foundation and batter boards were put on place on Monday. A shanty for the storage of tools was erected on

In February, 1936, title was taken to this large lot containing 30,000 square feet; and tentative arrangements were made with the City of Newton to erect the building if the land were paid for and given to the City.

In June, 1936, the campaign was started, over seventeen thousand dol-being situated only one block from the High Schools, would be a valuable reference library for the 2600 students of the High Schools, whose present library is very inadequate. With this in mind a much larger building was planned than would have been necessary for only a usual branch library. Therefore, this prothe lot a few days ago and the actual work of digging is expected to start today.

As early as February, 1935, the Newtonville Improvement Association decided to go ahead on a project for a branch library building to be erected on the site of the former Newton Club at the corner of Walnut st. and Highland ave., Newtonville. In previous years, projects for a combined community building and library on this site had been somewhat discussed. By the end of 1935, the Newtonville Library Association Inc., had been formed with a board of trustees, to acquire the site and proceed with payment therefore.

lars being raised in one day. Under the vigorous guidance of the Campaign Committee efforts were continued the next fall and through the succeeding two years, until a total of over thirty thousand dollars was raised. Many severe difficulties were overcome, through the perseverance and enthusiasm of the committee. Over twenty-three hundred persons have contributed to the fund, the majority being residents of Newtonville.

As envisaged by the Association, the new library would not only serve as a fine branch library serving the residents of Newtonville, being adjacent to the main shopping center, but ject is of great interest to all residents of Newton.

This library will hold about 30,000 books. However, provision is made at the rear of the lot for a further extension of the building should the occasion arise.

In the day-lighted basement of the new building will be a large children's room, with separate entrance, and also an auditorium seating 125 persons, with a movable stage and screen for lantern pictures. The much needed auditorium will be used for small local meetings, lectures, etc.

WELLESLEY HILLS — BRODRICK BROS. BUILDERS

Provencal in spirit, this fine, new Brodrick-built home follows the lines of a trim white villa set on a rock promontory overlooking the sea in Brittany. In the transition to a picturesque spot high in the Wellesley Hills none of its traditional charm has been lost. Blue-shuttered, with that lovely azure blue so typically French, this newest woman-planned home has a driveway which sweeps in a wide arc across the entrance courtyard and disappears behind a low circular-pillared buttress before it continues its curve back to the street.

However, antiquity departs the moment the threshold is crossed and the modern miracle of efficient home planning begins, borrowing here and there a thought from the past to fuse intelligently the old with the new.

Oak panelling carved in an ancient pattern, its surface rubbed to a smooth patina with glistening highlights and smouldering shadows, gives the living room an Old World air and attracts the interest to the fireplace at the far end. Oak, hand-carved in a lacy pattern supports the balustrade and forms a balcony at the top of the circular staircase in the spacious entrance hall.

Opening from the stair-hall at the right is the dining room; at the rear, the library with hooded fireplace astride a corner and a morning room so colorful and inviting that there will be no absentees at the breakfast roll call.

The tiled kitchen and butler's pantry, both masterpieces of efficiency have sink and working surfaces in beautiful and durable Monel metal and cabinets galore for storage and the display of fine china and crystal.

There are four master bedrooms, three baths paneled in Vitrolite; a linen room designed for the dual purpose of sewing room, boudoir or nursery. Servants are separately housed in their own wing over the 2-car garage, which can be expanded to include 4 cars with additional quarters above.

A Breton fishing village will be depicted in the murals of the basement recreation room. Add to all these the important fundamentals, a General Electric Oil Furnace, 2 lavatories, heavy slate roof, rock wool insulation, etc., that make all Brodrick-built homes so livable; place this lovely villa on an acre-size plot bounded on one side by a three-acre estate; at the rear by one of two acres and on the third by available acreage for those with acquisitive tendencies and it makes a perfect picture of any family's dream of HOME... complete and lovely without any of the harassing details of having to plan it.

Socially acceptable neighbors and permanent security against the intrusion of undesirables guarantee the home buyer's investment in this restricted, fashionable community.

CHARLES E. HATFIELD

Charles E. Hatfield has passed to the Great Beyond. For many years he took an active interest in the political life of the city, county and state. He was the mainspring of many political campaigns and few men, if any, possessed a wider political acquaintance nor a greater love for politics than the former Mayor of Newton. Yet whether the campaign he was interested in won or lost he always was the same. If it was a winning campaign he sought the weaknesses and strove to strengthen them. If it was a losing campaign he worked strenuously for success the next time. But the political life of Charles Hatfield, as he was known to all, was not his entire life. He took part in many private activities and his generosity and helpfulness to many were among the characteristics of his life. As had been well said in the tributes which have been paid him, Newton is the better for his having lived among us and although he has gone he will be long remembered.

A WORD TO THE WOMEN

Do not forget the first annual cooking school to be held in the afternoons of the first three days of the week following Thanksgiving. It is your opportunity to learn many things of advantage from Miss Margaret Fossett, director of the school, which is being sponsored by this newspaper and the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. We are confident that the preliminary announcement of this school will arouse much interest on the part of Newton women. Plan now to attend these sessions and watch our next issue for further announcement of many interesting and attractive features of the school.

THANKSGIVING DAY

It was a worthy custom which the Pilgrim fathers adopted in setting aside one day in the year for offering their thanks and gratitude to God for the plentiful harvests and protection which had been given them in the days of Colonial hardships. Today we have far more to be thankful for than our forefathers of that time, although in many ways it is obvious that we are so frequently unable to appreciate many of the advantages we have that three hundred years ago did not even exist. First of all, of course, we are thankful that these Pilgrim fathers had the courage, the hardihood and the perseverance to set up a new land of freedom in the wilderness of Massachusetts. It would be impossible to state all the many things to be thankful for but they would include the advantages that civilization has today in science, education, health, and the many, many matters which affect our daily lives and to which we scarcely give a thought. A few minutes of thought on Thanksgiving Day, apart from the hustle and bustle of life, will make us all more appreciative of the good things granted us from above.

West Newton Youth Gets Prison Term

Carl Pintabone, 18, of 86 Underwood Park, West Newton, was sentenced by Judge Crafts in the Waltham court on Wednesday to serve a term in Concord prison after he had been found guilty of stealing an automobile in Waltham. Pintabone appealed. He had a previous record. Albert Flagg, 18, of Falmouth rd., West Newton, who was involved also in the taking of the automobile, was sentenced to 30 days in prison, and the sentence was then suspended.

Sunbeam Chats

I feel sort o' sad today. Mother had nice custard for dessert, but I didn't get any 'cause I wouldn't eat my vegetables. There wasn't any candy so I thought what's the use of eating carrots. But, gee, I lost out and didn't even get my dessert. Guess from now on I'll eat what's on my plate without a word. Anyhow, carrots aren't so bad.

(Sunbeam Chats are sponsored by the Newton District Nursing Association.)

Work Started On New Library

Architecturally the building is a free adaptation of the Colonial, with walls of red brick and basement of Indiana Limestone with contrasting wood columns in white. An entrance lobby or vestibule leads to the central charging and delivery desks, lighted from above by a semi-circular skylight with tall side windows and glassed in cupola. Reading rooms are on each side, one for the general public and the other as a reference room, adaptable for high school students or other reference uses. The walls of both reading rooms are lined with book shelves, with windows above, giving ideal conditions of light. Ceilings are finished in acoustical plaster for absorbing any noise. The Librarian's room and service rooms are on this floor. The building will be heated by steam, with an air conditioning system, ensuring a proper circulation of warm air regulated by thermostatic control. Walnut st. is to be widened somewhat at this point, and the building will set back from the street line. The architects are Robb & Little of Boston. The Board of Trustees of the Newtonville Library Association, Inc., include George W. Taylor, president; Miss Margaret McGill, vice-president; Adam Haugh, treasurer; Mrs. Ernest P. Hallsback, clerk; Fred C. Alexander, Charles B. Broad, George L. Brooks, Warren K. Brimblecom, Charles R. Cabot, Mrs. Edwin P. Crawe, Paul E. Ellicker, Mrs. Albert P. Everts, J. P. ## Prof. Miller Next Newton Community Forum Speaker

The Subject of His Address Will Be "Propaganda"

On Sunday, November 20, 1938, at 3:30 p. m. in the Newton High School Auditorium, Dr. Clyde R. Miller, Associate Professor of Education, Columbia University, will address the Newton Community Forum on the benefits and perils of propaganda. Dr. Miller is in large part responsible for the monthly news letter of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis. The purpose of this Institute, which was founded in 1937, is "to assist the public in detecting and analyzing propaganda by conducting scientific research and education in the methods by which public opinion is influenced, by the analysis of propaganda methods and devices, and by the distribution of reports thereon."

CLYDE R. MILLER

Propaganda is the management of collective attitudes by means of significant symbols, rather than by violence, passive resistance, non-cooperation, bribery and allied methods of social control. The use of the word goes back to 1622, and refers to a congregation of cardinals charged with the management of missions to propagate or spread the faith. However the term "Propaganda" came into wide use during the World War as denoting the various agencies employed by the belligerents to influence public opinion favorably to their cause. Following the war, in the popular mind the term signified all forms of radical publicity and promotion. At present it is used loosely with reference to any special campaign of persuasion, but usually in an invidious sense.

The president and chairman of the Newton Community Forum is Dr. Kirtley F. Mather; the Executive Secretary-Treasurer is Walter M. Taylor. The Executive Committee is composed of the above and Russell V. Burkhardt, Adolph Giesberg, Mrs. Charles S. Grover, Kenneth S. May, and Dr. William T. O'Halloran. The committee chairmen are: Finance, Kenneth Eldredge; speakers and subjects, Mrs. Ben H. Badenoch; program, George L. White; organization, Julius E. Warren, supt. of schools; ushers, Miss Dorothy Barstow; music, Charles B. Harrington; publicity and promotion, Francis P. Frazier; reception, Mrs. George S. Fuller; junior committee, Daniel Needham, Jr.

Want City To Buy Land at Nonantum

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night a petition was received from Rev. Joseph Robichaud and others, asking that the city acquire the property of the late Effie Stearns to protect its interest in the Stearns School. The property is located at 259 to 283 Watertown st. and includes two old residences, between which is a large vacant lot. At the rear of this lot the Stearns School is located, and the rectory of St. Jean Evangeliste parish adjoins one side of the property. Following Miss Stearns' death, Mrs. Ella Humble of Boston, administrator of the estate, visited Mayor Childs and suggested that the city acquire the vacant lot to protect the school. The city, however, had no fund for such a purpose. The lot is about 150 feet deep and extends about 125 feet along Watertown st.

Recently the G. & S. Paper Company, of which Philip Gilfix is an executive, obtained a permit to erect a one story warehouse building on the lot. The building would be of cement block construction, with a metal roof and would have a driveway leading into a loading platform, and a two truck garage. On October 31 the Aldermen voted to grant a permit for the garage. At the meeting on Monday night, Alderman Fahey presented a motion to have the vote taken on October 31 reconsidered, and his motion was carried.

Neighborhood Dances To Be Omitted For Holidays

The committee in charge of Newton's Neighborhood Dances wishes to announce that because of the Thanksgiving Holidays the dances will be omitted on Nov. 22nd and 24th. The Newton Centre Dance will also be omitted on Thursday, Dec. 8th. These dances are being given under the sponsorship of the Newton Circle, Inc., a member agency of the Newton Community Chest. They are planned to meet the recreational needs of Newton young people over 16 years of age. There is a small entrance fee of 15 cents. Instruction is given from 7:30 to 8:15 when the doors are open for general dancing to a five-piece orchestra. They are held on Tuesday nights at the Bigelow Junior High School on Park st., Newton, and Thursday nights at the Newton Centre Women's Club House. Come and bring your friends.

Letters To The Editor

YOUR FRIEND AND MY FRIEND

Nov. 16, 1938.

Dear Warren:

May I, through your columns, pay my little tribute to your friend, my friend and the friend of every resident of Newton, the late Charles E. Hatfield?

It was my privilege to know Mr. Hatfield rather intimately—for over thirty years—ever since I cast my first vote. He was always the same—gentle, courteous and helpful, wherever I met him, whether in the political arena, in business, socially or in the Players, our oldest amateur dramatic organization, of which Mr. Hatfield was Treasurer even before I became active in 1910.

As the years roll by, it seems to me that many of us will look back with especial gratitude and appreciation to the good old days in the Players Hall (site of our new motion picture house) in West Newton, where, many times a year we gave performances, sometimes on three consecutive evenings, sometimes as many as four or five consecutive evenings. Always Mr. Hatfield was on hand, roaming up and down the aisles, greeting the vast majority of those in the audience and speaking a friendly word. In those days, Charles Hatfield, as he was affectionately called by us, merely the veteran Treasurer of the Players, —he was the Players, in the eyes of many of the old-timers. No one will ever know how many nurses from the Newton Hospital or how many others who might not find it convenient to attend, were present because of Mr. Hatfield's thoughtfulness and generosity.

He was our Mayor in those days—1910 to 1913. Chairman of the Republican State Committee, President of our leading West Newton bank, head of a stamp concern and a guiding spirit in countless civic enterprises as well as in his church—in everything, in fact, with which he was ever connected. Later on he became the head of the nationally known Scott Stamp and Coin Co. of New York, head of the new University Theatre in Harvard sq., Treasurer of Middlesex County, Treasurer of the Boston City Club, —but why try to enumerate his complete list of public activities? Newton will never, in my opinion, produce another man who embodied in himself so much of all that is fine and good and decent and worthwhile in a residential community like Newton.

Charles Hatfield has left us—yes, but his spirit will linger on, long after those of us who now mourn his loss have passed on. Newton will always be a better place in which to live just because he spent seventy-five busy, useful and happy years in our midst.

PHILIP W. CARTER.

"THIS WAS A MAN"

Nov. 15, 1938.

The Editor of the Newton Graphic, Dear Sir:

In the passing of Hon. Charles E. Hatfield this city has suffered a great loss. As Mayor, as chairman of the Republican City Committee, and as Treasurer of Middlesex County he was a wise and capable leader, and a really great man, whose faithful and efficient public services will be long remembered.

As a political and civic leader he was, in my humble opinion, the greatest influence for good and honest government in this city in our time. Many a man who has rendered, or is now rendering worthwhile service to our city and this commonwealth did so because Charles Hatfield persuaded him that it was his turn to take his "trick at the wheel," and then Charles saw to it that he was elected. Also he never laid upon those whom he had supported any obligation to do him any favor.

He loved politics as a game to be played honestly, squarely and generously, and he was just as good a loser as he was a winner, the real test of true sportsmanship. Charles Hatfield was ever greater as a friend, however. He had friends in every walk of life, and he was "Charlie" to all. No one will ever know the full story of his generous kindnesses to those in need in Newton and elsewhere. It was particularly men that he strove to help, and of those men that with his friendship, I know whereof I speak. All were better men and better citizens because of his faith in them. To all his friendship was one of the exceedingly precious things of life.

Though Charles Hatfield has gone to his reward, his influence will long remain a glorious part of Newton's heritage. In the words of the immortal Bard of Avon:

"His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that Nature might stand up And say to all the world 'this was a man!'"

Yours truly,
GEORGE E. RAWSON.

Eighteenth Annual Young People's District Conference

The principal speaker will be Rev. Dwight J. Bradley, D.D., former minister of the First Congregational Church in Newton and now director of the National Council of Social Action of Congregational and Christian Churches. antique shop at 1185 Boylston st., in a private residence zone. Rawson stated that several neighbors had objected, that the petitioner did not satisfy the committee that she intended to conduct the business herself, and that it seemed the permit, if granted, might be used to enhance the sale value of the property. A petition of the Newton Savings Bank to have property at 113 Washington st., Newton changed from single to private residence zone was refused. The petition of Eli Alter to have a small parcel of land at 2256 Washington st. placed in manufacturing zone was granted. It had recently been purchased from the Metropolitan District Commission and was previously not zoned.

A permit was granted to Martha Lovely to move a two-family house from the corner of Pearl st. and Jackson rd., Newton, to a new site on Gardner st. The house is one of those taken for the site of the new school. It will be moved about 200 feet over a lot taken for the school site, and it will not be necessary to cut any trees while the house is being moved.

A petition was received from Charles Spezzano for a permit to erect a building to house 200 chickens at 97 Florence st., Newton Centre. There will be a hearing on this petition. A permit was granted Tornabene Brothers to build an addition to an office at 372 Langley rd., in a private residence district. The interesting thing about this was—that the addition had already been built.

Fire Prevention Meeting Tonight

burst into flames. Rushing over to help, he saw that while children were coming out of the front door in perfect drill formation, others were dropping out of the second story windows in the rear. The exit door there was still closed, and Fleming couldn't budge it. When he finally succeeded in prying the door open, a twelve-foot stack of bodies was piled up, packed so tightly that he couldn't move them.

Fleming knew many of the children who were caught there, pleading for help—and when the ordeal was over he had a nervous breakdown. When he recovered he gave up the ministry and began to preach fire prevention. He has been leading that fight ever since.

The meeting will be opened by Mr. Miner and General Daniel Needham will preside. Besides Mr. Fleming, Lewis McBrayne, chairman of the Massachusetts Safety Council, and Chief Clarence Randlett of the Newton Fire Department, will address the meeting. The meeting is open to the public and it is hoped that residents of Newton will show their interest by attending. This city has a very efficient fire department, and enjoys low insurance rates as a result. By keeping up public interest in fire protection, these low rates can be continued.

Plan Course In Organization At Lincoln Technical Inst.

The Lincoln Technical Institute in January will begin a course in the art and method of organization which it is expected will become the nucleus of a School for Organization. The art of getting things done is a highly technical thing. Its principles operate in all professions, in all businesses, and in all phases of human activity. Modern business, with all its efficiency, has not yet come to see the need of trained organizers.

The course will consist of a series of twelve meetings during which the attending students will be given instruction in the principles of organization, supplemented by individual work of a practical nature. The course will be conducted by Captain P. R. Creed of Newton with the assistance of special lecturers outstanding in their particular field. Captain Creed's book, "How To Get Things Done," furnishes the reasons for undertaking this pioneering task. In his book he gives the essence of thirty years of practical experience covering an unusually wide field. Captain Creed has been a member of the staff of the London Times and has done successful organizing work for Lord Cromer, Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener. His work has also brought him in contact with King George V., Lord Asquith, Lord Northcliffe and most of the leading men of the day in England. He has been a resident of this country for the past fifteen years.

His story of how he came to develop the task of providing instruction in organization is of unusual interest. He states that for some years he had been suggesting that the time had come to overhaul the prevailing system of organization but was met with little encouragement until he met Mayor Edwin O. Childs. The latter's encouragement and co-operation led to the writing of the book the publishing of which brought immediate response in the added proposal of a course of instruction. As Captain Creed says, "the project now approaching a practical outlook was conceived in Newton and my natural hope is that Newton will be strongly represented among the students who assemble on January 19th next at the Lincoln Technical Institute."

Powers' Paragraphs

In past years hundreds of men in this country have paid the death penalty for having become drunk, and while in that condition murdered some person. Many hundreds of men have been found guilty of manslaughter for having killed someone while drunk, and sentenced to long terms in prison, or even to life imprisonment. But, in recent years many thousands of men, women and children have been slaughtered by drunken drivers of automobiles in the U. S. A., and the drunken brutes responsible for the horrible deaths of their victims, either have been sentenced to short terms in prison, or for the most part have not even been given a jail sentence. The other day in a Massachusetts city a drunken driver steered an automobile onto a sidewalk, jammed a 21 year old youth between the bumper and a mudguard of the car, and then with the youth's body hanging downward, speeded the automobile along streets for several hundred yards before the lifeless form of the victim was dislodged onto the street, a broken, battered thing, with the face so mangled that a Social Security card had to be used to identify what a couple of minutes before had been a young man.

The amok, drunken driver then ran the car onto another sidewalk, smashed its wheels, and was caught by two young men who had pursued him in another automobile. Fighting madly, he was clubbed into submission by the police. He was arraigned in court on charges of manslaughter, driving while under the influence of liquor, and leaving the scene of an accident—and he was released on bonds of $2400. Do you wonder that thousands of persons are killed yearly in the U. S. A. by drunken drivers when such lenient treatment is accorded those responsible for such frightful deaths? Until those who get drunk and kill people by driving automobiles, will not only be charged with manslaughter, but also found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to long terms in prison, there will be little diminution in this type of homicide which is so prevalent in this allegedly civilized country.

The proposal of Corporation Counsel Henry Parkman of Boston that the existing Metropolitan District, comprising 43 cities and towns around Boston, be expanded so that 80 communities in the Eastern part of Massachusetts will be included, deserves serious consideration. Mr. Parkman argues that while the 43 cities and towns have been bearing the burden of financing the Metropolitan District activities, residents of the other communities which he would add to the district, have been enjoying the facilities provided.

The criticism made at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen last Monday night about the Playground Department spending funds allotted it for a year, in less than that time, brings before the public again a question that has been a cause of controversy in the Newton Playground Commission the past couple of years. This is—the introduction of community centre work as part of the activities of the Newton Playground Department. Since the Newton Playground Department was started 26 years ago, its activities consisted of the creation and supervision of playgrounds, especially during the summer months, and of skating places in the winter months. For the past 20 years it has co-operated with the Stearns School Centre at Nonantum in community work there, and for several years it has assisted to some extent with the West Newton Community Centre.

Until the past few years the activities of the Playground Department were controlled by Ernest Hermann, head of the Playground Department, with the Playground Commission serving mostly in an advisory capacity. The personnel of the commission became changed and some of the new members changed its policy, insisting in exercising executive prerogatives. They also favored the introduction of a radical change in the activities of the Playground Department by adding community centre work as a regular function. Last year community centres were established at the Emerson School in Upper Falls, and at the Bowen School in Thompsonville and when the budget of the Playground Department was arranged early this year, $8000 was allocated for community centre work. As this sum was set aside from the $30,000 total appropriated for the Playground Department, it meant that a considerable curtailment had to be made in the usual supervision which playgrounds had been given in past years.

We are not objecting to community centres or social service work, although such paternalistic activities on the part of municipalities, State or Federal governments can be overdone, especially with people who are still off welfare more and more burdened with taxation. But, we do not believe that the introduction of this new activity on the part of the City of Newton should result in a curtailment of the excellent playground activity which has won for Newton a nation-wide reputation. Neither do we believe that community centre work which is primarily intended for young people in their late teens, or older, be attempted under impractical conditions. Young men and women will not flock to community centres in kindergarten rooms or in class rooms of trade schools. Two new schools in this city, one being built, and the other to be shortly started, will have facilities for community activities. If Newton wants to spend money on social service work in community centres, let such work be kept distinctly from playground work and let it be budgeted separately.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

Light or Dark Meat

The day approaches when the head of the house takes the centre of the stage and, with gleaming knife and steady fork, proceeds to dismember the Thanksgiving turkey. Although he may be well qualified for the task, he is almost certain to receive ample advice from the sidelines. This, and the necessity of politely inquiring, "light or dark?" means that he will be thoroughly occupied. It may be that he enjoys it but surely he must have a steady hand, patience and power to look pleasant under trying circumstances. Of course we want to help him and for people who hadn't thought much about it, I have one or two suggestions. Let us remind those in charge of arrangements that the carving implement be equipped with the keenest edge possible. Too often have carvers been forced to pause and inquire why this was not done. Then if those who are to attend could be consulted a day or two beforehand as to their preference and a memorandum furnished in advance there would be no painful delay while each was asked, "Well, now, which part do you prefer and will you have light or dark meat?"

Good Reason for Thanks

Not to sermonize, but isn't it in order that we run over some of our blessings so that when we celebrate Thanksgiving Day we may have in mind specific instances of gratitude. Let's see—no more noisy radio blasts about politics for a while at least; we haven't in Newton any Plan E agitation, this is as far as I know, which is comforting. Hats in the air, for definite evidence of a trend to conservatism all over the country. Personally, I'd like to thank the people I have had to call on for the Community Chest for striving to give all they could. As Newton citizens we may rejoice that we've a Governor—right here among our citizenry—who, when invited to an occasion of real importance in Newton, won't have to make the journey from out of town.

First Class Optimism

Here it is the middle of November and yet reports keep coming in—of had been when this was written—of blooming flowers in the open, right here in our own gardens. Fortune has given me many good friends and one of them deposited on my porch a basket of luxuriant pansies. They were grown outdoors, not so far from Newton. In my pride I called them to the attention of an old gentleman who lives a few doors away. He, too, admired their beauty, remarking, "Well, I guess the winter's over."

Unfinished Business

Personally, I am not as much concerned over bookmarks and what is printed on them as I am that they shall be suitable in character for the uses to which they are put. If only fairly heavy paper were used, or leather, or what is recognized as appropriate—that would be all right with me. It isn't always the case, unfortunately. I have seen many other articles, including eyeglasses (cases containing same or minus), postcards, letters, spoons, fruit knives, manicure files, keys, matches in folders and singly, scissors, pipes, cigarette packages—yes, and about anything that will keep the pages apart and not soil them. All this is to be preferred to placing an open book upside down on the table but it isn't good—at least not for the volume. I am wondering if it really is so important that we must not "lose the place" where we stopped reading. Naturally, nobody wants to miss anything, but still I'd like to know if any harm would come of going over the same pages a second time.

New Idea for Christmas

So many covers of magazines, some of them back numbers already, have pictures of children on Christmas. Santa Claus himself and other designs alluding to December 25, 1938, that I wonder if more people are not mixed up on their holidays. Only last week I found a page of hints about the Yuletide menu when some of us haven't fully settled on that of Thanksgiving. If more and more is to be made of the gastronomic features of Christmas it seems to me that it is liable to take the edge off our Thanksgiving appetite. No doubt we eat altogether too much on holidays and all other days for that matter, but if food is to be one of the first considerations we ought to be ready for it. In light of all that comes to me through these periodicals, I have decided that I would list my desires. Instead of asking Santa Claus to bring me neckties, gloves, handkerchiefs, as I feel almost certain he will, I am going to join the fashion of the day and write to him for a box of grapefruit for breakfast, fruit cake, candy, plum pudding, figs, dates and other high-priced delicacies for dinner and anything in the way of fancy jellies, preserves, etc., that are new to the market. This also inspires a new greeting for the day—"Hearty appetite for Christmas."

In Move to Reduce Deficit 'EL' Trustees Apply Regular 10¢ Fare to All Rides

Since 1932, the Boston Elevated Railway has been operating at an annual deficit which by law has been assessed upon the taxpayers in the cities and towns served.

Since 1929, annual operating expenses (over which the trustees have control) have been reduced by $5,300,000.

Fixed charges (over which the trustees have no direct control) have remained practically constant. These fixed charges now amount to 37% of total income.

Since 1929, total annual income has dropped by more than $8,000,000.

A substantial increase in revenues would materially reduce the burden now carried by the taxpayers.

Accordingly, as an experimental step towards reducing the deficit, the 5¢ local rides will be discontinued on Saturday, November 19, for a trial period. The regular 10¢ fare with present transfer privileges will be in effect on all lines. The 5¢ pupils' ticket will not be changed.

Number Pool Gang Pay Heavy Fines

In the Newton court last Thursday Angelo Piacentini, 26, of Dunham st., Somerville, was fined $100 for promoting a lottery. He was also given a suspended sentence of 3 months in jail. On a charge of threatening a Nonantum woman, he was found not guilty. Nicholas Palumbo of 11 Hanson ave., Somerville, and Robert Kelly of Regent st., Cambridge, were also found guilty of promoting a lottery, and fined $50 each. The three were arrested by Newton police as a result of a complaint made by a woman residing on Dalby st., Nonantum, who had been playing the number pool to such an extent that she had become indebted to a couple of the defendants for a considerable sum. She told Chief Hughes that Piacentini came to her home and warned her that unless she paid up before October 12, she would not see the light of day on that date. Judge Creehan, who presided at the trial stated that the evidence did not warrant holding Piacentini for the Grand jury on the charges of extortion or making a threat.

Claim N'ville Boy Is Bag Snatcher

A 15-year-old high-school student who resides on Edinboro st., Newtonville, was arraigned in the Newton court on Tuesday charged with having been the youth who twice recently snatched handbags from two women in this city. Inspector Hammell who had been investigating the thefts, took a young woman who witnessed the snatching of a handbag from Vera Kye on Austin st. last Saturday night to the F. A. Day School and showed her photographs of the 1937 class of that school. She identified the photograph of a boy in the class as the bag snatcher. Early Tuesday morning Hammell took the boy into custody and the youth was later identified at police headquarters by May Taylor of 188 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill, whose handbag was snatched near Boston College on the night of November 7. Another girl also identified the accused boy as the one whom she saw snatching a handbag. The alleged handbag snatcher will be arraigned in the juvenile session of the Newton court today.

Serious Fire In Newtonville Home

A fire which caused damage estimated at about $5000 occurred on Tuesday morning at the home of William T. Halliday, 85 Washington pk., Newtonville. The fire was discovered about 10 o'clock by Mrs. Halliday and a telephone alarm was sent to fire department headquarters. When Engine 4 arrived the blaze had spread up through the second story and had reached the roof. More apparatus was sent for, and before the flames were extinguished considerable damage had been done. The house is owned by the Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Hallidays had resided there only about a month. A fire had been started in a fireplace and it is supposed that a defective chimney caused flames to work between partitions.

On Monday at 2:38 p. m. Engine 3 went to 26 Beecher pl. to extinguish a chimney fire. On Monday at 4:53 p. m. Engine 2 went to 41 Cottier rd., Waban, where a defective chimney had started a fire.

Turner of 164 Washington ave., Waltham. The car was stolen early Friday evening while parked near its owner's home and news of its theft was broadcast on police teletypes. He testified that on October 26 the two young men threw stones which hit his boat and damaged it. The alleged stone throwers (not from Tipperary) admitted guilt and the case was continued to Nov. 21 for disposition.

District Nursing Asso

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Newton District Nursing Association was held on November 14, 1938, with the president, Mrs. Louis W. Arnold presiding.

The nursing committee reported the appointment of Miss Susan Andrews, a recent graduate of the Simmons School of Public Health Nursing, as an addition to the nursing staff.

Miss Nelson's report for the month of October showed the total number of patients was 631, with 1870 visits made. This was an increase of 200 visits over the number of visits made in October 1937. The Well Baby Conferences have shown a decided growth during the past year, partly due to the new Conference opened at Newton Highlands. A comparison of the attendance record for October 1937 and that for October 1938 at these conferences shows an increase of 132 visits.

There was also an increase over 1937 in the nursing work carried on for the two insurance companies. There was an enrollment of 104 at the Mother's Classes at the Newton Hospital. Out Patient Department, where talks were given by Miss Charlotte Raymond, Community Nutritionist, and Miss Nelson.

Dr. Choje was the guest speaker of the morning, and his subject was "Trends in Public Health." He traced the rapid development of public health work in Newton during the past three years and then outlined the important objectives for the future.

Youth Burned Fighting Fire

Douglas Phillips, 20, of Seaverns st., Jamaica Plain, received burns on his face and hands last Friday while he was assisting Mrs. Osborne Brown in extinguishing a fire at her home, 801 Chestnut st., Waban. Phillips, employed on a delivery truck of a Boston department store, had just called at the house when Mrs. Brown's young daughter cried out that the house was afire. A curtain in a bedroom had become ignited. Phillips grabbed a pillow to smother the flames, and Mrs. Brown brought pailsful of water. They extinguished the blaze before the firemen arrived. Phillips was taken to the Newton Hospital for treatment.

Another Handbag Theft at N'ville

The second handbag robbery in the same neighborhood at Newtonville occurred last Saturday night when a youth grabbed the handbag of Vera Kye of 171 Highland ave., as she was walking opposite 28 Austin st. The bag contained $3.40. Miss Kye told the police that she was walking along Austin st. about 8:30 when a very thin youth, about 16 years of age, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, and wearing a reversible trench coat, grabbed her handbag and ran away. Police cars were rushed to the scene but could find no trace of the robber.

Rice of the Boston Museum of Natural History was introduced by Jim Melcher and spoke on the subject "Behind the Scenes of a Museum of Natural History." The talk was an informal one and included many interesting bits about the people who visit the Museum. The building which houses the museum is situated at the corner of Boylston and Berkeley sts. in Boston and was built in 1864. Dr. Rice divided the functions of the Museum into five major divisions as follows: No. 1, Research and Explorations; No. 2, Preservation of Specimens; No. 3, Publication of the Results of Research; No. 4, Exhibition of the Specimens and No. 5, Education which includes public lectures and specialized courses in various subjects.

The museum has one of the best libraries of its kind in the country and depends on private endowments, gifts and memberships for its support.

The first of this week Newton police ordered Henry Hutchby of 52 Freeman st., Auburndale, to restrain his dog because A. W. Swenson of 20 Staniford st., had complained that the canine had bitten his young daughter. Hutchby told the police that his dog had not bitten the little girl. ## WOMEN'S CLUB ACTIVITIES

Heirlooms Day, With Exhibit Of Treasures

Heirlooms Day, sponsored by the Education committee, will be featured at the Newtonville Woman's Club House on Monday, November 21, at 2:30 p. m., with Miss Eleanor Hudson as the speaker. Miss Hudson is chairman of the State Federation division for the Preservation of Antiques, and she has gleaned much entertaining and valuable information from the activities of other clubs in preserving antiques that is sure to be of great interest to her audience. Club members urged to bring any heirlooms, cherished for personal or historical associations, to this meeting. The chairman, Mrs. Edward C. Fales, will see that they are well displayed and their individual histories made known to Club members.

Before a large and enthusiastic audience of the Newtonville Woman's Club, Tuesday, November 15, Mr. Alton Hall Blackington gave his illustrated talk on "The Romance of News Gathering." Taken directly in color by photography the pictures combined beauty and accuracy, and like the old proverb of the Blue Bird that happiness lies near at hand, it was the unusual angle in familiar scenes that Mr. Blackington stressed which gave them such heightened interest to his audience. Opening with a colorful spectacle of the Ancients and Honorables on the Boston Common, Mr. Blackington traveled northward, through the gray fishing towns of Gloucester and Rockport to the rocky shores of Maine, and through the sleepy little mountain towns of Vermont and New Hampshire, with their green fields and white church spires. Many interesting people were introduced during his narrative, including such famous authors as Kenneth Roberts, Sinclair Lewis, Dorothy Thompson, and Robert Frost.

each with an appealing human interest story, and there were also many quaint characters of the older generation typical of the small country town. His keen, kindly, and humorous remarks punctuated his lecture entertainingly.

Before the program, Mrs. Thomas G. Walters, who introduced the speaker, gave in detail the facts relative to the recently-organized Junior Club of which she and Mrs. John R. Tolman are the sponsors.

Mrs. Frank M. Simmons, chairman of the Volunteer Service committee, spoke briefly of the Christmas Seals which Club members would receive the day after Thanksgiving. She described the good that was being accomplished from the sale of these stamps and hoped that all Club members would co-operate with this activity.

Quaint Show of Peasant Costumes

"Styles Here and There," with Club members as models, will be the feature offered for the next meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club at 2:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday, November 22.

At this time the Program committee, Mrs. Winthrop Stiles, chairman, will present Mrs. Raymond A. Green. Mrs. Green has made a hobby of collecting many of the styles which are so rapidly being abandoned by the peasants in Europe, and having recently returned from there, she is bringing to the Club the choicest of her collection. She will be introduced by the Day chairman, Mrs. E. Graham Bates.

The residents of the Walker Missionary Home have been invited to be guests of the Club at this time.

A Variety of Programs

Attractive Lecture On Williamsburg

"The Restoration of Williamsburg" will be the subject for an entertaining program at the Waban Woman's Club meeting on Monday, November 21, at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Sidney Shurcliff, landscape architect and co-worker in the restoration, will give a lecture illustrated by colored pictures, on this picturesque one-time capital of Virginia. Mrs. William F. Leach, Twelfth District director, will be a guest of honor.

Under the direction of the Art chairman, Mrs. John A. McAuliffe, there will be an Art Exhibition of portraits and landscapes in oils, by the well-known Waban artist, Mr. Harold W. Cheney.

Mrs. William P. Beetham, Social chairman, has asked Mrs. Herbert W. Smith and Mrs. B. Alden Thresher, past presidents, to pour.

Philanthropic Bridge At Waban

The Philanthropic Bridge, with Mrs. Harcourt W. Davis, chairman, met with even greater enthusiasm last year, when Waban Woman's Club members for the first time, opened their homes for smaller groups, which added greatly to the sociability of the party.

On November 28 at 1:30 o'clock a dessert-bridge will be held at the following homes: Mrs. V. C. Beck, 255 Beacon st.; Mrs. Carl F. Danner, 119 Waban ave.; Mrs. Chester L. Churchill, 20 Holly rd.; Mrs. George M. Belcher, 255 Waban ave.; Mrs. Hugh Munro, 1784 Beacon st.; Mrs. E. #### Newton Community Club

"Reflections of China in the American Mirror" was the subject presented by Carl Robinson to a large audience of the Newton Community Club, on Thursday, November 10, in Underwood School Auditorium. His pictures, of beautiful color, and well chosen to emphasize his points, added to the most interesting way in which he told of the life and country of the different sections of China. Various articles from the Orient, displayed on the platform, gave an atmosphere which fitted in appropriately with the program.

Tea and sandwiches were served by Mrs. Allan N. Kee and her committee. The pourers were Mrs. Warren W. Marston, Mrs. William M. Wasson, Mrs. Francis H. Franklin, and Mrs. George A. Sampson.

Miss Hope M. Mudge gave notices of the meeting sponsored by a division of the State Federation at the Chelsea Naval Hospital, November 29, and of the Needle Work Art Exhibit to be held at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, November 14 and 19.

Mrs. Frank H. Briggs spoke of the Twelfth District Conference to be held at Needham, also on the 29th.

Woman's Club of Newton Highlands

Sanford Bates, Executive Director of Boys' Clubs of America, was the speaker at the Guest Afternoon on Tuesday, November 15, of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands. His subject was "An Ounce Versus the Pound." Mr. Bates told of his visit to Prague in 1930 and of the progressive Prussian prison system. By 1933 the prisoner was made to feel the power of the State, and by 1935 the old penal system was gone, and the new law was "no crime without punishment," he stated. Mr. Bates spoke of his difficulty in visiting the Soviet prison, here the prisoners work for full wages and are allowed to intermarry. He explained that "it would not be possible for us to use this system because we have no tight control of the individual as the Russians have with their passports."

In contrast Mr. Bates said that people should not be afraid to advocate a humane prison system. He felt that crime could not be cured by an official approach as it was a social disease. Also, he stated that boys' clubs are a preventive to juvenile delinquency; that our job is to protect boys by giving them recognition, friendship, security, and opportunity for achievement and power.

Mrs. Frank P. Patterson, chairman of Public Health, told of the use to which Christmas Seal money is put, and urged members to buy. She explained that this philanthropy does not come under the Community Chest.

The second of the series of Book Talks by Mrs. Thomas Rudkin will be given Tuesday, November 29, at 10 a. m.

A dinner table, tastefully decorated for Thanksgiving, was the Art committee's contribution to the day.

State Sponsors Good Cheer for The Disabled

"November 29 is Federation Day at the Veterans Hospital in Chelsea," is the reminder from Mrs. G. Viola Dangelmayr, State Federation chairman of the division of Co-operation with Disabled War Veterans. "There will be a dessert-luncheon, and inspection of the Hospital from 1 to 2 o'clock, and visitors will play cards with the veterans until 3:30 o'clock." Interested clubwomen are also invited to attend Federation Day on December 15 at Rutland, when all bags will be given to the men in the wards. The Christmas bags are eagerly awaited by the veterans, and clubwomen are urged to have them at the hospitals ready for distribution by December 10.

Mrs. Dangelmayr appeals to clubwomen to make the Christmas holidays happy for our disabled veterans and their families by preparing these Christmas bags for them. The veterans find in them not only gifts for themselves, but gifts that they can bestow upon their loved ones, wives and children, gifts made possible for

Modern Drugs Come From Far Lands

Hubbard's Drug Store is a museum of strange and wonderful things. The drugs assembled there, marshalled in orderly rows of shining glass bottles, have been brought from every corner of the world to help nature restore health. A single prescription may contain substances from the five continents.

Side wheel steamers have chugged far into the upper regions of the Amazon for cinchona bark from which quinine is made. Camel caravans have wound along snaky paths through the hills of Persia and Arabia to market with their loads of gum tragacanth, which gives consistency to pills, reeking asafetida and colocyth. Dog sledges have crossed the frozen plains of Siberia, bullock carts have crawled creaking over the long roads of India, and down myriad Chinese waterways unwieldy junks have sailed bringing to market important drugs and healing substances from the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms which eventually find their way to Hubbard's and countless other corner drug stores.

Today the discovery of valuable remedies is not left to chance, drug experts are constantly seeking new drugs and experimenting with their effects. How modest seem the simple mortars, retorts and filters of the apothecaries of 50 years ago compared with the equipment and apparatus found in Hubbard's Drug store today.

The 12,000 or more drugs that are used by modern physicians are generally divided into groups named according to the effect produced by them on the human body. Thus we have anodynes, hypnotics, anesthetics, narcotics, stimulants, antipyretics, astringents, antiseptics etc. Modern science has found in coal tar a rich source of drugs and chemicals. The disinfectant carbolic acid and such drugs as acetanilid, phenacetin, phenolphthalein and a host of common every-day drugs are derived from coal tar. The drugs of recognized value and known composition are listed in an official publication called the United States Pharmacopoeia, generally referred to by pharmacists as "The Druggists' Bible." This book was designated as the legal standard for drugs by the Pure Food and Drugs Act of 1906. Valuable as medicinal agents may be, however, few of them should be employed except on a physician's advice. Only a very small proportion of them are specifics, that is, adapted to remedy or prevent some specific disease, as quinine for malaria etc., and most of them are poisonous if taken in large doses or for a long period.

Hubbard's have made a strict rule which is religiously adhered to and that is "We do not counter-prescribe," we advise you to see your physician."

History Of Hubbard Drug Store

In 1854 Franklin Pierce was President of the United States, and the Governor of Massachusetts was Emory Washburn. In that year Charles F. Rogers opened an apothecary shop at 402 Centre st., Newton, "for the purpose of compounding and dispensing medicines for the cure and relief of ills and diseases of man and beast."

WILFRED CHAGNON

The shop was small and conveniences were few. Water was to be had at the pump behind the store, and kerosene lamps furnished illumination.

In those days "compounding medicines" meant just that. It was the duty of the apothecary to grind his herbs, distill spirits, make infusions, roll pills, prepare solid and fluid extracts by maceration, percolation and evaporation.

Charlie Rogers worked hard and long and prospered. His small store grew and he found it necessary to hire two clerks and he did hire a Mr. Hubbard and a Mr. Proctor. Business flourished and after a few years Mr. Rogers retired and sold his store to Hubbard and Proctor.

In 1894 Mr. Hubbard purchased his partner's interests and moved to the present location on Centre st., where he conducted the business as Hubbard's Drug Store until his death in 1917.

Business was then continued by Whitney Hubbard, his son, until 1920 when it was taken over by Charles E. Mason and Wilfred Chagnon. Upon the death of Mr. Mason, in 1926, his interest was acquired by Wilfred Chagnon, the present owner.

Today Hubbard's employs 10 clerks, of whom 5 are registered pharmacists. There are but five retail drug stores in New England that employ as many registered clerks. Prescriptions are filled by registered men only at Hubbard's, and the high regard in which physicians hold this pharmacy speaks for the care taken and the quality of drugs used in the compounding of prescriptions.

For the past 7 consecutive years, Hubbard's have won first prize for the best window display, in a contest conducted by the National and Massachusetts State Associations of Retail Druggists.

Mr. Chagnon is past first vice president of the Boston Association of Retail Druggists, a former Chairman of Committees of the National Association of Retail Druggists, a past president of the Independent Retail Druggists of New England, a present member of the foregoing associations and of the Boston Druggists' Association.

Divided on Adams Street Extension

The question of extending Adams st. so that it will be a through street from Washington st. to California st. is again attracting the attention of the Board of Aldermen. For many years there have been recurring petitions to have this street extended from Watertown st. so that it will afford through access to California st. Adams st. is Nonantum's second most important street between Washington and Watertown sts. From Watertown st. it continues a narrow and unaccepted public way for about 125 yards, and then comes to a dead-end on private property. A short distance beyond the street resumes its way and continues to California st. It has been tried a number of times to have the gap removed and another effort is now being made. A counter petition has also been received at City Hall. This petition is signed by the Garden City Laundry Company, the Newton Savings Bank (which holds a mortgage on a nearby piece of property) and several other property owners.

To add to this pleasure, the American Legion Auxiliary, under the direction of president Esther Faherty, each boy will be presented with a bag of candy.

BROOKLINE SLIGHTLY FAVORED OVER NEWTON

Newton and Brookline high will clash in their annual Thanksgiving Day game at Dickinson stadium, Newtonville in a game which marks the end of a disappointing season for both eleven. Last Saturday the Wealthy Towners chalked up their first victory of the dying 1938 season while Newton has yet to do so. On the basis of season's records the Brookline outfit must be given a slight edge although, as in almost every other Newton-Brookline battle, the outcome is a decided toss-up.

During the present season Newton has unquestionably faced a stiffer schedule than the Brooklinites as such teams as Arlington, Everett, Brockton and Waltham are far stronger than such teams as Winthrop, Fairhaven, Punchard and New Bedford Vocational. It was this latter team that provided Brookline with its only win while the Brookline-Fitchburg game ended in a 12 to 12 tie.

The two teams have met three common opponents in Quincy and the two Suburban League Cambridge outfits, Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech. The Granite City team topped Brookline 13 to 0 and triumphed over Newton 19 to 12 in a game which the orange and black literally handed their opponents on a silver platter, coming from behind to take the lead and then seeing the visitors put over a last period flurry which brought them victory.

While Newton held the Cantabs to a first-game 0 to 0 tie the Brookline eleven succumbed to a 7 to 13 mid-season defeat. The Rindge game provided a rather striking similarity with the engineers whitewashing Brookline 32 to 0 and then turning the trick to the tune of 25 to 0 at Newton a week or so later.

This, while on paper Newton might seem to have a slight edge, the Brookline players, coaches and in fact the entire school point for the Newton game whereas in more recent years the Newton outfit has reached its peak for the Waltham game and frequently is under par for the final Turkey day encounter. The fact that the New-

WALTHAM DEALS OUT NEWTON'S SEVENTH LOSS

A superior Waltham High football team rode to a 20 to 0 victory over Newton High last Friday at Waltham with the Watch City lads administering Newton's seventh defeat in eight games of the 1938 season. Although the three touchdown margin and the whitewash brush made Newton look rather bad, but there were several bright spots on the orange and black horizon. On several occasions the Newton outfit flashed to throw scares into the rabid Waltham supporters but all in all the Leary coached outfit had too much for the locals to buck up against. Waltham, having been turned back the week previous by a fast-stepping Medford outfit and with recollections of the 26-6 Newton victory a year ago, was in a mad-cap mood which boded ill for Coach Sanborn's boys.

Newton threatened twice largely due to Billy Pasco's thrilling end sweeps with Bob Liming playing his usual good game and Art Hughes uncorking several long punts which pulled Newton out of more serious difficulties. Captain Phil Caminiti of Waltham was the main sparkplug scoring twice and passing to a teammate for the third touchdown and adding two more points by placement goals. He was ably abetted by George Wheeler, Dick Johnstone, in the backfield and Roland Caisey at left end.

Waltham kicked off with Pesky returning the ball to the Newton 30. Pesky swept the end for a first down and Hughes, on a fake kick play, passed to Hurley who raced a good 20 yards to the Waltham 23 where the home team stiffened to take the ball on downs. An off-tackle smash to the Waltham 48 preceded Caminiti's quick kick to Hurley who fought his way back to his 30 yard line. Hughes ensuing kick gave Waltham the ball again on their own 40. Wheeler spun off-tackle for 22 yards and then Caminiti faded back to toss a long pass to Caisey which the latter gathered in to race across the goal line for the initial score. Caminiti kicked the point. Two plays after the kickoff Waltham in possession of the ball on their own 24 yard line the quarter ended.

Hughes punted to the Waltham 40 and after two passes failed to click Caminiti booted to Heath at the Newton 25. Hughes again punted with Caminiti getting back to the Newton 40. A holding penalty set the Watch City outfit back 15 yards. A recovered Waltham fumble was offset by a 10 yard pass to Caisey. An exchange of kicks gave Waltham the ball at midfield. A spectacular pass of a Caminiti toss by Cox, Waltham sub-end, brought the ball to the Newton 12 with Caminiti smashing over from the 2 yard line after another pass to Callahan was good for 10 paces. Again the Waltham captain converted. After the kickoff a Heath pass to MacNeil for 18 yards put the ball slightly over the midfield marker into Waltham territory as the half ended.

Heath ran back the Waltham kickoff to the 40 and Pesky swept the end for 20 yards but again the Newton attack was stalled and Caminiti was downed on his 16 yard line on Hughes' punt. Waltham surged forward to their own 45 and another Caminiti to Cox pass put it on the Newton 42. A holding penalty put Waltham back again on their own side of the field and Waltham kicked. Another exchange of punts with Hurley running the ball back from his 4 to the 21 in a nifty zigzag run ended the period.

Hughes tossed to Pesky who reached midfield before being brought down but then failing to gain Newton kicked. Hughes' boot rolled over the goal and the ball was put in play on the Waltham 20. Caminiti and Wheeler alternated to bring the ball up to midfield where Newton recovered Wheeler's fumble. A Hughes to Paglia pass netted 15 strides. Paglia carried on the old stride of liberty play for 15 more to the Waltham 19. Newton lost the ball on downs not far from pay dirt and Johnstone kicked out to the 32. Taking to the air again a Newton pass proved a boomerang when Caminiti snatched the ball which was intended for MacNeil, the Waltham leader raced down the sidelines for 52 yards and the final tally of the game.

The remainder of the game saw Newton striving desperately to score on long passes. Newton obtained the ball on one occasion on a fumbled punt but the final whistle blew as substitute halfback Leaf of Waltham intercepted Hughes' final pass of the game.

GATH'S GUARDS TO PLAY WALTHAM SUNDAY

Gath's Guards, leaders in the Newton Inter-City League, will play the Waltham Eagles, razzle dazzle experts, at Cabot Park next Sunday. The kick off will be at 2 o'clock.

The Garden City Club figures a win will take some of the sting out of the recent defeat of Newton High by Waltham; while the Watch City team intends to show the Newtonites how to cross Gath's goal line, something which has as yet to be done.

The Guards have a well balanced aggregation with unusual defensive strength, while the Eagles have one of the classiest offensive outfits in this section. With these clubs facing each other, the fans should witness a touch and go affair with the breaks counting a great deal.

Police Give Cards To Jay Walkers

For the past several days Newton police have been handing to pedestrians in this city who crossed streets carelessly, some of the 200,000 cards which were distributed by the Massachusetts Safety Council for the police to hand out all over the state to jay walkers during a 5 days' period. The cards have a warning to pedestrians to use caution while crossing highways, or walking on them.

Man Hurls Coal Out Window Instead of Into Furnace

Few of those unsung heroes in Newton who pad down dimly lit stairs on wintry mornings to get the furnace going, realize that they toss one out of every five shovels of coal right out the window.

That's where it goes in the form of heat loss. Tests prove that savings of as much as 30 per cent in fuel costs can be made in houses that have storm windows and doors.

Want Stadium For Sunday Ball Game

An application for the use of Dickinson Stadium at Newton High School for a football game on Sunday, Nov. 27, for the championship game in the Newton City League is causing considerable controversy. The game is to be played between Gath's Guards of Newtonville and the Thompsonville Redskins. The city league was organized under the supervision of the Newton Playground Department and its president is Rev. Charles O. Farrar, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands. Those interested in the league were given the impression that the final game for the championship could be played on the stadium.

The School Committee was unaware of this plan and when the application was received the first of the week, the committee turned it down, as the stadium has heretofore not been used for such games, and the committee does not desire a precedent established. Persons interested in the football league are endeavoring to have the school committee change its decision, and persons residing in the vicinity of the stadium are objecting to a Sunday football game in their neighborhood. The controversy was settled when School Committeeman Harry Bryant obtained the consent of the other members of the committee to allow the game to be played. Bryant said that it will be the first time a Sunday game has been played on the high school athletic field in 30 years—and the last time.

ROBINSON—RICH

Miss Virginia Irving Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Rich of 3 Fairview ter., West Newton, was married to John Robert Robinson of 77 Montrose st., Newton, at eight o'clock on Friday evening, November 11, in the Eliot Congregational Church, Newton. Rev. Ray A. Eusden performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a princess gown of ivory satin and lace with a long train bordered with lace. Her tulle veil which was edged with lace was caught to a cap of seed pearls. Mrs. William J. Conway, sister of the bride, of Newton, who was the matron of honor, wore a gown of ralsin taffeta with a wreath of small orchid chrysanthemums in her hair and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums of the same shade. The bridesmaids were Miss Jeanne Budding of Auburndale, Miss Mary Hurley of West Newton, Miss Virginia Brownell and Miss Elizabeth Tobey, both of Newton. They wore gowns of royal blue taffeta with wreaths of pink roses in their hair and carried bouquets of pink roses.

William J. Robinson of Newton, brother of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were Thomas J. Robinson, Jr., another brother of the groom, William N. Rich, Jr., brother of the bride of West Newton, and Franklin H. Rich of Newton. The decorations at the church were of yellow and pink chrysanthemums, American Beauty roses and ferns. The wedding music was played by Earl

Weidner, organist, and Miss Dorothy Lee Rich, aunt of the groom, who came on from the West Coast, sang "Because" and "All For You."

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the decorations were of chrysanthemums, plants and Cybodium ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Rich assisted the couple in receiving. Mrs. Rich wore turquoise blue satin with a corsage of white orchids and bouvardia. The groom's mother wore a gown of blue velvet with a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left for New York on Friday evening and on Saturday sailed for Bermuda where they plan to spend some time and will visit friends who reside there. On their return they will live at Chestnut Hill and will be at home about December 1st.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of the Newton High School. The groom is associated with the firm of Stevens, Fisk and DuPuy of Boston.

MALONEY—BATTISTA

Mr. Russell Maloney of Newton and New York City was married in Elkton, Md., on September 7th to Miss Miriam Battista of New York City.

Mr. Maloney is the son of Mrs. Vincent P. Maloney of Newton Centre. He is a graduate of Harvard University, class of '32. For the past four years Mr. Maloney has been on the editorial staff of "The New Yorker."

Miss Battista, who is well known in the theatrical profession, is now playing in "The Women."

Propaganda Is Subject At Forum

Columbia University Professor At Second Meeting

Democracy depends on considered opinions, Clyde R. Miller, secretary of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, told more than 900 who attended the second meeting of the Newton Community Forum in the high school auditorium Sunday afternoon.

In an exhaustive discussion of the subject, "Look Out For Propaganda," the Columbia University professor of education gave many examples of propaganda, a description of common devices of the propagandist, and methods by which the public may weigh each influence.

Professor Miller attacked Hitler and Chamberlain for the use to which they put propaganda, calling Hitler one of the master propagandists of all time. He described a conflict of two types of human organization in which propaganda plays a large part, Dictatorship and democracy.

"Dictatorship includes a monopoly of propaganda," he said. "Only one will be expressed. If anything goes wrong there must be a scapegoat on whom to place the blame. It is important to remember this when we know of the persecution of Jews and Catholics in Germany, because a dictator can't be wrong, and things have been going wrong in Germany."

In democracy there is not one will but a competition of opinions. We know that in democracy man is fallible. We know that our ideas and those of others ought to be tested. The obligation rests on all of us to analyze our opinions and those of others.

"All propagandists use, sometimes unconsciously, certain devices. The most common is name calling."

Professor Miller described other devices, including the use of glittering generalities, and transfer mechanism in which a favored object is associated by the propagandist with something which the public already favors. "To avoid the influences of bad propaganda," the speaker continued, "we must keep our emotions under control, because some of the worst propaganda appeals to the emotions. Let us use our intellect instead of our emotions. There are a few simple questions to ask about the name that is being called, first, what is it?"

"Get the definition of the name clearly in mind. If we ask that question, immediately we avoid being swept off our feet by the emotion it arouses. We hold judgment in abeyance and stand a better chance of judging clearly, correctly. Then we ask, is the name correctly applied, to whom is it applied, by whom is it applied? What are his motives, and are they the motives that most of us hold."

Community Chest Campaign Goal Nearly Reached

"Shore Leave Party" Closes Intensive Drive

With 92.3 per cent. of the $196,797 goal pledged and the confident prediction by Campaign Chairman A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., that the campaign workers would "finish the job" promptly, the Newton Community Chest closed the intensive period of its drive with a gala "Shore Leave Party" at the West Newton Armory Tuesday night.

William V. M. Fawcett, veteran of many Chest campaigns and Assistant Chairman this year, was announced as Chairman for the 1939 Campaign.

More than 1500 Campaign workers crowded the Armory to witness the good ship "Community Chest" sail into "Security Harbor." Upon a scenic curtain filling the entire stage, the ship progressed past "Hurricane Reefs" and other danger spots as master of ceremonies John M. Blier reported the pledges of each division of the Campaign. Twenty-five Newton young women dressed in sailor costumes served cider and doughnuts to the audience seated at tables in the hall.

Congratulating the members of the "Crew," Chairman Harwood declared that they had conducted a splendid campaign in spite of serious difficulties. "We have, however," he said, "a little more work to do. There are still many potential contributors to be seen and we must not fail the agencies dependent upon Chest support. Let us finish the job at once and pass on to the 1939 Campaign Chairman, William V. M. Fawcett, a record of 100 per cent. success."

The percentage of their goals raised by the various Campaign divisions is as follows: Auburndale 95.3, Chestnut Hill 92.8, Newton 88.9, Newton Centre 91.6, Newton Highlands 89.8, Newton Lower Falls 80.4, Newton Upper Falls 100.3, Newtonville 98.5, Nonantum 113, Oak Hill 98, Waban 94, Waban Hill 76, West Newton 93, Women's Division 111, Business Division 43, Municipal Division 97.3.

More Burglaries In The Newtons

The West Newton branch library was visited by a thief last Saturday evening and $8 stolen from a desk drawer. Over the week-end silverware valued at $20 was taken from the Chestnut Hill School on Essex rd. in that district. James Moseley of 70 White Oak rd., Waban, reported to the police on Saturday that when he returned to his home after an absence of 10 weeks, he found the place had been entered and jewelry stolen.

Newton Ends Season With 20-14 Victory

Gets Early Lead Over Visiting Brookline Team

Capitalizing on two all important early game breaks the Newton High School football eleven scored a 20 to 14 victory over Brookline High in the 42nd annual gridiron battle between the two schools at Dickinson Stadium, Newtonville yesterday morning before a crowd of some 4,000 persons. A mishandled punt gave Newton its first scoring chance and a Brookline fumble in the shadow of their own goal a second golden opportunity which the orange and black did not let go by. Early in the third period the Sanborn outfit staged a half-field length march to step out into a 20 to 0 lead. But the game was not over at that point by any manner of means as Brookline, undaunted retaliation with a punch that almost swept the locals off their feet.

Throughout the remainder of the second half the visitors clearly had the upper hand scoring once in each of the third and fourth periods and negotiating both points after touchdowns so that another tally would have given them a tie and the point after would have meant victory. They fought valiantly for these points which never came while Newton supporters held their breaths and cheered at every play which was turned back.

The first Newton score came quickly, eight plays after the opening kickoff when a Hughes punt got away from safety man Gallagher and with Castoldi blotting out the Brookline player's chance of recovery with a neat shove, Stuart MacNeill recovered for Newton on the Brookline 15. Hughes and Rezzutti carried to the 11 and a Hughes to MacNeill forward pass followed by a lateral to Hurley brought a first down on the 3 yard line from which point Brooks Heath plunged over. Paglia placekicked the point. Another dozen plays and Newton made it 13 to 0. Lining up covered a fumble by Brookline's Carroll on the Brookline 7 yard line. In four plays Hughes, Heath, Pescosolido, and Heath produced the score. Paglia's placekick was blocked.

Shortly after the third period opened Brookline kicked with Hughes running the ball back 10 yards to the Brookline 41. Two plays failed to produce much yardage but a Hughes to Paglia pass clicked for 20 yards to the Brookline 19. Hughes and Heath ground out a first down on the 9-yard line. Hughes picked up four more and then a Heath to MacNeill pass into the end zone was completed for the third tally. On this play Brookline was caught flatfoot when Heath passed instead of Hughes, who had thrown every previous pass, handling the ball. Paglia's placekick went between the uprights for the 20th point.

Midway of this period Newton had possession of the ball and with a three onchdown lead attempted a pass which Gully, Brookline centre, intercepted and raced down the sidelines for 30 yards before Hughes forced him outside at the Newton 22. Three line plays and a short pass to the left made it first down on the 12-yard line and then Klrane, on an end-around play, fooled the Newton secondary completely to sweep around his right side for a touchdown standing up. Capt. Nixon booted the point.

Following the kickoff a 15-yard penalty set Newton back to the shadow of their goal and Hughes' short kick gave Brookline the ball on the Newton 40. On the final play of the period a short Brookline pass was batted around by three Newton players only to fall into the hands of the intended receiver, Perkins, five yards further down the field with the latter getting down to the Newton 20 before being brought down. Changing ends of the field, Brookline attempted a Newton play which nearly went for a touchdown. A back takes the ball from centre and plunges into the line but as he passes the guard, who has turned about face in the scrimmage line, he passes the ball to this guard and the latter (Continued on Page 12)

Much Interest Being Shown By Newton Women In Free Cooking School

Afternoon Session on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday At Newton Centre—Many Valuable Prizes

There is a familiar saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach and another that the way to keep peace in a family is to feed friend husband well. So every woman in Newton should be interested in cooking and should be on hand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, Nov. 28, 29 and 30 at the Newton Centre Woman's Clubhouse in Newton Centre sq. for the three free sessions of the NEWTON GRAPHIC Fall Cooking School.

The sessions of the school, which is conducted with the co-operation of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, and many local merchants, will begin each day at 2 o'clock and end at 4 p. m. so that the mistress of the house will be home in time to prepare the family's evening meal. Doors will open at 1 p. m. and the women are urged to come early as capacity attendances are expected at every session.

Miss Margaret Fossett, director of the home economics department of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, will be the director of the school, and will impart many valuable cooking hints to those who attend. The school is absolutely free to the women of Newton and vicinity and nearly two hundred valuable and useful prizes are offered. Some of these numerous prizes will be awarded at each session with the major awards being presented at the close of the school on Wednesday.

The major prize, to be awarded on Wednesday, will be a beautiful 1938 model Glenwood Gas Range which is the contribution of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company through the manager of its Newton division, Mr. John Hiller. In addition to the grand prize there will be 24 large bags of groceries, filled with articles of food, given away each day as well as 10 smaller bags of groceries and numerous prizes donated by local merchants.

Special merchants' prizes totalling more than one hundred dollars in value will be awarded on the last day.

The program will be different on each day of the school and each woman who attends will be given a printed program which will list the recipes to be prepared and explained.

that day. The program will serve as a permanent record of the facts learned at the school and may well be used to supplement the housewives file of recipes used in preparing meals in their homes. Miss Fossett will explain and demonstrate many novel and time-saving methods of cooking. Thus the school offers a golden opportunity for the women of the Newtons to obtain new ideas, tested recipes for main dishes and desserts that are wholesome, delicious and economical.

Representatives of the Meloripe Fruit Company will be present to prepare and serve to each lady in attendance a sample of the famous banana scallops.

With a different program each day it is advisable to attend all sessions of the school. Admission is absolutely free and no ticket, pass or other form of admission is required for entrance. In order to win a prize you must be inside the building or in the immediate vicinity when the drawing is made. To be eligible for the main prize, the C.P. automatic gas range you must be a user of gas from the Boston Consolidated Gas Company.

Remember! The dates are Nov. 28, 29, and 30. The days are Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The time is 2 o'clock each day. Doors will open at 1 o'clock. Come early and share these delightfully new and different recipes and you will have a chance to win one of the many splendid prizes offered.

Method of Cooking Bananas Shown Daily

An added feature at the NEWTON GRAPHIC free cooking school will be the demonstration of the way to prepare banana scallops. This part of the program is the contribution of the Meloripe Fruit Company. Dainty samples of these tasty banana scallops will be presented to those attending the school.

FIRST COME—FIRST SERVED

The committee which has been organized to arrange a testimonial dinner for Governor-Elect Leverett Saltonstall will have the cooperation of hundreds of Newton citizens. The Governor-elect is held in high esteem by thousands of his fellow Newtonites and there is no auditorium, hall or building in which it would be possible to accommodate those who desire to attend a gathering of this nature. Consequently it will be no surprise if the total number of tickets available, some 1600, will be tucked away in the pockets of those who thoughtfully made an early decision to attend the dinner. It is a case of first come, first served. Not only is it fitting and proper that Mr. Saltonstall should be thus honored, but it is additionally appropriate that the affair will be kept as strictly local as possible and that it will take place on the evening of his taking the oath of office as the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth.

THAT TROUBLESOME APARTMENT PROBLEM

Some time ago we gave the friendly warning that steps should be taken to prevent the recurrence of a technical violation of the apartment house laws by the apparent intention for a janitor's suite on the ground or basement level and subsequent preparation of such apartment for rental, thus actually making the structure a three-story apartment house. The Newton building laws restrict apartment dwellings to the rental of but two floors. Some months ago the situation arose in connection with the construction of an apartment house in the Newton section of the city and brought forth considerable criticism. Now in a similar building on adjacent property the same situation has arisen. The criticism raised before was but a light breeze in comparison to that which is now in the offing. We wonder how long it will be before the city fathers put a halt to the flaunting of the reasonable regulations they have made.

Man Electrocuted, Widow Gets $6400

In the Middlesex Superior Court on November 17 a jury awarded Mrs. Marcia Fulton of Chelsea ave., Newtonville $6400 in her suit against the Edison Company. Mrs. Fulton's husband, Graham Fulton, was electrocuted on February 21, 1936, while working on a pole near the skating area at Crystal Lake, Newton Highlands. Fulton, whose regular occupation was that of a lineman for the Edison Company, was working on his off time for William E. Pike who did the electrical work for the City of Newton. He came in contact with high voltage wires which had been attached to the pole in 1932 for a water piggery. The pole was on city property. Mrs. Fulton also had brought suits against the city and the estate of Pike, alleging negligence because the high voltage wires had not been removed.

The jury found that the Edison Company was negligent in not having the wires removed. The jury agreed with the contention of the attorney for the Pike estate that there had been a contractual assumption of risk by Fulton when he agreed to do the job for Pike. It found that there was no statutory liability on the part of the city. Richard Lee was attorney for Mrs. Fulton, Dennis Cronin attorney for the Pike estate, and Joseph Bartlett represented the city.

Well anyway, I don't seem to have much trouble. Mother and the District Nurse know just how to make my life perfect.

NEWTON GIRL SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The Newton Girl Scout Council held its monthly meeting at Girl Scout Headquarters Newtonville on Tuesday, November 15, and on the following day held the Leaders' Association Meeting. The State Meeting of Girl Scouts was held Friday, November 18, at the Hotel Vendome at which time there was round table discussion of the subject "Out-of-Doors the Year Round" supplemented with movies and a demonstration by the All-American Campers. Saturday, November 19, was Handcraft Day with Newton exhibits on display at Cedar Hill.

IT WAS DAWN FOR THE DOUGH-BODY WHEN DEATH TOOK HIGH COUNT

A Proclamation

WHEREAS, we are confronted with the necessity of continuing the important battle against tuberculosis, now that the fruits of victory are within reach, as revealed by the declining death rate and morbidity rate from this plague over the last decade in Newton, and

WHEREAS, for many years the Newton Seal Sale Committee of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, affiliated with the National Tuberculosis League, have conducted a Christmas Seal Sale, eighty-five per cent of the proceeds of this sale providing the financial shewings which aid and accelerate the triumphant endeavors to curb tuberculosis in Newton, and

WHEREAS, the Christmas season brings to every one the desire to do all possible to make people happy, joyous and healthy,

NOW THEREFORE, I gladly call attention to the Annual Sale of Christmas Seals, to be conducted by members of the women's clubs from November 25th, 1938 to Christmas, and urge all to lend support to this great humanitarian endeavor by purchasing "these seals of health" and thus lighting the candle of health and happiness in the window of every home in our city.

EDWIN O. CHILDS, Mayor.

The National battle against tuberculosis will be carried on again this year in the annual Christmas Health Seal Sale. As heretofore, the seals will reach you on November 25th, and the Committee hopes that you will purchase as many seals as your purse permits. A large percentage (85 per cent) of the sales quota is spent on preventive work here in Newton. Let us all rally to the support of this worthy cause.

This committee is working very diligently to make this sale a great success. May we ask your co-operation? The Christmas Health Seal Sale is not included in the Community Chest Appeal.

City and State Differ on Finances

Publicity has been given the past few days to an alleged difference of opinion over the financial condition of Newton between Theodore Waddell, director of the State Division of Accounts, and Daniel A. White, Comptroller of the City of Newton. Two months ago Mr. Waddell ruled that the surplus in the city's accounts was about $45,000. Appropriations made since that time have wiped out the amount so that on this basis the city could make no more appropriations between now and the end of the year, and appropriations totalling about $9000 should not have been made at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. White, however, contends that accumulated receipts from income, excise, corporation and other taxes, which the city has to its credit, and also receipts from sewer and street assessments amount to about $75,000 and will enable the city to meet its expenses for the balance of the year.

Cannot Use Stadium For Sunday Game

The use of the Dickinson Stadium at Newton High School grounds for a football game on Sunday, November 27th, between Gath's Giants of Newtonville and the Thompsonville team, has been definitely refused by the Newton School Committee. It had been stated in newspapers that the committee had granted a permit for the use of the stadium, but this was erroneous. The teams, which belong to a league sponsored by the Playground Department, had been given the impression they could use the high school grounds, but the School Committee as a body, had taken no action granting such a permit, and because of objections raised against establishing the precedent of allowing school playgrounds for Sunday games, the committee would not consent to the game being played at the stadium next Sunday.

Constable's Aid In Newton Court

Albert Alley, 35, of 1073 Beacon st., Newton Highlands, was assigned in the Newton court on Monday on a charge of larceny. Alley was employed by Louis Ebb, who has a constable's office in this city, to collect overdue taxes. Ebb alleged that Alley had collected $396.45 from various Newton residents and had failed to turn in the money. Judge Murray of Milford, who heard the case, found Alley guilty and sentenced him to serve 30 days in jail, but suspended the sentence on condition that Alley make restitution by April 22.

Reckless Driver Pays $50 Fines

Hugh Orizli, 19, of Shrewsbury, was fined $25 by Judge Mayberry in the Newton court on Monday for driving recklessly, and another $25 for failing to stop when signalled to do so by an officer. Inspector Connors of the Registry of Motor Vehicles testified that Orizli was driving to endanger on the Worcester turnpike, and refused to stop when signalled to do so.

In court the same day Amos Samuda of Bradock rd., Boston, was fined $5 for driving a car without having a license.

Want School Named For C. E. Hatfield

A fourth name has been proposed for the new school at Derby st., West Newton. Some friends of the late Ex-Mayor Charles E. Hatfield have asked Mayor Childs to name the school after him. When the school was planned, some residents of West Newton suggested that it bear the name of the old school which it will succeed—the Franklin School. Then a request came from a veterans' organization that the school be named for John L. Reilly, a West Newton youth who was killed while serving in the A. E. F. in France. The Newton School Committee voted to recommend that the school be named after Ulysses G. Wheeler, a former superintendent of schools. Mayor Childs will have to decide between the various requests and recommendations.

Safety Council on Fire Prevention

Newton Safety Council held a meeting at War Memorial Hall last Friday night at which the subject of Fire Prevention was discussed by T. Alfred Fleming of Ohio, director of conservation of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. He told of unusual causes of fire, stressed the need of people knowing of the hazards caused by modern appliances, and urged proper construction of residences to guard against the spread of fires. He said that 47 per cent of fires start in basements. Chief Randall of the Newton Fire Department told of the work of the Newton department and its modern equipment. He mentioned the fact that the low fire losses in Newton give it one of the best records for a city of its size.

Lewis E. MacBryne, head of the Mass. Safety Council, congratulated Newton on the fact that so far this year only 3 persons have been killed in the city by automobiles. Last year 11 were killed in the same period. He referred to the current campaign for pedestrian safety, and said that next year the Safety Council will start campaigns against the menaces of drunken drivers, and drunken pedestrians. The meeting was in charge of Alfred N. Miner, and among the guests were Fire Commissioner William A. Riley of Boston, Commissioner Good of Brookline, Chief A'Hearn of Waretown, and Chief Hill of Belmont.

Child Hit By Car Driven By Boy

Donald Newcomb, 7, of 29 Trowbridge st., Newton Centre, was hit last Friday evening about 5 by a car driven by Paul Murphy, 16, of 118 Corey rd., Brighton. The child was walking on Beacon st. at Crescent ave. when the car driven by young Murphy struck him. In the car with Murphy were two other boys and two girls. Murphy put the injured child in the car and started for Newton Hospital, but when he arrived near there, the Newcomb boy cried and protested against being taken into the hospital, so Murphy started back toward the boy's home. In the meantime Mrs. Newcomb had been told of the accident and had proceeded to the hospital. When her child did not reach there, she naturally became greatly alarmed. About 6 o'clock, after searching for the Newcomb home, young Murphy reached there with the injured boy. Mr. Newcomb went to Newton Centre sq., called Patrolman Carley, and the latter placed Murphy under arrest.

Murphy told the police that the car was the property of Augustus Spector of Winthrop rd., Brookline, and had been kept in his father's public garage. The Murphy boy said he drove the owner of the car home on Friday afternoon, and then, instead of returning to the garage, picked up the other boys and girls and went for a ride. He was arrested on charges of driving without a license. He will driving without a license. He will driving without a license. He will driving without a license.

Man Electrocuted at Raytheon Plant

Ernest Sullivan, 37, of Glenrock ave., Malden, was electrocuted about 8:30 last Saturday morning at the Raytheon radio tube plant on Chapel st., Nonantum. Sullivan, an electrician, was working on a step ladder, and was alone when the accident happened. It was at first thought he might have been injured in falling off the ladder, but an examination showed he had been electrocuted. It is supposed that as Sullivan was standing on the ladder he touched a transformer carrying 550 volts, and a screwdriver which was in his rear pocket contacted a nearby pipe, forming a circuit which hit a vital organ. His body was taken to the Newton Hospital morgue. Sullivan is survived by a widow and two children.

Bag Snatcher At West Newton

Another bag-snatching was added to the several which have occurred in this city when Priscilla Hay, 21, of 18 Warwick rd., West Newton, was robbed Tuesday evening at 5:10 at the corner of Waltham st. and Davis ave., West Newton. The girl told the police that the robber was a youth about 18 years of age, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, slender, and wore a baseball cap and a tan jacket. The bag contained $17 in money and a pair of gold rimmed eyeglasses.

The City Council meets next Wednesday evening to hear all persons interested in the proposed park at Bullough's Pond.

Miss Annie Gilman and Miss Daisy Davis of Newton were thrown from the carriage in which they were driving on Monday evening by the forward wheels becoming detached. Both were somewhat bruised about their faces.

A chestnut horse attached to a covered buggy was stolen at Newton from E. E. Coffin on Monday night.

Don't forget that the four tracks on the B. & A. railroad are to be in use starting next Sunday. Take extra care yourself and don't forget to caution your children to avoid danger.

A lace curtain at Boynton & Marsh's dry goods store at Newton caught fire from a gas jet about 5:30 Wednesday evening. One of the clerks pulled it down, burning his hands in so doing.

Howard B. Coffin's grocery store windows present a novel and attractive appearance with their fall decorations. Two handsome pyramids of canned goods are leading features. In front appear pictures of Garfield, Arthur and Robinson, the whole being draped with bunting.

A football game was played on Saturday morning on Brookline common between Newton High School second eleven and Brookline High School second eleven, resulting in a victory for the latter by a score of 4 to 2. The features of the game were the rushes of Ellison and Hayden for Newton, and Wesson and Crane for Brookline. Excellent stops were made by Brooks of Newton and Singleton of Brookline.

The past week has given a foretaste of winter's discomforts. Monday was cold with a sale of 40 miles an hour blowing from the northwest and the first snow of the season fell at 11 a. m. Nearly every day since has been wintry.

A tall and stylish appearing darkey with a silk hat, and calling himself by the extensive name of Professor Phillip Paul Quinn Johnson, engaged Eliot Hall for last Tuesday evening and proceeded to sell tickets for a concert by jubilee singers from Toronto. He stated the proceeds were to go to the Charles Street Church in Boston. After the professor had sold over 100 tickets to benevolent people here, he left town suddenly and the patrons went to the hall Tuesday evening only to find it in darkness.

There will be a grand "no-license" meeting at Eliot Hall next Tuesday evening. Mayor Ellison will preside and Ex-Governor St. John of Kansas will speak. A "no-license" chorus of 200 trained voices will sing.

The Common Council on Monday evening submitted the report of the finance committee of estimates of expenditures for next year, as required by the new city charter. The appropriations recommended are $24,470 less than the appropriations for the present year. They total $463,650. The figures show an honest effort to economize.

Official notice has been given of the adoption by the B. & A. railroad of Eastern Standard time which is 15 minutes and 44 seconds slower than Cambridge time. The change will be made on Sunday at noon and telegraph operators are to be at their offices at 10 minutes before 12 to wait until the time is transmitted from Boston. Railroad employees will receive the time from the telegraphers and set their watches at once. City clocks will be set back to agree with railroad time.

Newton Graphic, Nov. 16, 1888

The report of the Newton Board of Health for October says that there were 29 deaths during the month. There were 15 cases of typhoid fever, 7 of scarlet fever, and 5 of diphtheria. Four cases of scarlet fever were in one family. Where cases of diphtheria or scarlet fever occur, the premises are now being fumigated. Where typhoid fever is reported an examination is made of the premises, and improvements suggested, or ordered when necessary.

The election of Harrison & Morton was celebrated in Newton on Monday evening by demonstrations, fireworks and a torchlight parade. The Waltham battery fired salutes at Auburndale, Lower Falls, West Newton, Newtonville, Newton and Newton Centre, and at the conclusion of the firing of the cannon, the Harrison & Morton flag at each of these villages was hauled down. At Newton the streets were thronged with people and all seemed worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Cheers rent the air and the display of fireworks was one of the best ever seen in this city.

Powers' Paragraphs

Henry F. Long, State Commissioner of Taxation, is arguing the case of a 2% general sales tax for Massachusetts. He declares that this State has had a drop in revenue income of $30,000,000 the past 10 years, that real estate is overburdened, and that the sales tax would bring $42,000,000 in revenue. Mr. Long's sales tax proposal is already bringing strong protests, and more will follow. Similar proposals by him in past years were turned down by the Legislatures. People of Massachusetts don't want "relief" which will impose added tax burdens upon them; which will cause them to pay considerably more in sales taxes than they will be saved in taxes on real estate. And with the revelations of the manner in which the $19,000,000 recently appropriated is being spent, the taxpayers of Massachusetts, especially the smaller taxpayers, won't enthrone over providing $42,000,000 more for the politicians to spend.

There is much concern at the present time about the future of democracies. If this democracy is to survive, we must have honest, efficient government, not only in the Federal government, but also in State and municipal governments. Millions of people in this country who are not fortunate enough to have permanent, public jobs at good salaries, are struggling against the bad economic conditions which have existed for years, and if taxes continue to increase largely because of inefficiency and extravagance in public affairs, not to mention dishonesty, the common people, who have been footing the bills, will eventually be added to the army on public welfare. If this occurs, our much vaunted democracy will evolve into a totalitarian State.

For years we agitated for the reestablishment of a motorcycle squad in the Newton police department. About 2 years ago the squad was reestablished and eight men assigned to it; four for day duty, and four for night duty. But, instead of providing a motorcycle for each patrolman assigned to motorcycle duty, or even purchasing six motorcycles, only four, small motorcycles were bought, instead of the eight asked for in the department budget. With four motorcycles in use day and night, it stands to reason that the small motor vehicles could not stand up under such usage, and one of the four gave out a couple of weeks ago, and burned up. Since then only three motorcycles have been available, which means that the motorcycle squad has been reduced from eight to six men, and should one of the remaining three motorcycles become useless, the squad which has been patrolling the streets of this city for the past 2 years will be further reduced. We know that there has been some criticism as to the efficiency of the motorcycle squad, and it has been stated that the men on the squad have been used as messengers and for school traffic duty when they should have been patrolling the streets on the motorcycles. The writer has commented that Washington st. has not been patrolled to the extent that it should have been, as we contended that this street, with the worst accident record in the city, ought to have a motorcycle officer on it constantly, day and night. But the fact remains that during the past two years there has been a striking reduction in the number of fatal automobile accidents in Newton. In 1935 the number of persons killed in automobile accidents in Newton totalled 14, in 1936 the total was 12, in 1937 the total was 12. So far this year, approximately eleven months, only 3 persons have been killed in Newton by automobiles. While the motorcycle squad cannot be given the credit for this very appreciable decrease in deaths on our highways, undoubtedly it has been a big factor in promoting safer driving. And we would like to suggest to Mayor Childs that the expense of continuing the motorcycle squad is well warranted, when human lives are being saved, and sufficient motorcycles should be purchased and maintained to permit of adequate traffic control, even if such motorcycles will make more work at the garage of the police department.

It is not so many months ago that the City of Newton widened Centre st. between Mount Ida street and Newtonville ave., and constructed a stone wall there at considerable expense. Now, much of that wall has been torn down so that the grade of adjoining land can be lowered to permit the use of the basement of a new apartment building for apartments. We don't believe that basement apartments will tend to improve any neighborhood in this city. Last year it was called to the attention of the Board of Aldermen that preceding Boards of Aldermen had adopted the policy of refusing any permit for an apartment building unless adequate off-street parking facilities and garage accommodations would be provided. Either of these are available at the two apartment buildings recently erected on Centre st. Will the present Board of Aldermen take action to prevent more apartment buildings in this city with basement apartments and without any parking spaces or garages? (Continued on Page 11)

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

Color Complex
Although wreaths, ribbons and festoons have yet to come, the red and green of Yuletide are already with us. Study those new fangled electric signs, with letters made up of twisted illuminated wire, and you'll find almost all of them are either red or green or a mixture of the two. It is cheering to look forward to the Christmas season and I wouldn't think of introducing a doleful note if it were not for one thing. Red and green have been identified with traffic signals for so long a time that there lies a danger of confusion in the holiday rush. Green, we know, signifies a clear path and says, "O. K., proceed" while red commands that we halt because of the possibility of trouble ahead. Remember, we have viewed each by itself and, of course, it has been to our advantage. But what will happen if we find them together? Will our wits clash and cause us to founder because we know not whether to stop or go? A Christmas season of indecision would never do.

Improving Public Manners
Stress has been put upon the great offence of jay-walking and cards are handed by the police and other agencies to the cause of safety to those who transgress. The idea, I am told, has already proved its effectiveness which leads me to think that it might be expanded. How about giving out cards for various forms of improper walking? Suppose we see a man thrust his way ahead of a group of women boarding a train or trolley. Why not a card for him? Another offender is he or she who plunges into a revolving door regardless of the convenience or necks of those behind. A card reminding the door of the public's contempt might improve his deportment. Every day we meet rude individuals and yet we do no more than grumble at their bad manners. Is it not possible they might be checked? There are some whose behavior at tables in public eating places must be of a sensitive nature. Here again a printed rebuke might be beneficial all around. So swiftly does my imagination work in this connection that unlimited possibilities unfold themselves. After jay-walking has been corrected I shall consider starting a campaign against equally irritating offences.

Easily Lost
"Why didn't I think of that?" There is a common form of self-protection I found myself employing the other day as I stood at the delivery desk in the main building of the Newton Free Library. The cause of my agitation was a young woman. Wait, please, until I've finished. She had made a selection of books and was producing her library card. The latter was contained in a case like that

Outdoor Tennis in Winter
If tennis must be played in November what should be worn as the most suitable rig? I'm putting this question to the men, but I'd like any help I could get from the ladies. I must say it had been my notion until last Sunday morning that to perform any activity on the courts one must wear the usual tennis outfit, with maybe a sweater to keep out the chill. When I saw a tennis player hopping about the Burr playground and dressed as if he were going to sit on the sidelines, I was puzzled. But he did rather well in spite of encumbrances. To be sure he wore flannel trousers and tennis shoes, but otherwise his dress was that of the young business man on the way to his office. It was his medium weight overcoat and felt hat that made me stop and wonder how he could wear them and play without apparent hindrance. He didn't wear gloves, though, and possibly that proved he knew how far to go without overloading.

Nickels and the "L"
Just before circulation was begun of the new Jefferson nickel by the Treasury Department, the Boston Elevated Railway trustees said they would have to cut out five-cent fares. I held my breath, thinking, "What's the good of these new Jefferson nickels, or any other for that matter, now?" I was pleased last Saturday to learn the trustees had had a change of heart and postponed further action. It has been called to my attention by an astute young student of economics that there is a strong possibility the trustees thought they'd like to possess some of the Jefferson nickels themselves and have continued the five-cent fare until their collection is big enough to satisfy them. Of course, I personally do not accept any such explanation, although willing to pass it along.

Newton League of Women Voters

The second regular meeting of the Newton League of Women Voters was held at the home of Mrs. Henry I. Hariman, 825 Centre st., on Monday, Nov. 21st. Mrs. Robert T. Bushnell, president of the League, in opening the meeting, welcomed a number of Newton teachers as well as Mr. Julius Warren, Superintendent of Schools in this city. She then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Howard E. Wilson, Chairman of the department of Government and Education, who introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mr. Payson Smith, former State Commissioner of Education in Massachusetts.

Mr. Smith began by explaining why the cost of schools is the first item to be cut in a local budget. The budget shows almost the entire cost of schools but the cost of such items as highways, for example, being borne largely by the state, presents a much less striking figure.

He then traced step by step the evolution of educational responsibilities in the United States, drawing upon the results of his recent survey of the status of education in the forty-eight states of the Union.

In very early days a town would be divided into districts, each of which would be responsible for the schooling of its children. Then as different districts came to vary in wealth the town or city, later the county or state, assumed at least a part of the burden. Now the variations as to wealth which exist in smaller units are more than reproduced in different parts of the country. "I might tell you of one state whose entire income would not suffice to give its children a median education."

In the question period it was brought out that a federal contribution to any state which carries with it the requirement that certain prescribed conditions shall be met by the state. This would mean that a fair proportion would be maintained between educational opportunities for whites and Negroes.

Superintendent Warren in speaking of Newton conditions pointed out that increased individual attention such as is sometimes urged means increased cost.

Arrest Two False Alarm Pullers

While a meeting of the Newton Safety Council was being held in War Memorial Hall last Friday night, at which one of the features was a film showing the menace of false fire alarms, Box 832 at Ward st. and Clements rd., Newton Centre, was pulled, causing Chief Randlett to hurriedly leave the meeting. He returned with the information that it was a false alarm. Shortly afterward Patrolmen Whelan and McEnaney captured two Brighton boys about a mile from the box, and took them into custody on the charge of pulling the false alarm. The boys, Thomas Brooks, Jr., and George V. Regan, each 15 years old, will be arraigned in the juvenile court today. There has been a serious increase in the number of false alarms in Newton. So far this year 69 such alarms have been pulled from street boxes.

Cook's School Lessons Interest All Women

The NEWTON GRAPHIC free cooking school will be an entertaining and profitable way to spend the afternoon. In each lecture the educational factor predominates and the practical ideas and helpful suggestions that Miss Fossett will make should be of interest to every Newton housewife.

Probation For Youth Who Stole

Charles McLaughlin, 21, a colored youth, who stole articles from a house where he was employed as a cleaner, was found guilty in the Newton court last Saturday on charges of larceny. He was arrested for the theft of a wrist watch, the property of a maid at the house. After his arrest he informed the police that he had also stolen a pair of riding boots and a suitcase from the house. Inspector King, who prosecuted the case, asked that McLaughlin be given a suspended sentence because he had assisted in the recovery of the stolen articles. Judge Mayberry complied by giving McLaughlin a 3 months' sentence, and then suspending it.

Fined $35 For Drunken Driving

Thomas J. Murphy of 137 Charles bank, Newton, was fined $35 in the Newton court on Thursday by Judge Mayberry for driving a car while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested early on the morning of November 11 by Patrolmen Whelan and McEnaney.

The family's name was Haddock and did those kids hate fish.

One day a friend brought them one of Ray's Scotch Haddies and believe it or not, those kids ate every bit of it before their mother even had a chance to warm it.

When you want to serve something that the family will all like, try serving Ray's Scotch Haddie.

When you are pressed for time, get one of Ray's Scotch Haddie. It only takes a few minutes to prepare because they are precooked.

The Report Card a SAVINGS BANK helped to write!

ONCE Johnny wasn't so eager to show his report card. But the character training he's getting in school has been aided by the cooperation of his parents at home. They helped the good work along with a savings account in the boy's own name.

Now most of his marks are higher, and the biggest gain is in "attitudes." His report card shows improvement in "cooperation, willingness, persistence and respect for property."

Help your children up the ladder of successful living by starting savings bank accounts for them. Don't postpone this important step any longer. It will help, too, if you open an account for yourself at the same time.

Frocks For All Occasions Worn by Makers

"You Versus Fashions," presented by Miss Elizabeth R. Macdonald of Arlington, at the West Newton Women's Educational Club on Friday afternoon, November 18, proved to be a very interesting program. The Style Show, rather unique in that the clothes shown were designed and made by the models themselves, was delightful. They included attractive morning and afternoon frocks in dainty pastel, evening gowns, and even hats. An unexpected feature was the showing of the correct and beautiful and its contrast in mistakes which the mistress of ceremonies amusingly called "spin-ach." Miss Macdonald received her professional training at the Edgewood Park School of New York and at The Modern School of Applied Art of Boston. The speaker urged women to be careful to suit their fashions to themselves and not exclusively to the style of the day, and to be sure to bear in mind proportions. For example, the tall should wear horizontal lines, cut their hair, and the short should wear vertical stripes or rows of buttons to make them appear taller.

Miss Macdonald, with the assistance of Mrs. Gordon Heath, illustrated the practical use of a basic dress. She showed various accessories such as scarfs, tunics and jewelry. The models from The Modern School of Applied Art were Miss Peggy Warren, of New York; Miss Olive Cunningham, Newton; Miss Esther Jenny, New Bedford; Miss Phyllis Day, Boston; Miss Ann Masters, Winchester; and Miss Bernadine Simmons, Detroit. The program was in charge of Mrs. Gilbert R. Jones, as chairman.

Mrs. Alfred E. Thayer urged the members to purchase the Christmas Seals which would soon be in the mail and so help many who are so unfortunate as to come under the threat of tuberculosis.

Special guests were Miss Emma D. Coolidge, Editor of the Women's Clubs News of THE NEWTON GRAPHIC, and Mrs. Edward C. Fales, Twelfth District representative for the department of American Home of the Massachusetts State Federation. The president, Mrs. Francis H. McCrudden, announced their presence in a special word of welcome.

Fourers at the coffee table were Mrs. Patrick Duncan and Mrs. Alfred E. Thayer. The hostesses were Mrs. Arthur R. Gates, Mrs. Francis L. Kinney, and Mrs. George E. Dennett, chairman.

The Travel Class of the Club will meet with Mrs. John R. McLean, 135 Cornell st., Newton Lower Falls, on Monday, November 28, at 2 p. m. Mrs. Fred H. Fowle will be co-hostess. Mrs. Willard C. This meeting was designated as "Bund Day," and was in charge of Mrs. Benjamin G. Rae, chairman of the Volunteer Service committee, to whom members brought their filled bags for the Mayor's Relief Committee.

As speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Alice Dixon Bond was greeted by an enthusiastic audience that more than filled the hall to hear her new lecture, "Previews and Reviews of the Motion Picture." By some miracle, Mrs. Bond was able to experience at first hand the inside intricate workings of Hollywood, and so could bring to her listeners the intimate and personal aspects and glamour of the place about which few from the outside are privileged to know. It seemed hard to realize the situation as she reviewed in detail the vast motion picture world, or worlds, for each studio is a world in itself; the manifold and separate industries within the great one which the ordinary layman so casually terms "the movies." Mrs. Bond reported that back of a tiny inch of finished film lay hours of exacting and exhausting repetition for the players; of hours of study and research by master minds for technical devices to achieve effects. When next they go to a movie, those who were privileged to hear this lecture will surely be with more intelligent eye and mind at the scenes as they flash across the silver screen.

Mrs. Harold B. Robinson and her committee served tea during the social hour which followed the program.

To Stage "The Pirates Of Penzance"

Reserved seats for the third annual Gilbert and Sullivan Comedy Opera, "The Pirates of Penzance," to be presented at the Newton Centre Woman's Club House, Friday and Saturday evenings, December 9 and 10, at 8 o'clock, will be with more intelligent eye and mind at the scenes as they flash across the silver screen.

Treasure Sale

The "Treasure Sale" which has become an annual event of the Newton Hospital Aid Benefit Shop Committee, took place Thursday and Friday of last week.

A vacant shop at 52 Union st., Newton Centre, was generously lent by the owner for the occasion.

During the year, among the donations to the shop, articles are sent in which are of particular interest to collectors of antiques or as modern gifts which are appropriate for present use. In order that the groups of workers, who, month after month give their services at the shop, may have an equal chance to purchase these "Treasures," this sale is held, and the proceeds swell considerably the amount which the Benefit Shop earns.

The Sale, as usual, was planned by the Shop's manager, Mrs. Francis H. Williams, who was assisted by Mrs. Maynard Hutchinson, president of the Hospital Aid Association; Mrs. D. Brewer Eddy, and Mrs. Ralph Conant, co-chairmen of the Benefit Shop committee. As many of the local chairmen as were able served as saleswomen during the two days.

The Shop, located at 895 Washington st., Newtonville, is open Monday afternoons from 2 to 4:30 p. m., and Wednesday and Friday mornings from 10 to 12 o'clock. Although donations to the stock are welcomed at all times, it has become a custom to have each village take one month in which to make a special drive. November is Auburndale's turn and among those collecting are Mrs. Charles B. Floyd, Mrs. Henry D. Keever, Mrs. Paul Chandler, and Miss Florence Tower.

The persecution of the Jews in Germany by the Nazi government has met with widespread disapproval by citizens of many races and creeds in this country. The suggestion is being made that the 600,000 Jews in Germany be given refuge in the U. S. A., parts of the British Empire and other countries. While the people of this race can be admitted to this country under the quotas allotted to persons of other races who are citizens of the U. S. A. to obtain permission for relatives to come here from European countries or the British Isles, it has been suggested that unused quotas of other races be transferred to those who are considered undesirable by the Nazis. These quotas have been unused by the other races because United States consuls in Europe and Great Britain have refused visas to many thousands of applicants. If wholesale discrimination will be shown in favor of one race, it will result in natural resentment among the other races, and tend to fan the fire of racial hatred in this country. The plan to create colonies of German Jews in parts of the African colonies formerly owned by Germany, would be practical except for the refusal of the Germans to accede to this proposal.

There are some things we cannot understand. One of them is—why so many persons in Massachusetts approve of pari-mutuel betting at horse races, and disapprove of legalized gambling at dog races. Why is it right to gamble when horses are racing, and wrong to gamble when dogs are racing? It is argued that "a different element attends dog races, than attends horse races." Supposedly it is proper for the alleged higher stratum of society that patronizes horse races to gamble, but improper for the lower stratum that attends dog races to gamble. Years ago we had a somewhat similar attitude on the matter of drinking. The horny-handed laborer, who went to Boston or Brighton, got drunk or partly drunk, was arrested when he got off a railroad train, but the wealthy individual, who got soured, was carefully loaded into a depot hack and sent to his home.

ZONTA CLUB

The Intercity Assembly of Zontians, an organization of executive women, met at Hotel Commander, Cambridge, on November 9th. Their nineteenth anniversary was observed with particular interest in that an official announcement was made of a Memorial Revolving Fund for annual scholarships to be awarded women interested in the field of aviation in memory of the late Fellow Zontian, a fier, valiant and dauntless, Amelia Earhart. The headway being made along the line of electrical research in taking several hundred pictures a second was ably portrayed by Mr. Harold Edgerton of M. I. T. who lectured on "Stroboscopic Light," illustrated by pictures.

White Brothers' Employees

The combined annual banquet of White Bros., distributors of "that creamy milk" throughout the South Shore, Cape Cod and in this community was held last Thursday evening, November 17, at the Princess Ballroom in the Hotel Somerset, Boston. Over 250 persons attended this annual "get-together" which was sponsored by the White Brothers Mutual Benefit Association, the White Credit Union and the White Bros. Employees' Association.

Ralph Arveson was master of ceremonies. Professor Raymond Orsetti delivered the principal address.

During the evening, entertainment was furnished by Alice O'Leary and Adrian O'Brien, the Hum and Strum duet and a dance specialty team. Frank Mulligan was chairman of the banquet committee and he was ably assisted by Leo Volpe, Fred Fletcher, Edward Bennett, Norman MacAfee and W. P. Granlund.

GAVE VENEZUELA ITS NAME

Americus Vesputius, also known as Amerigo Vespucci, made his first voyage of discovery in 1497. It is believed that he landed in Honduras and was thus the first white man to set foot on the mainland of the western continent. He is the man who gave Venezuela its name. The word means "Little Venice."

Propaganda Is Forum Topic

Mr. Miller declared that the United States has the least fettered press of any nation and that this should make possible the free expression of opinions and propaganda from which a discriminating public may form accurate opinions. He condemned Chamberlain for using the war scare for propaganda purpose while maintaining a press censorship during the crisis.

He declared, "The people of Britain would not have stood for open repudiation of sacred obligations. They are awakening slowly because of press censorship, but are awakening to the fact that the peace gave Hitler the very things that the people of England knew they would have to fight for in order to preserve democracy."

He was applauded when he charged that Chamberlain had sold out the Democratic Way of Life.

THE WEEK IN NEWTON SPORTS

NEWTON ENDS SEASON WITH 20-14 VICTORY

tosses it backward to another back who sweeps the end. This play and a guard buck made it first down on the Newton 10-yard stripe but here Newton stiffened and finally took the ball on downs on their two-yard line. Hughes' ensuing kick was downed on the Newton 30 and on the next play Gallagher showed the nearest bit of individual running of the day. Running to his left he cut in through tackle, broke to the right around Newton's roving centre and then reversed his field sharply to the left to elude the Newton secondary and race untouched across the goal line. Again Nixon kicked the goal to make it 14-20. From then on Brookline strove determinedly but without success to knot the count.

Period Highlights

First period. In addition to the two breaks Newton quickly capitalized upon there were several other thrilling moments. Newton tried its usual sleeper play following the kickoff but Brookline spotted MacNeill lying on the ground and covered him so that Hughes' pass failed of completion. Hutchings saved the ball for Newton on Hughes' next play. Castaldi's shove of Gallagher sent the latter rolling right over the ball and gave MacNeill a great chance. Paglia's kick-off after Newton's first touchdown was topped. It hit a Brookline lineman and Liming recovered on Brookline's 44. Hughes kick to the Brookline 10 yard line was one of several beauties the Newton had got away to set the visitors back on their heels. Liming, who played a heads-up game most of the way, was right on the ball when Carroll fumbled on the 7 yard line to give Newton its second chance. Following the kickoff Brookline again fumbled and again Liming recovered on Brookline's 35. Hughes placed a nice kick outside on the 15 yard line.

MacNeill spilled Perkins with a jarring tackle seven yards back but Carroll got off a nice kick from his end zone which rolled to the Newton 37. Hughes' long kick went back to the Brookline 14 as the period ended. Second period. Gould smothered Carroll on an attempted kick for a three yard loss when the latter tried to run the ball. Carroll was roughed on the next attempt to kick and Brookline given a first down after a 5 yard penalty against Newton. Liming intercepted a Brookline pass and got down to the Brookline 22 but a 15 yard penalty for holding on the next play halted Newton's advance and Hughes placed a nice kick outside on the 5 yard stripe. After Brookline had kicked to Newton Hughes again punted to the Brookline 10. Macalane made a nice tackle of Perkins for a 2 yard loss just as the latter was about to get away on a long run had he gotten by the Newton sub-end. Brookline recovered Fisher's fumble of Carroll's punt at mid-field. A freak play which didn't go into the records because it was nullified by a Newton offside was on a Brookline punt. The kick was blocked and at least four successive fumbles by both Brookline and Newton plays as they scrambled for the ball greatly amused the spectators. Garland intercepted a Brookline pass and a Hughes to Paglia pass good for 12 yards ended the half.

Third period. After Newton's third period touchdown Newton again started to roll. Two first downs were chalked up in each of which half the distance was on Brookline offside penalties. Newton couldn't get Brookline offside on the next series of plays, however, and when taking to the air saw the interception by Gulley marking the turning point of the game. It was largely Brookline from then on. Following the kickoff after Brookline's score Newton was penalized 15 yards for holding twice in the same series of downs and Hughes' kick went to Brookline on the Newton 40. This set the stage for Brookline's second threat.

Fourth period. Newton's defensive stand at the goal line to take the ball on downs gave the spectators a thrill. It was short lived as Hughes short kick gave the ball to Brookline on the 30 and Gallagher's brilliant run put the visitors right back into the game again. Leading 20 to 14 Newton fans were aghast when Newton took to the air in their own territory but were relieved when Hughes got away a long, low, rolling kick which traveled 51 yards from the scrimmage line to the Brookline 7. Brookline's spinners fooled Newton a lot but they finally had to kick. Hughes again got off a pretty kick which bounded fearlessly to aid Newton a lot. The ball landed inches from the goal and apparently had considerable backspin on it as it finally came to rest on the Brookline 5 yard marker. Carroll again had to kick from behind his goal and again got away another long kick. Hurley gathered it in at midfield but the ball bounced off his chest and Brookline recovered. The game ended three plays later with a Gallagher to Carroll pass good for 10 yards into Newton territory.

The scholastic standing of this foreign group is generally very high and most of them have had to work hard to come to this country.

Accuser Fined $25 Accused Not Guilty

In the Newton court on Monday Leander Huckins of Lynn was fined $25 for driving a car so as to endanger the safety of the public, and on a similar charge Mrs. Frances Lyons of 22 Greenwood st., Newton Centre, was found not guilty. On October 16 cars driven by Huckins and Mrs. Lyons collided at the intersection of the turnpike and Dudley rd., and Mrs. Lyons was reported as having been injured. Patrolmen Hoyt and Taffe and Inspector Hamme investigated the case and as a result a complaint was issued against Mrs. Lyons. It was alleged that she drove onto the turnpike with a red traffic signal set against her. On Monday Mrs. Lyons made a similar charge against Huckins and a complaint was issued against him. Judge Mayberry tried both cases and several hours were consumed in hearing evidence and cross examinations by Mrs. Lyons' lawyer. Huckins took an appeal, but later withdrew it. Mrs. Lyons was found guilty of driving without a license and was fined $5.

Arrested For Drunken Driving

James L. Sullivan, 45, of Circuit ave., Newton Upper Falls, was arrested by Patrolmen Hoyt and Taffe last Friday evening charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was arraigned in the Newton court on Saturday and his case continued until November 30.

Arrested for Theft, Proves Innocence

Lawrence Magnarelli, 24, of 125 Adams st., Nonantum, was arrested last Thursday night by Serg. Burke and Patrolman Smith of the Newton police, and U. S. postal inspectors Smith and Connolly. The U. S. agents had a warrant for Magnarelli on the charge that he had obtained a WPA check made out to Gennaro Mastromattei, also of 125 Adams st. The check was taken from a mail box which addressed on August 16 and cashed at a Newton bank with Mastromattei's name forged on it. The handwriting on the signature resembled that of Magnarelli according to handwriting experts, and a teller at the bank identified him as the person who cashed the check. Magnarelli was arraigned in the Federal Court in Boston on last Friday and he was released after he had proved an alibi. His employer in Brookline testified that the defendant had been at work between 8:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. on the day when the check was stolen, and a fellow employee also testified to that effect. The check was stolen after 9 a. m. The Federal officials accepted this proof of Magnarelli's innocence, and ordered his release.

Banking, Economics, Munitions manufacturing each has its own particular influence upon the sequence of events as we read about them at this momentous time in the history of the world, a time when all men and all nations do not know exactly what to expect in international developments.
